The smartest fashions of Well-dressed Folk.

THE CLIPPING PARTY

DEAR ELEANOR:

Ann Robinson invited us all over to her home yesterday to attend a clipping party given on the lawn. No, dear child, it was not the old-fashioned kind that is usually held at church sociables, where you pay so much per clip for a package you have to accept "sight-on-seeing," but a flower-clipping party, where each guest was provided with shears and garden gloves.

The flowers, my dear, were deposited in a great wicker hamper and sent into the city to be distributed to the children in the hospitals.

Everybody wore her garden-party clothes, and a dainty bevy of femininity it was! Ann was delightful in a costume of violet batiste combined with lace. The front of the bodice was of lace, opening over a little V-shaped yoke of finely tucked net that showed a flat round collar of lace.

Outlining the yoke was a shield arrangement of batiste buttoned on the lace with purple-covered buttons. The sleeves were quite plain, three-quarter length, and were finished with folded-back cuffs.

The skirt was new in design. It fitted very closely about the hips and fell straight to the knees, where a deep curved piece lapped over a very deeply pleated flounce, which just escaped the ground. On the left side of this overskirt was a vertical band of the lace in deep points, each point being caught down with a button.

Grace wore a coarse linen frock of strawberry pink. It was made over a one-piece pattern, with a low-cut neck and flat collar, applied with stitching. Three white crocheted buttons fastened it in front. These buttons were used with good effect on the half-length sleeves and also on the skirt, which opened on the left side of the front. Her big hat was trimmed with a flat bow of pink velvet placed directly in front.

Mrs. Page, a friend of Ann's, had on a most attractive suit of gray linen trimmed, my dear, with blue-and-white dotted foulard and black satin. It was Frenchy to a degree.

A loose-fitting jacket of linen was cut with a deep opening in front and buttoned over with one large black satin button. Double revers of the foulard and satin formed a deep sailor collar in the back, and a short petum of foulard finished the jacket. Cuffs, too, were of the foulard, which was used for a deep inset band on the plain gored skirt.

Her hat of gray straw was faced with satin and trimmed with a folded satin bow in front, caught with a small cluster of forget-me-nots and a single rose on the brim. A blue parasol was carried with this costume.

Your sister wore her little blue-and-white striped lawn that is made with kimono sleeves having plain blue cuffs and a bodice that folds over the back and front on the bias and is then held down with black buttons.

The skirt is cut with a decidedly raised waist line, joined to the bodice with a cord of blue satin and finished about the hem with a shaped band of the satin, showing three buttons on either side.

I wore with it my poke-shaped hat of burnt straw trimmed with the black bow and a wreath of pink roses.

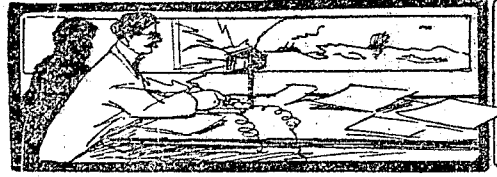

The party was a large success. We expect to have another one soon.

Let me hear from you, dear, very soon.

MADGE.

VATICAN CARES FOR LOST BABE

Foundling Discovered in St. Peter's Cathedral Sent to Home.

Police and Camorra Wage Fierce Battle in Streets of Naples.

(By CLEMENT J. BARRETT.)

ROME, Aug. 5.—The Vatican will care for the poor foundling who was abandoned in St. Peter's Cathedral. One night recently an assistant sexton was passing through the building to see if all was right before locking up. He discovered the little waif tied up in an old coat.

He reported to his superior who in turn notified the Holy Father. The latter gave orders that the child should be placed in a home for infants, guaranteeing that the expenses would be paid. The child was baptized and sent to the institution after sleeping in the apartment of an employe through the night.

Seeing a dark figure climb over his garden wall at midnight, and thinking it was a burglar, Count Carlo Capodilista, who belongs to one of the most ancient Venetian families, fired a rifle and shot the man through the heart. He discovered that he had killed his valet. The count was arrested and it was discovered that the valet had been enjoying the evening with friends and chose that clandestine mode of re-entering the villa in order to not awaken the occupants by ringing.

BATTLE IN STREETS.

A fierce battle was waged in the streets of Naples between the police and the Camorra, one day last week. Vincenzo Grandullo, the new head of this gangster society, in the Monte Calvario district.

They had secured their man and were hurrying him along to the barracks when they were suddenly held up at a sharp corner by a big band of Camorristi who were armed with daggers and revolvers. Grandullo's brother, who was at their head, demanded the release of the Camorra chief.

A desperate affray followed. Amidst the incessant din of firearms, freely used on either side, Inspector Castoldi was mortally wounded, and Policeman Di Paolo had his skull stove in by heavy sticks.

Though several Camorrist ringleaders were shot, all succeeded in escaping except the successor of Ericone, who is now on trial at Viterbo. Even this prisoner was later recaptured in the main thoroughfare of Naples.

The trial of Inspector Matoro before the criminal courts on the indictment of the Royal Carabinieri appointed by the government to prosecute the campaign against the Camorra, terminated in his acquittal.

Matoro was charged with being the associate of criminal societies, having run dives in Naples, in co-operation with the notorious female Camorrist, Maria Stendero, who is now being tried at Viterbo.

The magnificent Cathedral of Conversano, which was destroyed by fire Tuesday last, was one of the most precious examples of Twelfth century Apulian architecture. The building was begun in 1158, and took 200 years to complete.

Its priceless archives contained a mass of documents dating from the early part of the Fourteenth century, and the loss of which has reduced the cathedral to a mass of ruins, was caused by candles used by workmen engaged in repairs in the organ loft.

The Chamber passed a vote of confidence in the Ministry and agreed to postpone the discussion of the Insurance Bill until November. The Prime Minister's statement, which had been expected with some interest, was simply an appeal to the Extremists to support the Ministry against the conservative attitude of the Opposition, boldly claiming that the Ministry was on the side of the Democracy and the Opposition on that of the capitalist interests.

STORM OF PROTEST RAISED IN NORTH OF EUROPE

(By ERIC GRUNDMAKER.)

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 5.—The permission given by the Norwegian navy department for the German torpedo boat squadron under command of Prince Esmarck to enter the Drammensfjord and proceed as far as Drammen has aroused such a storm of protest that similar permission will not be granted in the future.

The permission was opposed by prominent Norwegians, but the minister of the navy said he was unable to refuse on this occasion, as a similar permission was given to a French warship last year. The leading papers maintain that Norway must be very careful in granting such permissions, although the behavior of the officers and crews of German warships has been perfectly correct. It seems that public opinion favors a refusal to allow German warships to maneuver in Norwegian waters.

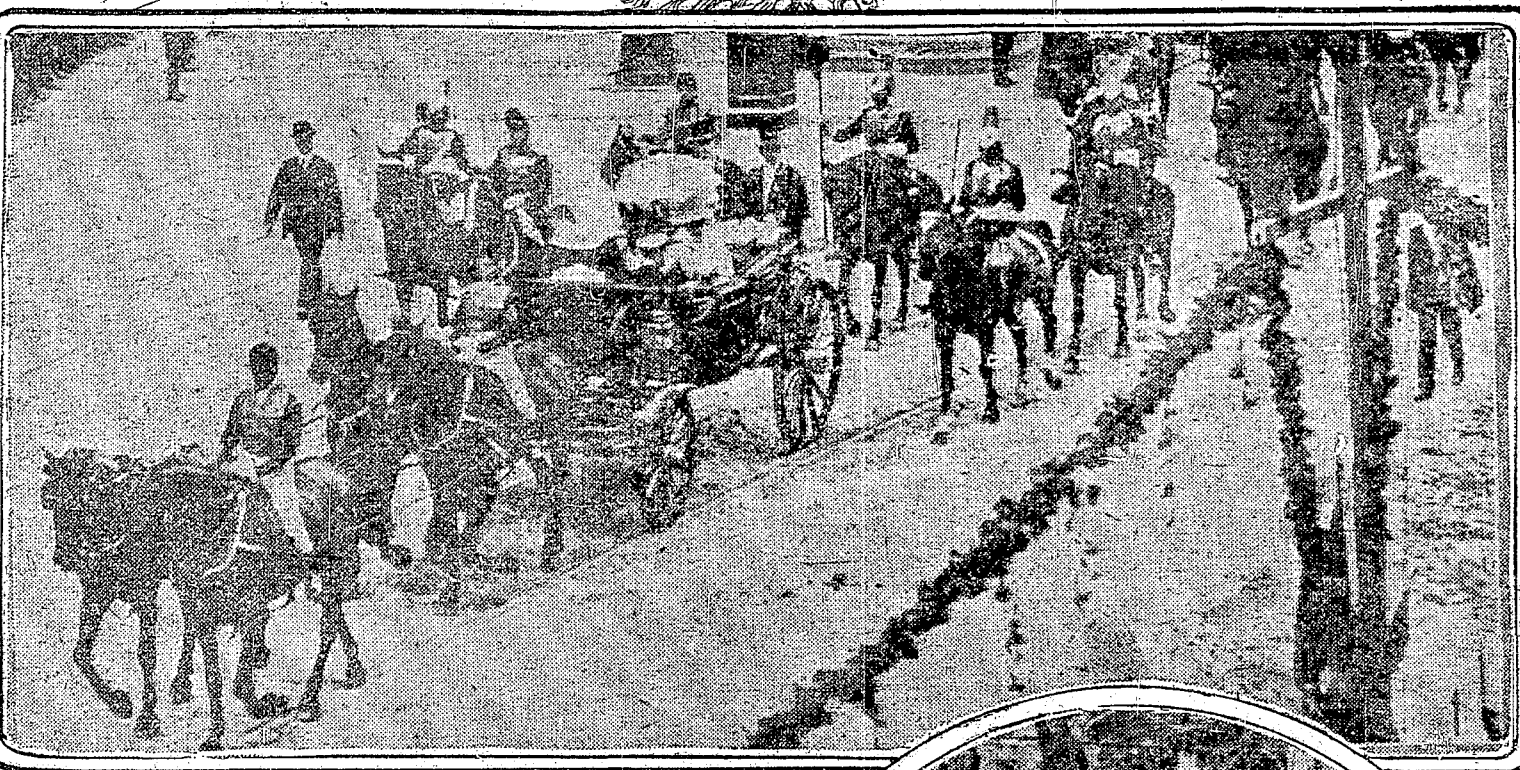

Whether with reason or not there is a strong feeling of suspicion against Germany among the smaller powers in Northern Europe, due probably to the membership of Denmark.

Copenhagen has not yet had its annual visit from the czar. It was expected he would come on the imperial yacht Stara-lata late in July but for some reason not known here the visit was postponed and his majesty it is now announced will not be here until late in August or early in September. It is rumored that the real reason for the postponement is the precarious health of the tsar.

Negotiations which have been proceeding between the masters and men in the building trades having proved abortive, the men refusing to accept a compromise arrangement to which the employers have already given their consent, 40,000 men engaged in the trades were locked out in all parts of the country.

Aristocrat Branded Chronic Borrower and Reckless Beat

(By MALCOLM CLARKE.)

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—A trial here which has aroused much interest has developed the fact that the aristocrat is not only a reckless spender but a professional borrower and a chronic "beat."

At the trial of Count Gisbert Wolff-Metternich the court room was filled to the last place, most of the spectators being persons well known in society, who had postponed their summer holiday in order to be present. The thirty odd cases of fraud of which he is accused seemed to weigh lightly upon him.

Gisbert had lived for a whole year in Berlin solely upon his name. When he could not obtain unlimited credit from the tradesmen he patronized he would offer a bill of exchange for part of the sum, which was generally accepted, as, in addition to his rank, there was always, according to his assertions, a wealthy marriage in expectation. On one occasion he tendered a worthless check.

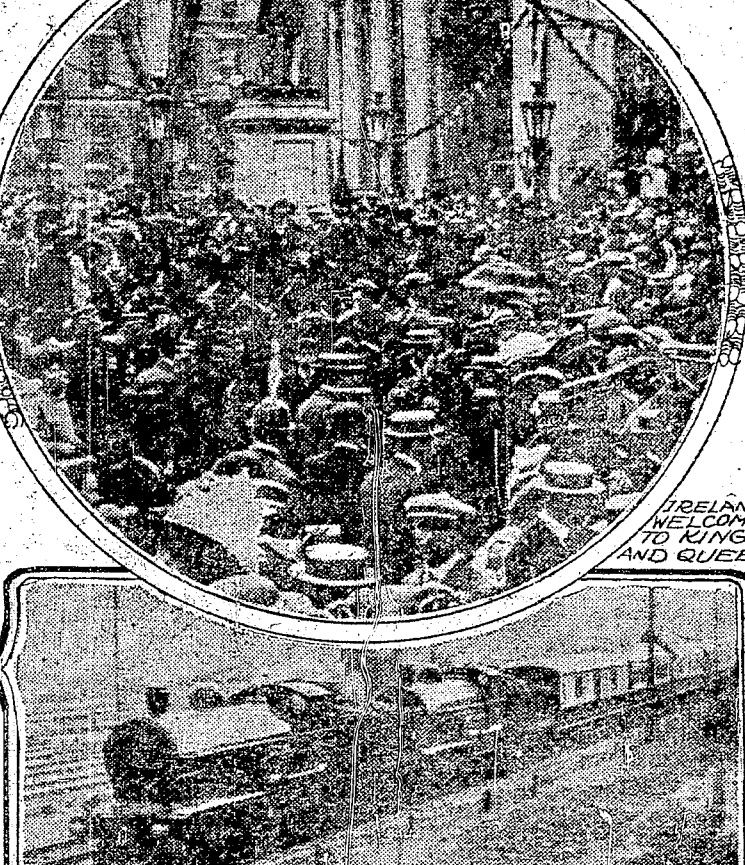

A favorite method of the count was to obtain goods in this manner and then sell them. He purchased a saddle horse from a lady named Rlesch, the price of which was $300. For this he offered a note of hand, saying he would receive his allowance in a few weeks and would then pay his debts. Frau Rlesch gave evidence that although the count was unknown to her she trusted his word, but, later on, having learned that he had borrowed $5 of the waiter, she wrote to withdraw from the transaction, which, however, the count indignantly declined. She then discovered that he had given the animal to a dealer, with instructions to sell, and had received $75 in advance. She instituted proceedings, but no money was forthcoming. The count's wife, however, who had entrusted her little all to her husband, finally paid part of the debt.

BORROWS EVERYWHERE.

The count seems to have borrowed money everywhere. A bootmaker, who had frequently assisted him, said this was no uncommon thing among his aristocratic customers. Another creditor declared that he had often lost money through titled customers, but from a workman never. Count Gisbert had lent his name willingly in the matter of shares. On one occasion he gave his signature for $25,000 worth of shares in a factory, hoping to become a director. The concern, however, became bankrupt.

Evidence was given that Count Gisbert's note for $300 was presented to a firm of jewelers of well-known demimondaine named Gustke. In part payment for some diamonds. She was not in court, but stated the following oath on a former occasion. She had always regarded the count as a wealthy man. He drove his own motor and boasted of his approaching marriage to an American millionaire. One day he came to her asking for a loan of $300, offering in exchange a note of hand for $300. She consented, but later on refused similar requests from him.

The count denied all this, whereupon the president produced and read the following letter in the count's handwriting. It was addressed to Fraulein Gustke: "Beloved Elschen—My wealthy fiancée arrived yesterday. She is charming, and the affair is all right. Hurrah! How are you? I am looking forward all the same to seeing you again. Living is terribly expensive here; one needs fifty to sixty marks a day. I enclose you a note of hand for 500 marks. Please send me immediately 300 in return, as I need it badly. Looking forward to seeing you soon, Yours, GIBBERT."

AGED RULER IS IMPROVING IN HEALTH

(By EMIL ANDRASSY.)

VIENNA, Aug. 5.—Having formally opened parliament, the Emperor Francis Joseph has returned to Ischl where he will remain until the middle of September. His majesty while feeble is looking much better than had been expected. He appears to have practically recovered from the gravity of the situation from which he has been suffering and his doctor permitted him recently to go deer stalking on the mountains near Werresbach. He succeeded in killing a stag of ten points and enjoyed the outing greatly.

His majesty is watching the Albanian situation keenly and is taking an active personal interest in the efforts being made to restore order in that country and minimize the danger of its spreading.

Meanwhile every day is witnessing a spread of the rebellion, and the manner in which this is taking place only serves to show the gravity of the situation in the Balkans. The southern viceroy of Janina is now in revolt. This means that the entire territory from the southern frontier of Montenegro to the northern boundary of Greece is in a state of insurrection. Those who are acquainted with the situation in the Balkans now foresee a general outbreak in Albania, and it is not improbable that it may occur simultaneously with, though very different in character, a very determined revival of the insurgent band movement in Macedonia. It is also considered quite possible that war may yet ensue between Turkey and Montenegro.

The replacing of Shekhet Torgut Pasha by Ewad Pasha comes too late, it is feared.

Torgut Pasha, by his harsh methods of repression, has made himself generally detested in the province. It was, in fact, considered in Albania that Torgut Pasha interpreted his orders from Constantinople much more severely than was intended by the authorities there, and that he really manufactured his own policy. The great bitterness and distrust felt by the Albanians towards the Ottoman government is indeed traced to the proceedings of Torgut Pasha.

Ewad is an Albanian himself and should he pursue a conciliatory policy good may be accomplished, but it is doubted.

It is only by a determined effort of the powers that an effective alliance against Turkey by Montenegro, Bulgaria and Greece is prevented.

ANOTHER DREYFUS CASE IS BROUGHT TO LIGHT

Charles Michand Serves 17 Years Penal Servitude for Crime He Did Not Commit; Innocence at Last Established

(By PAUL VILLIERS.)

PARIS, Aug. 5.—A case which in some respects may be likened to that of Captain Dreyfus has come to light here through an inquiry.

After serving seventeen years' penal servitude for a crime he did not commit, Charles Michand, farmer of Mornat, has had his innocence legally established at the Assize Court, at Bourges. Michand lived close to an elderly man, who was found one morning with his throat cut. A cravat picked up near the body was declared to belong to Michand. On his arrest he strongly protested his innocence, but witnesses declared they had seen Michand in the neighborhood of the victim's home at the time the crime was committed and Michand was convicted.

After fourteen years of his term had gone by in the penal colony in Guiana, another convict confessed to his fellow prisoners that he was the murderer. Michand demanded a revision of his trial, which was granted three years ago. This has just been carried out and after the hearing of two days the jury were clearly satisfied that he was innocent and he has accordingly been set at liberty.

Michand received a great ovation on leaving the court. For his long period of undeserved punishment he has been awarded $6000 as compensation.

PARIS HAS TRAGIC SIDE.

This city is one of the greatest diversions and pleasures, but few know its tragic side. A sad little story is told at the famous cemetery, Pere la Chaise, which may be of interest. Near the tomb of Abelard and Heloise there is a touching epitaph. "A la memoire de Joseph Lesurques, vieillard de la plus déplorable des erreurs, humain, Decede, October 31, 1798." The conviction of this man and his execution for a murder, of which he was absolutely innocent, suggested one of the most popular dramas ever written, "Le Courier de Lyon." Under this name the play was produced upon the French stage in 1865 at the Gaite Theatre.

The story is a true one and tells how this Joseph Lesurques bore a remarkable likeness to a highwayman and this fact alone was the cause of his death. The Courier of the Lyon had been murdered and when this most respectable citizen dropped into the court of justice to learn the cause of the unwonted excitement, a witness of the crime called, "There is the murderer now," and Lesurques was a convicted man. His conviction and execution followed. The only favor extended to him was permission to publish in the annals of the day the pathetic appeal to the real criminal for mercy. "You, to me unknown, can you rest content with the sacrifice of my body? You, in whose stead I am soon to die, think of my wife and three children on whom the infamy of my death must fall. Rest content if you can, but should conscience urge you to terminate the misfortune caused by the fatal likeness, which I bear to you, then, come to my aid." Four years later the murderer, Dubosc, repented, gave himself up, made full confession, and was executed on Christmas morning, and that same morning the monument was placed to commemorate this error of justice.

PRODUCED IN ENGLAND.

The "Courier of Lyon" was afterward produced in England, and in 1899 Charles Kean both astonished and offended his admirers by announcing himself in the dual role with Kate Terry as support. Kean's version was such a success that Leigh Murray had prepared to play the same subject, which ran a year at the Adelphi. Then came the Lyceum revival, twenty-one years later, by the late Sir Henry Irving, whose adaptation was made by Charles Beane and named "The Lyons Mail." The cast was a memorable one, containing Ellen Terry as Jeanne, William Terriss as Courriel, Mr. Fernandez as Choppard and Joseph Hillward as the child of Lesurques-Jule.

While as regards literature "The Lyons Mail" did not profess much, as a dramatic production it was so rich in

CURIOUS DEFENSE.

A curious defense was raised in the courts here by Prince George Yurievsky who, when sued by a dressmaker for dresses supplied to the princess, claimed that he was not liable. Russian law as his wife has a separate estate. The court held that as the bill was not excessive, having regard for the defendant's fortune, and as dresses were a necessity the princess would have to pay the $6700 and cash as demanded by the plaintiff.

The famous Meyer reaction for the identification of human blood, which figures so prominently in recent murder trials, has hitherto been unquestioned. Now, in a communication to the French Academy of Science, Professor Guignard declared that the test is of no value, as his assistant, M. A. Sartory, has obtained similar phenomena with solutions of bicarbonate of soda, potassium, vichy, and even ordinary seltzer water.

ENGLAND IN NEED OF MUCK RAKE

American Writer Sees Field for Reform in Tight Little Isle.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—"The fundamental trouble with America," said Lincoln Steffens, who has just been here with a party of American business and professional men who are making a tour of Europe with a view to ending out things, "has been pointed out best of all by H. G. Wells, who paid us a visit two or three years ago. He said we were a people without a national purpose, meaning, of course, a conscious purpose."

"I would put it another way," he continued, "that we are a people without an ideal, that we are unwilling to accept of any ideal, that we are without a national life; further than this, that we will not listen to any competent, rational scheme, either of development or reform. I think that is true of England, too, by the way. I think the English, like ourselves, are showing great reluctance to fashion out and follow a definite, stable policy. Both nations seem to prefer to grope along just at present like a blind man, with just enough vision to keep out of the way of any little obstacle he might find in his path."

NEED TO FIND AN IDEAL.

"From my study of American politics I am convinced we have got to get an ideal and since we won't look for a big one, since the dream of Thomas Jefferson seems too great to be realized—although it isn't—we must look for a little one. That in reality is the mission of the party of nearly 100 men of mark and character I am making this tour with. They are watching out for the little things as well as the big ones as they manifest themselves in

SECOND RAFFLES HELD BY POLICE

Theft of Valuable Diamonds Is Laid at His Door.

MADRID, Aug. 5.—A man calling himself "Raffies the Second" has been detained by the police at San Sebastian, Spain. Nearly a year ago many valuable diamonds were stolen from the house there of the Marquess of Villamayor. Some months afterwards a similar crime was again committed. Yet a third time the thief entered the house, and he did so in a jocular mood taking off his own clothes on the premises and dressing himself from head to foot in clothing (including a new suit) of the marquis.

A comical letter was left behind, in which "Mr. Raffies" announced further intentions. The suspected offender committed the imprudence of lodging under the name of a son of the marquess, and this led to his discovery. When he was taken into custody he was found to be a youth only 27 years of age named Josef Marie Rodriguez, formerly a servant in the house of the marquess. When arrested he attempted to commit suicide, and is now being constantly watched by two warders.

PRINCE OF WALES AND PRINCESS MARY.

KING AND QUEEN WOULD LIVE IN IRELAND

LONDON, Aug. 5.—It is being said in court circles that the king and queen would welcome a project for establishing a royal residence in Ireland, to enable them to spend two or three weeks there each year. An essential condition of such a project would be that it should be occupied only by members of the royal family, and not be lent to the lord lieutenant or to any members of the Dublin Castle executive. It is understood that Queen Mary is not averse from the arrangements that would enable her for a period to be with her children at an Irish residence, as, for example, during the month of August, between Cowes and the Balmoral season. Bearing in mind the period spent by the sovereign during the last two reigns in continental visits, for which the king and queen have no predilection, there would be no difficulty in fitting an Irish season into the routine of normal years.

good may be accomplished, but it is doubted.

It is only by a determined effort of the powers that an effective alliance against Turkey by Montenegro, Bulgaria and Greece is prevented.

PRINCE OF WALES TO VISIT

(By LADY MARY MANWARING.)

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The young Prince of Wales will probably pay a visit to the United States before long, following the footsteps of his illustrious grandfather. The prince and his next-of-kin, however, will make a tour of all the great British dominions next year. This simply follows a family custom. His royal highness has expressed a desire that his tour be so arranged that while he is in Canada he may also visit the States and see some of the principal cities of the United States, and the king and queen both are perfectly willing to grant his request.

While in the United States it is probable, practically certain in fact, that his royal highness will travel incognito, taking one of his minor titles. It will be remembered that when the late King Edward was in America when Prince of Wales he took the title Baron Grey.

Many of the papers are amusing themselves by making all kinds of plans for the Prince of Wales. It is stated that arrangements have been made for the prince to be received by the emperor and empress at Potsdam during his visit.

and third weeks in August. This is a pure invention. No arrangements have been made for the Prince of Wales to pay visits anywhere. At the time mentioned, the German emperor and empress were residing at the chateau of Wilhelmshöhe, near Cassel, and the Prince of Wales will be either in the Isle of Wight or at Balmoral. It is also quite untrue that the prince is to visit the king and queen of Norway at Christiania, or the emperor and empress at near Klampenborg. It is the custom of the European courts to send invitations of any description to heirs apparent (or any other princes) until their whole course of education has been completed, so nobody has ever heard of a lad being sent on visits to foreign courts.

IRISH RESIDENCE

To all her neices and nephews, Princess Victoria, King George's second sister, who had a birthday last week, is Auntie Toria, and it would seem that there is no aunt in the world with quite the same qualifications. She is devoted to children, and each July on her birthday used to celebrate it by giving an immense children's party at Buckingham palace, when she and her young friends had "the time of their lives." It used not to be an amusing sight to see the princess walking out of a toy shop in the west end carrying a doll or a "Teddy Bear" paperless, taken thus from the hands of the assistant in her eagerness to bestow it on the recipient. Of late her royal highness has enjoyed rather better health than heretofore, but she has never been robust. She is the tallest of her family, quite a head taller than her mother, and her features are those of her father's side of the family. Her favorite pastime is fan-painting. She has been prohibited at the royal amateur art show, and a fan she showed there some time ago painted in "Wastean style came in for exceptional admiration.

The king and queen of Spain on Monday, August 7, will proceed to Chester on a four days' visit to the Duke and Duchess of Westminster at Eaton Hall. King Alphonso is going to Scotland on leaving Eaton, and the queen will return to the Isle of Wight. It is possible that their majesties may arrange to arrive at Cowes on Wednesday, the 26th, as King Al-more. Russia has sent her greatest artists; Paris has responded to the cry and yet the British theater-goers are waxing insistent in their demand for various stages of undress, the stars are parading their charms in the halls along the British capital's great white way. Art for art's sake, most of it is, but London is questioning the motive.

The Russian ballet is fast getting to be a habit. Mile. Pavlova and Mordkin planted the seeds in America two years ago, and in the season just passed returned with ten other Russians to water them. But the coming winter is to bring to New York the present ballet headed by Nijinsky, near the Russian, Wassily Nijinsky. This ballet was one of the features of the coronation festivities, and before that had been giving a two weeks' season at the Theater du Chate-

Mme. Karsavina in her dress, does not strive to add another color to the rainbow, nor is her neck hung with ropes of pearls. And if there was one quality in her bearing that struck the interviewer, it was the absence of repose.

"After all, why shouldn't a dancer be just a woman?" she asks, "We think so in Russia, and are just as simple as any one else. And I think we dance all the better for it. A dancer ought to be able to express all human emotions, and she cannot do this unless she herself is human. That is just the truth. But on the stage too often are regarded as a race, of beings apart, and consequently they, too, often come to regard themselves as such. And that is bad, both

Clever Press Agent Work Fails to Alarm "the Dear Public."

Edwin Douglas Declares Cor- onation Breeches Were Put on Wrong.

(By PAUL LAMBETH.)

LONDON, Aug. 5.—There is a growing belief the constant chatter and discussion about increasing the navy are due to the clever press agency of men who are interested in ship building. Hence the public are not so easily alarmed at the stories about threatened invasion of England as they were formerly.

Speaking of the details of his scheme of imperial defense, Sir Joseph Ward says:

Under such a scheme there should be no question whatever as to the capability of the empire to maintain a two-power standard, and I believe it could do so for a long time. The question of the construction of a dreadnaught or two would be a comparatively small matter. I believe that the combined empire could without any great expense build a fleet of ships if necessary than a separate portion of it could, under existing conditions, provide one or two. Under such a system the Government could, by raising a fund for the replacement of all ships in, say, fifteen or twenty years, which is estimated to be the average life of a modern battleship, keep the fleet of the empire ever joined in such a system, and with representatives of the people in such a parliament, thereby having voice, though that of England would rightly be the dominant voice, would enable the ideals and aspirations of those overseas dominions which now support a local navy policy, practically to be taken into account in the decision on ideas provided for under a system by which they would be part owners and in the control and disposition of what they and their representatives they would have a say.

Sir Thomas Andros De Le Rue, founder of the firm of art publishers and manufacturers of postage stamps and playing cards, who died recently aged 62, left estate of great value.

In his will he directed that his remains were to be cremated, but he did not desire that his ashes should be preserved nor any monument erected to his memory. He bequeathed $5000 to the Royal Hospital for Diseases of the Chest, City-road; $1250 each to St. George's and the London Fever hospital. He left a legacy for nearly every man and woman in his employment.

WAR ON PIGEONS

War has been declared throughout England against the pigeon, whose numbers have so increased as to constitute a plague.

In the Isle of Wight the other day 1000 guns were posted in covers, a very large bag being made; and in Essex and other parts of the country similar battues have been organized.

The reason for this slaughter is the damage done by the birds to crops. A full-grown bird has been known to devour its weight in grain in a day. It is especially during seed time and harvest time that their depredations are most apparent. They devour fruit, and spoil more than they eat. They will ever invade gardens, and pull to pieces the choicest flowers.

MEMORIAL TO PENN

The memorial to William Penn, which the Pennsylvania Society of New York is placing in the Church of All Hallows, has arrived. It is a large oblong bronze tablet with a decorative border. The inscription, written by Archdeacon Nelson of New York, reads thus:

"In Memory of William Penn, Baptised in this Church October 23, A. D. 1664. Proprietary Founder and Governor of Pennsylvania. Exemplar of Brotherhood and Peace. Law-giver. Lover of Mankind. 'I shall not usurp the right of any, or oppress his person. God has furnished me with a better resolution and has given me His Grace to keep it.' This tablet is erected by The Pennsylvania Society of New York. A. D. 1911."

AS TO BREECHEES

Edwin Douglas, in a letter to a newspaper, says the notices in looking at the numerous coronation photographs "knew only one of the peers represented" (knew how to put his breeches on; that is, the late Lord Stotford, who was the only peer in the place—at the front, not at the back). "This," adds Douglas, "may seem a small matter but the late King did not know how to put his breeches on with the late Lord Stotford, R. A., when King Edward then Prince of Wales, called to see a full length portrait. The Prince at once said to the painter, 'I don't know how to put on my breeches.' 'It is all wrong; you have not got your breeches on right,' the fact being that the painter was ignorant to Mr. Holl and put on by his master."

A man named Simpson living at Stourbridge was proceeded against for refusing to contribute towards the maintenance of his mother-in-law. He refused to contribute, he said he hoped, if he lived to die, that his arm would drop off. His arms became paralyzed a month later.

The arrangement for the transfer of the business of the National Telephone Company to the State, which will have control of the system after this year, were explained in the House of Commons by the Postmaster-General. It is a business which represents $50,000,000 capital, and employs 100,000 men and women. In the past ten years, he said, the number of telephones had grown from 200,000 to 600,000. "And my view and the view of the department is that telephoning is still in its infancy. Later on an additional four millions of money will be asked for telephone development. There is one section of the public following the taking over of the National Telephone Company's concern and staff with the liveliest interest and that is the section of the public which has performed a defense committee for the purpose of looking out for the staff.

PEARL HARBOR TO BE GREAT FORT

New Gibraltar Will Be Made of Port in Hawaiian Islands.

"Cross Roads" of Western Ocean to Be Well Guarded.

HONOLULU, Aug. 5.—The Hawaiian Islands are being rapidly fortified and equipped to be one of the principal if not the chief naval station of the United States.

Farthest from mainland of all islands on earth, these islands are in the center of the Pacific ocean, where the lines of travel from American to Australia and the Orient meet and where the great sweep of commerce which will mark the opening of the Panama canal will pass. The government at Washington, more awake to existing conditions and necessities than are the people at large, has planned that Hawaii shall be our great westward defense and that Pearl Harbor shall be made the Gibraltar of the Pacific.

Much work has already been accomplished to that end. Honolulu, on the island of Oahu, the largest city and principal port of the islands, is the busy center of construction of permanent defenses by the army and navy. Six miles from Honolulu harbor is Pearl River bar, through which a channel is now being dredged to a minimum depth of 25 feet and width of 600 feet. Within Pearl Harbor gives deep waters, varying from 30 to 120 feet, divided into three locks or bays, between peninsulas, in which all the naval vessels of the United States could be anchored and many more besides.

FAST DRY DOCK BEING BUILT.

At the head of the river, where the locks open, about two miles from the bar, a great dry dock is being constructed which will accommodate two of the largest men of war.

These works will be supplemented by the erection of such structures as will complete a first class navy yard and station, such as machine shops, barracks for men, officers' quarters, storehouses, and other buildings, including a fine hospital. Batteries will also be erected. In fact, Pearl Harbor will be practically a part of Fort Kamehameha. The great guns for the batteries opposite to the entrance of the channel are already here. For about six miles on either side of Honolulu harbor the shore will bristle with guns. Between Pearl Harbor and Honolulu is Fort Shafter, embracing a reservation of 17,000 acres.

At the entrance of Honolulu harbor is Fort Armstrong, where a dock will be built for torpedo boats and buildings for the storage of mines, etc. Batteries will be placed across the channel and at various points to prevent the landing of a hostile force.

EXTINCT VOLCANO A GREAT FORT.

East of Fort Armstrong is the camp of the marines, and some three miles further east is Fort De Russay, while still east beyond that is Fort Burger, back of Diamond Head, the great promontory formed by an extinct volcano. Through its inner rock galleries have been tunneled for various purposes. In fact, the entire volcano is a military reservation into which admittance is with difficulty obtained. On the high plateau back of Pearl Harbor is another government reservation at Lohia, called Schofield barracks, where at present the Fifth cavalry is stationed.

When all works are completed, it is expected that an aggregate of 6000 men will be stationed here, making Honolulu one of the most effective naval and military stations in the world and affording ample protection alike to our merchant marine and to the mainland. Perhaps the most efficient work in this direction, of this great fortress will be in the fact of its existence.

IN TOUCH WITH MAINLAND.

The islands, eight in number, are all connected by wireless, and by cable from Honolulu to San Francisco, and are so in touch with the mainland that one is "not out of the world" here. Situated at the "crossroads of the Pacific," Honolulu is the port of most of the lines of magnificent steamers which ply its waters, while other craft of every description are always to be seen at its commodious wharves. Naturally, its commerce is large, largely increased since the completion of the ship canal, and destined to an immense development when the Panama canal is finished.

The diverse attractions of the different islands are many, from Kaula, the northern island, the "garden spot of the earth," to Hawaii, the southernmost and largest, where tower the twin mountains, Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa. On quite a third of the latter, 4000 feet up, is the active volcano, one of the wonders of the world. And in all the islands are extinct volcanoes, grim precipices, picturesque mountains, and also scenes of pastoral beauty, thousands of acres of sugar cane, and pineapple plantations and rice fields, with villages interspersed amid the greenery, with fringed palms and coconut and papaya groves and wonderful fern trees and many other scenes strange to northern sight.

ATTACK PEERS.

TOKYO, Aug. 5.—A vehement attack has been made on the Japanese Peers by Mr. Suenobu, a well-known business man notorious for his strong opinions. A charity association is being formed to collect $12,500,000 with a view to the relief of extreme poverty and sickness. The Emperor of Japan has the last with $500,000, but although commoners have subscribed, well-known titled people have abstained from giving money. Mr. Suenobu and General Nogai received $10,000 to $15,000 a year, noblemen have been beginning of the century, and these were the men who called themselves the bulwark of the throne.

FOR FOREIGNERS IN GERMANY.

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—Dr. Bollinger has enabled the University of Berlin to found a German institute for foreigners with special objects, such as teaching German lectures and German literature and culture generally. Rooms are to be provided for in the building that contains the Roosevelt room of the American institute.

DEPOSITS INCREASE.

Banking and railway statistics for Ireland show that the deposits and cash balances in the joint banks at the close of December, 1910, stood at $275,000,000 as compared with the corresponding period in 1909 of $265,120,000.

AMERICAN STAGE IN FRONT, SAYS FISKE

LONDON, Aug. 5.—A number of prominent American theatrical folk who are wending their way homeward by the Lusitania, prominent among them being Lee Shubert, Charles Dillingham and Harrison Grey Fiske. Perhaps one of the most talked of London successes designed for America is Edward Knoblauch's Oriental play, "Kismet," which Fiske expects to produce either in the New Amsterdam or the Knickerbocker theater in December in conjunction with Klaw & Erlanger.

Mr. Fiske promises a production on a far larger scale than that in London, which is cramped for want of stage space. He is not much in love with the London production, which he says is spoiled by the actors, with the exception of Oscar Asche and the latter's wife, Lily Brayton through atrociously bad diction, causing a great deal of the play to be blurred.

Difficulty is being experienced by Mr. Fiske in selecting a man to play the principal part. He said he had received numerous written cabled applications from prominent actors, all wishing to play it, while nearly every actor in England who thinks he could play it suddenly declines a great long story to forsake London for New York.

If Fiske sees the matter in the same light, however, he has narrowed down the selection to three men, all Americans, and the final choice will be made shortly.

AMERICAN STAGE AHEAD.

"I think the English stage is, twenty-five years behind the stage of America," said Mr. Fiske. "One of the chief reasons for this is the actor-manager system, under which not only the limelight, but all the supporting actors, are obliged to focus on the actor-manager to the detriment of the play."

The only department of drama in which English actors excel is in drawing room plays, particularly where the scene is situated in Europe. English actors have much greater ease and charm of manner, which is only perfectly natural.

Harking back to "Kismet," Mr. Fiske thinks it will not conflict in any way with Robert Hichens' "Garden of Allah," which is to be produced by Tyler, he being a modern drama, while the other is a fantastic imaginative creation totally different.

Fiske also expects to produce in October a new comedy by Langdon Mitchell entitled "The New Marriage," the manuscript of which he has just received from Mitchell at Vichy. According to Fiske it is a play which treats of modern marriage in the smart set of New York, illustrating some of its mistakes and where many of the shoals and rocks of thoughtless matrimony lie.

PLAY BY HYACINTH'S SON.

The other play is by Paul Hyacinth Lyson, son of the celebrated Pere Hyacinth of Paris, which deals in the foreground with purely domestic matters, but in the background with a conflict between science and religion. It is called "The War of Souls," and has been produced in the Theatre Antoine at Paris. A translation is being made by Mrs. Randolph White, an American woman.

Lee Shubert got back to London this week after a European trip, visiting Paris, Berlin, Amsterdam and Munich. Among other things, he has secured for early production in New York, Shaw's piece, "Fanny's First Play," which has been running some time in a little theater. Granville Barker will go to New York to produce it.

TELLS REASONS.

Various conjectures have been made concerning the trouble between Pavlova and her handsome partner in the dance, and at length M. Mordkin has consented to give an interview in connection with his view of the real cause of this breach in fairyland. M. Mordkin is a married man and intensely devoted to his wife, whose stage name is Bronislava Fejtzkaja. She is a magnificent dancer and as one of the principal soloists of the ballet danced with great success at the Palace in 1910. This season Mme. Mordkin was under a new contract to appear at the Palace, and although, and perhaps because, she has had a greater success she appears to have found the situation intolerable to her and to have felt compelled to retire from the turn rather than continue to perform under her contract while her more famous competitor was performing there as a principal. Since then, not unnaturally, there has been rather more than a coolness between Mme. Pavlova and M. Mordkin, which has resulted in the bewildering scenes to be seen nightly at the close of their turn. M. Mordkin is naturally in thorough sympathy with his wife and speaks of the unkind treatment to which he considers both she and himself have been subjected. Such unfortunate differences must often happen, human nature being what it is, but it is pleasing to think that any disagreement which there may have been between these two great artists is of such a nature that one may hope the trouble will soon blow over.

AEROS HUNT OUT SUBMARINES.

CHESTERBOURG, Aug. 5.—Interesting tests of aeroplanes against submarine boats have been carried out here. The problem of the airman was to locate submerged boats from a height of 2600 feet over a radius of 3280 feet, the submarines being plunged 163 feet. Aviators Auburn and De Vettan located the boats and reported within a half hour.

BURNS' GRANDSON DIES.

GLASGOW, August 5.—The grandson of Robert Burns, James Glencairn Thompson, has died in Glasgow in his eighty-fourth year. Thompson, who was the son of Betty Burns, was unmarried. He lived nearly all his life in the suburbs of Glasgow, and his singing of Burns' songs were a feature of many social gatherings.

MEDICAL SOCIETY TO INVESTIGATE

English Physicians Will Make Inquiry Anent Spiritual Healing.

LONDON, August 5.—The healing of disease by spiritual means has been the subject of an inquiry by a representative sub-committee of the British Medical Association. The sub-committee's report is published by the British Medical Journal. First of all, as a means of getting a definition of the term "spiritual healing," inquiries were addressed to the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, Dr. Ryle (Dean of Westminster) and others. The replies showed that there was considerable difficulty in defining the difference between "spiritual healing" and other forms mentioned. The communications showed, however, that there was a general desire on the part of those interested in the matter for guidance on the technical side of the question.

After explaining the investigations made by the investigating sub-committee, the report states that the "modus operandi" adopted in "spiritual healing" consists in the laying on of hands and offering up of prayer by the "healer" in surroundings of a more or less impressive character. There was no evidence brought before the sub-committee which would "bear out" the contention often urged by so-called "spiritual healers" that a special "gift of healing" is possessed by them.

The summary of conclusions which the sub-committee arrived at is as follows: That there is no difference in kind between "spiritual healing" and other forms of "mental," "psychic" or "faith" healing.

That the essential factor in all forms of healing is mental suggestion, which has been used from remote periods, although more fully explained by modern psychology.

That there is abundant evidence of the efficacy of mental suggestion in the treatment of many disorders. No evidence has been forthcoming of any authenticated cure of organic disease.

That the benefits of hypnotic suggestion or waking suggestion can be obtained from qualified medical practitioners, whose training enables them to distinguish the conditions which are amenable to this kind of therapy from the conditions which should be dealt with by the other kinds of medical or surgical treatment.

That in accordance with the principle that for the protection of the public the diagnosis and treatment of diseases are best left in the hands of those whose training has fitted them for that calling, any formal co-operation of laymen and

PARDON GIVEN WOMAN WHO KILLED BRUTE

SINGAPORE, Aug. 5.—The petition for pardon, addressed to the Sultan of Selangor by Mrs. Proudlock, who was recently sentenced to death for shooting Mr. Steward, a mine manager, came before the Sultan on Saturday, the acting high commissioner of the Federated Malay States, has been granted. Mrs. Proudlock was tried at Kuala Lumpur, the chief town of Selangor, a British protectorate in Malay.

During her husband's absence it was proved Mr. Steward came to the house. He and Mrs. Proudlock were together on the veranda. Her case was that he attempted a gross outrage, and that in defense of her honor she used the revolver, not realizing exactly what she was doing.

NEXT RULERS OF EUROPE YOUNG

Nearly All of Them Minors, and Joyful Ones at That.

Czar's Son an Autocrat While Others Are Brought Up Like Humans.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—If a sudden wave of disaster were to sweep over Europe and carry off its reigning monarchs nearly all of their successors would be children, and one or two of them mere babies. Nurseries, nurses, governesses and tutors are now to be found in nearly every palace, and the sounds of children's laughter and flying feet live in royal homes, many of which are not by any means the happiest. Russia's heir is 4, Spain's is 4, Norway's is 5, Holland's is 2, Belgium's is 3, Italy's is 5, England's is 7.

England's heir, the Prince of Wales, is in his last year of childhood, having just attained his seventeenth year; in fact, he may be said to be on the border between childhood and manhood, for, according to royal prerogative, he comes of age next year, when he will have his own establishment and attendants.

Up to the time he was at Dartmouth naval college he seldom figured in public life, but since he left there he has come much more to the fore, and already he has taken part in some of the stirring events of this year in England. In June he was made a Knight of the Garter, the first ceremony in which he was the principal figure, and some four weeks after he was invested with his title of Prince of Wales, a ceremony nearly as ancient as the coronation itself. He is now "reading" for his entrance to one of the colleges at Oxford University—probably Christ Church—in the autumn. He is to spend a short time also at Cambridge University and then he will make a tour of the British empire with his brother, Prince Albert, after which he will enter the army.

OLAF OF NORWAY LIVES SIMPLY.

Prince Edward's first cousin, Olaf of Norway, is the most press-hounded and most photographed royal child in existence. He is also the heir to the youngest kingdom in Europe, his father, who began life as Prince Charles of Denmark, having been chosen by the Norwegian storting to be the first king of the country after its separation from Sweden in 1905. He then changed his name to Haakon, and his little son, who began life as Alexander, was renamed Olaf after the patron saint of Norway.

Olaf, though he is said to be not over intellectual, is such a bright and pretty child, so full of spirits, and so obviously delighted with everything wherever he goes that he is a tremendous favorite with the public both at home and abroad. He first went to Norway, a short-frooked baby of two his new subjects paid him so much attention and were so fond of kissing him that his mother was obliged to keep him in the palace grounds for a time.

CZAR'S HEIR HAS LARGE INCOME.

What a different atmosphere is that in which the little Czarowitz, heir of all the Russias, lives with his four sisters! The little Czarowitz, who made a most welcome appearance after his four sisters, six years ago, is the richest and most heavily-insured royal child. On the day he was born the state settled on him an annual income of $2,000,000, which is to cover all his expenses until he is 15, when a further allowance will be made.

As the future ruler over 130,000,000 people, the Czar holds the theory that his son should have his own way in everything, and the little Czarowitz lords it over his sisters and nurses in no uncertain fashion. If a favorite general or other friend of his comes up into his nursery to see him he turns to his sisters and orders them out of the room, and out they have to go.

ONLY HEIRESS TO A THRONE.

Little Princess Paulina of Holland enjoys the position of being the only direct "heirress" to a throne. She is always called "the child of hope," as she delayed her coming for such a long while that the royal Hollanders were beginning to be afraid that the throne would pass to a distant cousin of their queen. Great, therefore, was the excitement when she put in her appearance two years ago, and although she has not arrived at the stage of saying quaint things, yet every event in her life is chronicled minutely. Her first tooth occupied paragraphs in every Dutch paper, and crowds await her daily walk when she is in attendance with her parents in Amsterdam.

ANTISEPTIC RULES IN BELGIUM.

When she is old enough to realize the delight of companionship—unless any more little brothers and sisters come to join her in the meantime—she will likely sometimes carry her little neighbors across the border, the children of the king and queen of the Belgians. The heir, Prince Leopold, is 9 years old, and his brother, Prince Charles, and sister, Princess Marie Jose, are 7 and 5, respectively.

Their mother, who has just returned from a trip to Egypt after her recent serious illness, studied medicine when young, and her children are brought up on strictly hygienic principles. No one is allowed to kiss them, and every one who enters the nursery is obliged to wrap himself in long white robes to prevent the possibility of germs coming in contact with the children. King Albert and his queen are extremely popular in Belgium, and the simple family life they lead is a welcome change after the unsavory domestic concerns of the late King Leopold.

HIGH PRICES FOR DOGS.

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—Not only in England and America, but in Germany fanciers pay high prices for dogs. At the recent exhibition of dogs at Cassel a Frenchman offered 12,000 marks, about $2500, for a police dog. The dog rejoiced in the name of Tell, and the sum offered might be considered as conclusive evidence that "Tell" is worthy of his famous name, but this is not all. The dog belongs to Sergeant Decker, who refused the tempting offer, observing that his dog should not quit Germany at any price.

medical practitioners in the treatment of diseases is to be deprecated. All the benefits which may undoubtedly accrue from the assistance given to sick persons by the ministrations of the clergy in suitable cases may be obtained in a way which will not give rise to dangerous misunderstandings on the part of the public.

Many Noble Achievements Initiated by Men of the Types

(By EDWARD A. PHILLIPS.)

CONVENTIONS come and conventions go; and this bustling Western country has lately become the popular mecca for organized bodies representing every faith and fraternity, every art and association, every cause and every clique and creed and clan in which men and women are united for a common purpose. These gatherings of enthusiasts—political, social, artistic, industrial, commercial and religious—have come, have seen, have conquered, and have gone back home singing the praises of a people who, though perhaps not quite so wild nor half so woolly as they once were, are still chuck full and overflowing with the spirit of open-handed hospitality for the stranger within their gates.

But a convention is coming—yes, it's on the way—which will be by far the most important in lasting benefit for host and guest, for the community at large and for all concerned, that the history of California has ever known. On the 11th day of August, 1911, the Fifty-seventh Convention of the International Typographical Union will meet in San Francisco. When the presiding officer's gavel falls at the opening of the initial session there will be seen under one roof more ability, more intelligence, more class, character and calibre in a single body of men and women than has ever been mustered in an assemblage of individuals whose forces are directed along a single line of humane endeavor.

WORKERS FOR COMMON GOOD.

If, to the general reader, this language seems tainted with exaggeration, his attention is invited to the facts, which will be found to justify it to the fullest. All over this world, in ages past and in days present, well-meaning men and women have given and are giving their time, their thought, their lives, to noble causes. But it must be borne in mind that enthusiasm and sacrifice are not alone sufficient for the furtherance of worthy objects, for the routing of injustice, the dethronement of selfishness, the successful grappling with the giant Greed whose clutch is at the throats of the toiling masses. Ethicalism may boll and fume and fret and howl itself hoarse, but the cause languishes; sorrow, suffering, starvation may offer up their plaint, to fall on deaf ears; protest may take the form of raucous ribaldry and rampant rebellion against real or fancied wrongs, but the wrongs are not righted—Might remains in the saddle.

Men who will have much to do in making the International Typographical Convention a notable success or in entertaining the delegates

The only remedy for existing industrial evils lies in the union of clear, well-balanced brains and honest, enthusiastic hearts, so that intelligence, reason and common sense may direct the energies of right against the battlements of iniquity and the trenched wrong. The International Typographical Union was the first great world organization to recognize this all-important fact and to keep it constantly in view. Thus, while ranters raged and short-sighted combinations of wronged men dissipated their bolsters, though impotent, energies to the four winds, this quiet, clear-headed, careful thinking organization, arraying its membership under the banner of Human Justice, proceeded to concentrate its forces against the point where they promised to be most effective, with the result that every step taken by the Typographical Union since the day of its organization has been a step forward, a step in the line of progress, a step toward the coming day

CHILD LABOR CRUSADE.

It was the voice of the International Typographical Union that first called a halt on the unspeakably cruel crime of child labor. It was the first voice that was pitched to a key of earnestness which forced the heartless exploiters of children to hear and to heed. It was that voice, clear and calm, though unmistakable in its meaning, and not to be denied in its demand, that struck fear to the heart of the factory fiend and lifted the burdens from the bent backs of thousands of little slaves. If society had nothing else for which to thank the great printers' organization, every humane citizen of the civilized world should yield to it a full measure of gratitude for the courageous and intelligent initiative with which it declared and carried out its successful warfare against this greatest industrial outrage of the twentieth century. The union printer, in his associated capacity, has demonstrated to the world that, with a cause that is just and an agent who is capable, no power on earth can long impede the steady advance toward perfect social and industrial conditions. He believes, first, in getting himself strong; second, in enlisting only in enterprises that are right, and thirdly, in so bearing himself as to win the approval of every friend of humanity. No man can fail to admire the manner in which every member of this great organization makes the cause of every other member his very own. In or out of "the shop," it is the first object and purpose of his life to see to it that absolute justice—no more, no less—is meted out to each individual brother union man. Nor is it for the present alone that he provides. At Colorado Springs, Colorado, the Union Printers' Home, the most perfectly appointed and the most efficiently managed institution of its kind in the world, waits to welcome every printer who is weary of the world's work, stricken in years, or rendered incapable of continuing the fight by reason of illness, or accident, or other cause; there to offer him a retreat which he has himself helped to provide, a retreat with no suggestion of "charity," where he finds sylvan solitudes for his hours of meditation, old and congenial friends for his times of social intercourse, books for the solace of his mind, games and pastimes for his diversions, everything that interested ingenuity has been able to devise to bring comfort and content to his declining days. Thus, keeping himself thoroughly equipped for the fight, while it lasts, and sure of a haven of rest when the time comes for him to lay down his arms, the union printer stands before the world today an example of undaunted courage in the present and of wise forethought for the future which challenges respect and commands admiration.

Warm Welcome Ahead For Hundreds of Delegates

GRAPPLING WITH WHITE PLAGUE.

The all but hopeless attitude of the medical world, only a few years ago, in face of the onward march of the great white plague, did not deter the Typographical Union from grappling with this dread enemy of all mankind. Far from it. Unting common sense with the latest and best scientific knowledge, the organization, at its Home at Colorado Springs, established a system for the treatment of tuberculosis which has not only won the astonished approval of the advanced medical world, but has furnished a model which is being patterned after by philanthropic institutions in every corner of the earth. In this branch of humane endeavor alone the Typographical Union has won the gratitude of thousands upon thousands of pain-racked sufferers in every land, and has emphasized its determination to lead, rather than follow, wherever the good of mankind is the goal.

In the work of securing effective legislation for the provision of the best san-

A FEW OF THE BALLET DANCERS
IDORA.

ORPHEUM

Orpheum patrons are so familiar with the histrionic worth of the distinguished character, William H. Thompson, who comes today for the week only, that they are sure of a dramatic treat when he appears. Of all the playlets he has offered in vaudeville, none has shown a finer quality and given Mr. Thompson greater scope for his skill than "The Wise Rabbi," in which he is now appearing. The play is the work of the able actor-dramatist, Leo Dietrichstein, whose "The Bishop" was a dramatic triumph in New York last season. Mr. Thompson has surrounded himself with a splendid company and has given this little drama a splendid production. That patrons of the Orpheum will find in it a most enjoyable play in the miniature there is no doubt.

In the role of "The Wise Rabbi," Mr. Thompson has a character that is reminiscent of "The Bishop" and the Cardinal in "The Royal Family," in which two of the finest performances of Mr. Thompson's brilliant career were seen.

There could be no more fitting role for Dan Burke than that of the Dancing Master, which will be his with the Wonder Girls at the Orpheum this week. Burke is one of the grand old men of the stage. Not so old in years but in point of service, yet he dances today with an agility, elasticity and grace that is not equalled by the newer school. By his dancing, one is carried out of one's self as by a fascinating tune, a charming poem, or a beautiful painting. And the Wonder Girls are apt pupils. With the assistance of these girls and Molly Miller, Burke offers a dancing novelty that is a joy to behold. The girls are attractive, the setting (a scene at Lake Winnepesaukee) makes a fascinating picture, and the costumes are exquisite. In the number the girls take turns with their toes as an accompaniment to Burke's dancing. It is primarily a dancing act but of no little importance is the scenic effects.

Fay, Coleys and Fay, who return for a week, present a novel blackface act, "From Uncle Tom to Vaudeville." The four present members of an Uncle Tom's Cabin troupe stranded in a small town, and they congregate to prop up a novel blackface act. In this situation with its funny possibilities they introduce comedy and harmony singing and clever dancing. A merry quartette they are indeed. All the fun and frolic of complete minstrel show are crowded into a few minutes. The men are both comedians "to the manor born." The girls, in their blackface make-up, look pretty both in spite and because of it. They play the piano and sing. The act is one of the most popular and jolliest features of that stellar organization. This season they have many new songs and witticisms.

Florence Flaxman, a singer with a magnificent voice, will render operatic selections and ballads in delightful style. She embodies five feet of harmony and is known as "the cutest prima donna in the world."

The Lorch family, which is creating a sensation with its remarkable acrobatic work, will be retained on the bill for another week.

The amusing farce comedy, "Other People's Money," will continue to be presented by Gerald Griffin and his company of clever players.

Clifford Walker, the English entertainer, will offer his delightful and artistic character songs and recitations.

STANLEY DEWOLF McDONOUGH.

BELL

Pretentious indeed is the vaudeville program which the Bell will present during the week, beginning at the matinee this afternoon. Sullivan and Conside are sending this popular theater a collection of acts which, it is said, rank high in the profession, and there is not a specialty on the bill that has not achieved some deserved reputation.

"Superstition" will be the headline act. Charles W. Bowser & Co. will appear in this great comedy drama. The scene is laid in the office of a fortune teller, where a politician calls to receive some advice. The plot starts immediately and the situations are a series of surprises. There is not a moment when the story is not gripping or eased with comedy. In fact "Superstition" will be the most talked about thing theatrically in Oakland this week.

Spencer Kelly and Marion Wilder figure in a singing act that has been acclaimed one of the highest class acts of its caliber on the circuit. Miss Wilder's voice is a soprano, while Kelly boasts a clear resonant baritone. Solos and duets are both contributed by this clever pair. "The Bill Foster and the Living Lithographs" will prove a positive novelty. It is an original acrobatic pantomime by the Franco troupe. Real old pantomime is almost a lost art, but the Franco troupe has revived it and in this original offering they have an act that will please everybody. The Three Brownies, another attraction, are young men who are fast and clever with their feet. They are said to be familiar with every dancing step that has been evolved and one may look for something a bit further along than any before presented when this trio get to working. From the English music halls come "Emerald and Dupree in 'A Hot Scotch.'" This is one of those combinations of drollery and melody with 100 per cent joy games.

The Dumond Duo, another of those welcome Italian street singer combinations will naturally prove a big attraction for the Bell patrons seem to be particularly partial to this class of an act. Needless to say these two in their characteristic street costumes will delight with their tuneful melodies and harmonious songs. For good measure two or more new motion pictures will be shown.

IDORA PARK

IDORA Park's long list of attractions, both free and otherwise, for the week beginning with today, should satisfy the appetites of every degree of pleasure seeker. With Ferullo's superb Italian band, music lovers are given a rare treat every afternoon and evening. Then there is the free extravaganza with its thirty girls and beautiful scenic and costume effects. Beside this there will be a revival of "Pharos," the musical extravaganza of Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, which scored such a hit two weeks ago. Hundreds of requests have come in for a repetition, for during the week it was first produced bad weather kept many patrons away. The management has decided to again produce the tuneful operetta for the first part of next week. The cast will be the same as in the original production. A "Polles Revue," containing many new popular songs with scenic and costume effects and embracing the entire strength of the company will take the place of the popular "Mid-Summer Revue."

Since the arrival of Ferullo and his great Italian band last Tuesday, every afternoon and evening concert has been largely attended by enthusiastic music lovers. No band which has played at IDORA enjoys a wider popularity than this famous organization. With Ferullo this year are two vocalists, Mons. Bernad Bogue and Mme. Marie Begue, from the Metropolitan Opera House of New York. Their solos and duets from the well known operas are one of the charming features of every concert.

Around the grounds the various concessions continue to supply entertainment. The "Tease," the latest riding device is one of the most popular of the thrillers.

Well pleased with the success of its grand opera venture last season, IDORA Park management has completed arrangements for the presentation of grand opera this season on a far more elaborate scale than heretofore.

General Manager B. L. York has contracted with the Lombardi Grand Opera Company, and beginning on Sunday, August 20, the well known organization will inaugurate a six weeks' engagement at the big amusement park in Oakland.

It is claimed that the Lombardi company this season is a far stronger organization than ever visited the Pacific coast before. Although some of the artists are familiar to local opera goers, many of the singers who will appear with the company this year will make their initial Pacific coast bow. The six weeks' engagement at IDORA will be the first time the San Francisco music lovers to hear grand opera this season, as Lombardi is not booked in to the Golden Gate city.

There eighty people in the cast and orchestra, the principals are: Soprano—Elvira Bosetti (dramatic), Emilia Leovalli (lyric), Lydia Levy (coloratura), Moni Luisa Cecchetti and Adelcis Giana (mezzo). Tenors—Agostino Guarnieri (lyric); Manuel Salazar (lyric-dramatic); and Aristide Neri (dramatic). Baritone—Michela Giovacchini (dramatic), Angelo Antella (lyric dramatic), and Signor Bugamelli (lyric). Basses—Buonaventura Maroo and Alceste Mori.

Maestros—Chevalier Fulgenzio Guerrieri, Sig. Luigi Cecchetti and Sig. Mario Hediger. Stage director—H. Petrovich. The repertoire to be presented during the six weeks' engagement is an imposing one and contains a number of operas which will be heard for the first time at popular prices. They are as follows: Madame Butterfly, Manon, Thais, Samson and Delilah, Barber of Seville, La Gioconda, Norma, Carmen, Mignon, Othello, La Boheme, La Tosca, Aida, Lucia, Fedora, Cavalleria Rusticana, Faust, Pagliacci, La Traviata and a number of others.

MACDONOUGH

"The Aviator," which has been a laughing success all week at the last time at the Sunday matinee and evening performances. Landers Stevens and his company have been scoring emphatically in this great Cohan & Harris success.

On Monday night, by universal request, Stevens will offer a stupendous revival of "Alphonse Daudet's masterpiece, 'Sapho.'" This play has never before been presented at MacDonough and it is sure to attract big audiences. A most lavish production is promised, and the scenic Investure will be elaborate to an extreme. "Sapho" affords a pretty instance of paternal solicitude, for Daudet's main purpose in writing the play was to furnish his son with a warning against a woman's wiles. To make the object lesson impress the immature mind, the great dramatist drew it in strong colors but not of sufficient strength to shock any but the ultra-prudish. There is nothing in that to offend moral fastidious and mechanically it is as fine a play as has ever been given to the stage.

It tells of the joys and sorrows of Fanny Le Grande and Jean Gaussin by their mutual infatuation. When they first meet she is a sophisticated woman of Paris and he is a bashful and awkward youth from the country. The play is largely made up of his struggles to cover their relations and her efforts to maintain it. They are much at cross purposes as he realizes that by clinging to her he is ruining his career and she feels in losing him she will be losing all.

As Jean, Landers Stevens will have a role that will fit him ideally. The shades of the character are especially adapted to his acting methods. George Cooper should shine to especial advantage as Fanny. The others of the strong company will be most congenially bestowed.

ALCAZAR

"Arms and the Man," with which Richard Bennett's third week at the Alcazar will be opened next Monday evening, was written by George Bernard Shaw, smasher of popular myths. Mercilessly satirizing militarism and hero-worship, it aptly proved the aptness of James Huneker's description of Shaw, "Jester to the cosmos and the most serious man on the planet."

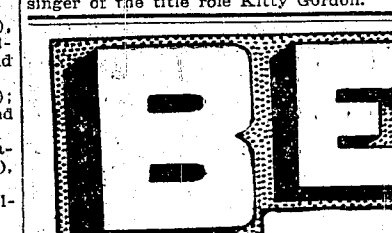

Throughout the three acts the play bristles with rapier-like wit and bland sarcasm, ridiculing war as an institution and playing tag with conventional ideals of human bravery. That it is admirably adapted to the stage use has been variously demonstrated. It was one of the late Richard Mansfield's most profitable starring vehicles, its story forms the libretto of "The Chocolate Soldier," an exceptional successful comic opera, and its revival last season in London was one of the few winning theatrical ventures. All of which was owing to its possession of dramatic elements that the majority of Shaw's other plays lack. In addition to its rare literary worth, "Arms and the Man" is rich in unique characterization, brisk action, tense situations and picturesque pictorial embellishment.

Eastern Dramatic Notes

(By JAMES GRANT THURSTON.) NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The mania for theater building has revived. Although there are 115 houses of amusement in this city, ten more are contemplated or under way. Where they expect to get business from is a mystery.

What may prove to be Victor Herbert's masterpiece is the new opera to be produced by Joseph M. Galters early next season. The title of the opera is "The Enchantress."

Mr. Galters secured as the star and the singer of the title role Kitty Gordon.

The book of the new opera is by Fred DeGresac and Harry B. Smith. The story is that of a young king against whose throne conspirators are plotting. She, however, upsets the scheme by falling in love with the king.

Announcement was made last week by Henry W. Savage of the engagement of Thomas H. Chambers for the baritone part of Jake Wallace in the Puccini grand opera, "The Girl of the Golden West." Mr. Savage heard Mr. Chambers sing in Milan and at once recognized in him his ideal for the baritone role of the camp minstrel.

Mr. Chambers is a native of this city, and it was from local teachers that he received the greater part of his training. He is remembered as the baritone of the Church of the Ascension, as Valentine in "Faust" in 1907. He has appeared in all of the well-known operas abroad.

Hubert Henry Davies, the English playwright, author of "The Mollusc," "Cousin Kate," "Mrs. Goring's Necklaces" and other sprightly comedies of English life, sailed for this city from Liverpool on August 9 in response to an invitation from John Drew, whose guest Mr. Davies will be at East Hampton, America until the first performance of his new play, "A Single Man," in which John Drew will appear at the Empire Theater September 4.

It was in this theater thirteen years ago that Hubert Henry Davies had his first play produced. As a one-act play, "Mrs. Goring's Necklaces" since then made famous as an entire evening's bill by Charles Wyndham—was performed by the students of the Empire School of Acting. The single performance of that one-act piece was the sum of Mr. Davies' struggle of eight years for recognition in America as a playwright.

Advertisement by a firm of auctioneers of a sale of "the magnificent furnishings of the apartment in Riverside Drive, lately occupied by Miss Billie Burke," filled the soul of Miss Burke with horror. "Miss Burke, who was in San Francisco, sent a wire to her business manager, assuring him that she was not selling any of her effects at auction or otherwise."

For two months last winter she rented a furnished apartment in Riverside Drive, and it is the furnishings of this flat which are offered for sale.

Robert E. Irwin has undertaken the management of the Irish tenor, Fiske O'Hara, whom he will present next season in a new place by Theo. Sayre, entitled "Love's Young Dream," founded on the poem by Tom Moore.

Mr. O'Hara has been favorably known as a star for the past six seasons. He first attracted attention while with "The Bostonians."

J. C. Williamson, the Australian theatrical magnate, arrived here last week on one of his regular pilgrimages to this city.

On this occasion Mr. Williamson is Brooklyn is to have another theater. Plans were filed for a showhouse at Broadway and Varet street. It will be 40 by 90. If the plans are approved work will be started at once. The building will cost about $60,000.

William J. Burles, formerly of Port Richmond, E. I., now living on his Virginia plantation, came here recently to look over plans for a theater which he contemplates building at Richmond Terrace and Ferry street, Port Richmond, Staten Island. The architects plans have been ready for some time and estimates will shortly be received. It is expected that the theater will cost $75,000. Staten Island is now a part of New York City. It has no real theater, although it has a big population.

Plans have been filed for a three-story fire-proof theater for the Delancey Amusement Company, of which Marcus Loew is president, at Delancey and Suffolk streets. It will have a frontage of eighty-six feet on the former street by 125 on the latter. The house will have seating accommodations for 2111 and cost $200,000.

IS MORGAN'S STOLEN DUCHESS A REPLICA

J.P. MORGAN, THE OWNER OF THE DUCHESS

A NEWLY DISCOVERED PORTRAIT BY GAINSBOROUGH OF QUEEN CHARLOTTE

MRS. SIDDONS BY GAINSBOROUGH

THE 'STOLEN DUCHESS' OF DEVONSHIRE

NO PAINTING ancient or modern has had a more romantic and interesting career or history than Thomas Gainsborough's famous portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire. And now from London comes a story which adds another chapter to the extraordinary adventures of this noted picture.

The news in question is to the effect that "the Stolen Duchess," which is at present owned by J. Pierpont Morgan, is only a replica, begun by Gainsborough, finished by Lawrence, and repeatedly restored and retouched by other hands. Mr. Morgan's picture is supposed to represent Georgiana, daughter of the fifth Earl Spencer and first wife of the fifth Duke of Devonshire. The "Stolen Duchess" first turned up in the possession of an old schoolmistress, from whom it was bought in 1841 by John Bentley for a trifling sum. At that time it had been cut down to fit a place over a chimney-piece. From Mr. Bentley the picture passed to Wynn Ellis, at whose death it was sold at Christie's in 1875 for the then sensational price of 10,100 guineas, (about $55,025). The purchasers were Messrs. Agnew.

During the night of May 25, 1876, unknown hands cut the picture out of its frame and removed it from the Bond street galleries of that firm.

The theft of the Gainsborough portrait was the sensation of the time. Huge rewards were offered, mounting month by month as hope receded, to the sum of $50,000. The police of every city in Europe and America were on the alert. Engravings of the picture were sent to every known art dealer.

But not a trace of the lost treasure could be found. No reward seemed to tempt the robbers. Finally it was decided that in some way the picture had been accidentally destroyed. Eminent artists were commissioned to reproduce the portrait, and at last the original was forgotten, except by those who had owned it.

TEN YEARS IN OBSCURITY.

Not a whisper was heard of it for ten years. In 1886 Joseph Elliott, a noted criminal was arrested in Peekskill, N. Y., for passing a forged check for $54,000. He sent for W. A. Pinkerton, and astounded him by telling him that the lost Gainsborough was still in existence, and in America. He offered to have it returned if the detective would obtain his freedom. Mr. Pinkerton refused, but obtained the man's story of the crime.

Among Mr. Pinkerton's acquaintances was "Pat" Sheedy, a well known New York gambler and "Sporting Man" whose acquaintance in the underworld was extensive.

Mr. Pinkerton told Mr. Sheedy Elliott's story and asked him to keep it in mind during his travels in the hope that he might run across a clue. Sheedy agreed to do this, and while at Monte Carlo some two years later he met the man who was still in control of the picture, which he agreed to restore to the original owners through Sheedy for a suitable reward.

After considerable negotiations Mr. Morland Agnew, son of the original owner of the picture, proceeded to Chicago in 1901, and was handed "the long-lost treasure at the Auditorium Hotel in that city."

The picture, subsequently exhibited, met with sensational success and was acquired, it is said, for 25,000 pounds (about $100,000) by its present owner, J. Pierpont Morgan.

Carefully guarded in Splink Gallery, London, there is at present on exhibition, a picture which is now brought forward as the true and original Gainsborough portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire.

It is practically identical with the "stolen Duchess," but the canvas is complete, comprising the portions which were cut off from "the stolen Duchess."

In the course of its romantic vicissitudes, its claims to be the original "Duchess" by Gainsborough are set forth in a long document, dated London, July 16, 1873, and signed "John Foster of Sydney, Australia."

Mr. Foster asserts that the portrait represents, not Georgiana, the first wife of the Duke of Devonshire, but Lady Elizabeth Harvey, second wife of the Duke. Mr. Foster's declaration goes on:

CONFIDENCE IN MEMORY.

"I hereby state with unwavering confidence in my memory as to all facts and circumstances related by me, that I first saw the said picture in London about the year 1859, when my father showed it to me as the portrait of the late Duchess of Devonshire, who died about sixteen years previously, and who was a very kind friend and patron of his, and who had given him this picture as a keepsake which he was never to part with during his life."

According to Mr. Foster, his father told him the picture was painted by Gainsborough about 1778 for the Dutchess, who had seen and admired a picture by Gainsborough of another Duchess of Devonshire in that year. It is suggested that the Gainsborough "Duchess" thus referred to was that painter's well-known portrait now preserved in the Althorp Gallery.

Mr. Foster's declaration goes on to say that when Gainsborough completed the portrait, he was so pleased with it that he determined to keep a copy on the mantelpiece of modern copy the whole length of the canvas, which he begged permission to be allowed to exhibit, but this copy he never finished.

and only painted the figure, leaving the background in a sketchy condition. He never exhibited the replica.

Now comes the most significant part of this astonishing story.

"When my father was quite young," continues Mr. Foster's statement, "he was applied to by Sir Thomas Lawrence for permission to see the picture which belonged to him, Lawrence having been told by Elizabeth, wife of William, Fifth Duke of Devonshire, that she had sat for the original to Gainsborough before she was married, and that she had given it to my father, who would doubtless have let him see it to paint from and renovate a replica for a gentleman who had bought one either from Gainsborough or at a sale after Gainsborough's death."

PALE AND FADED.

Lawrence remarked that the face of the replica was evidently pale and faded and he must restore the color to it, which he certainly did, for he gave the cheeks and lips a bright hue, like the effect of artificial paint on a natural face. Since that time the replica of the picture has been frequently cleaned and restored, and further slight reductions were made in its dimensions. This replica was seen by my father in the house of Mr. Bentley. The picture was restored about the year 1838, when it had undergone many changes since it was shown in the untouched condition in which it was left by Gainsborough.

The supposed original was left to Mr. Foster in 1859 by his father, who on his deathbed communicated to him the secret concerning its birth and parentage, which threw considerable light on the reason for this picture having been given him.

Of Gainsborough's 300 paintings, 320 are portraits. These portraits are distinguished for their noble and refined grace; they express almost invariably the moment of unconscious rest.

They interpret the winning personality of the individual rather than such intellectual qualities as those suggested by Reynolds. Often faulty in drawing, the artist charms us by his color, which is cool, fresh, and transparent, the tones seem to follow each other like the chords of an instrument, without the slightest intonation of separation, always fading away into a background of dreamy atmosphere. "The Blue Boy" is considered his greatest work; it hangs in the Grosvenor Gallery, London. The portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire although considered a good example of the artist's work has never, as some might suppose, been regarded as his best.

Man of the Glacial Period Is Known to Us

"In recent years our knowledge of the human inhabitants of Europe during the glacial period has increased rapidly," says Dr. A. Kertel in the "Royal London News." "It is over fifty years since the first trace of him was found at Neanderthal, in South Germany; before that, although it is only recently we have got to know the fact, he had been found in Gibraltar; the skull then found, on the whole the most perfect yet discovered, is in the collection of the Royal College of Surgeons in England. In recent years three wonderfully instructive skeletons have been found in the south-west of France, in the valley of the Dordogne, and have attracted much attention. Remains of the Neanderthal man have also been found in Belgium—the famous skulls of Spy—and in the south-east of Europe, at Krapina, in Croatia. And now, thanks to the researches of the Societe Jersalaise, remains of this race have been found in Jersey. In a cave in the cliffs of St. Eloi's Bay, on the south coast of the island, the hearth, his characteristic flint implements and his unmistakable teeth, have been discovered.

"A recently rich man must find occasionally, when proper investigations are made, that his remote ancestors are infinitely older and more respectable than he had formerly reason to believe. It is becoming more and more apparent that this is the case as regards modern man. The discovery of Galley Hill showed that our modern type was in existence in England soon after the glacial period had vanished—a period of several hundred of thousands of years. Glacial man is much older. His lower jaw, with a complete set of teeth, was found four years ago near Heidelberg, in a stratum which lay eighty-seven feet from the surface, and was mixed with remains of extinct animals.

"The age of the Heidelberg individual has been assigned to one of the first temperate interglacials which broke the prolonged period of intense cold in Europe. At so early a period—one which makes the age of the Galley Hill man a comparatively recent one—we expected, on the Darwinian theory, to find man in a transition stage, a man-ape or ape-man—a pithecanthropus. That conception has dominated the artist when he has sought to reproduce the form of the glacial European—or, to use a more strict geological term, Pleistocene man. A little over two years ago a graphic reconstruction of the man just described at La Chapelle-aux-Saints, appeared in these pages. The anthropologist and artist have pictured his mouth, his teeth, his nose, indeed the whole of the lower part of the face—very similar to the same parts in the gorilla. In representing his arms, his posture, his feet, legs, arms and skin, they have drawn largely on the same animal.

"When, however, a careful study has been made of his skull, his teeth and the bones of his body it becomes very evident that there was very little more of the ape in the Neanderthal type of man than in his modern representative. He had certainly, as may be seen from the drawing by Mr. Rostler, very striking peculiarities. His face was long, wide and heavy, with rather massive jaws, but his teeth, as regards their crowns, were no bigger or different in shape and size than we see now in many primitive native races. The eye sockets were loose, and the eyes seemed deeply set owing to the great overhanging, beetling forehead and the nose was wide, when my father showed it to me as the portrait of the late Duchess of Devonshire, who died about sixteen years previously, and who if one may judge from their shape, much in the same way as we use ours. He stood a little over five feet in height. There are no features in the bones of the lower limbs to suggest a posture of a manner of walking materially different from those of modern man.

"His mouth and tongue were larger than ours, and the lipless lips on the lower jaw for the muscles concerned in speech differ so markedly from those seen on the mandibles of modern man that we must conclude that, if speech were present, then it must have been of a primitive nature and different from the vocal articulation of modern man.

"Most of the remains of the Neanderthal man, like those recently found in Jersey, have been unearthed from the floors of caves, so that we have no means of judging what period of time may have elapsed since the remains were deposited there. In the case of the Heidelberg man, however, we have some grounds, and from the depth and nature of the strata some estimate can be formed of the extreme antiquity of the Neanderthal race. The layer on which he had been laid down by the action of running fresh water, until the deposit in which the Heidelberg man was embedded lay eighty-seven feet below the surface. The rate of deposit we have as yet no accurate means of estimating, but few geologists would assign a period of less than 500,000 years, and most would give a larger figure.

"It is becoming thus apparent that not only is modern man of great antiquity, but the earlier stages in the evolution of man have been passed through at a much earlier period of the earth's history than we had formerly any conception of. It must be remembered, too, that the glacial period extended through hundreds of thousands of years; so far as we know, the Neanderthal type persisted throughout the whole of that time in Europe. We must expect, however, to find much individual variation in so vast a period of time; race must have succeeded race, as has ever been the case among living things. Presently we shall be able to recognize the older and more primitive from the later and more evolved races of Neanderthal man."

Waiter by Making Art of Tipping, Collects $50,000

J. B. M'CREARY MAY BE NAMED WITH WILSON

J. B. M'CREARY of Kentucky, who has been mentioned as likely Democratic Vice-Presidential timber.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Juan Muller, maître d'hôtel at the Hotel La Salle, is the most to be envied head waiter in Chicago.

Juan is preparing to return to Switzerland, his native land, for the first time since he came to this country in 1886, with $50,000 in real money saved from "tips." Juan's ability for obtaining tips—not the ordinary kind of tips, which are virtually forced out of guests made indignant by the constant hovering of the waiter over their shoulders, but the real profit-producing tips which come from the guests' desire to get the "just-the-right-distance-away" attention—is pronounced abnormal.

The last mentioned species of tips is the kind Juan always went after. He has made a study of the art. It is in his profession, and his progress in the chosen line speaks for itself. Forty-six thousand dollars saved from tip earnings in Chicago hotels and $4000 saved in the same profession at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, is the extraordinary record of this phenomenal waiter.

THE WORK OF MOSSES

Agencies apparently so trivial as to be almost beneath notice have changed, and are now changing, the face of the earth. For instance, the mosses, which are not only a form of vegetation as moss may not only affect the aspect of a landscape, but may powerfully assist in giving a new character to a continent.

One of the surprising results of scientific investigation in Greenland is the indication of the wonderful work mosses are performing there. Where glaciers have melted, and the land is now a "dead," various species of mosses have found a foothold on them and gradually overspread them with a mantle of green. The amount of vegetable matter slowly deposited by these Greenland mosses is so considerable that it has been suggested that this deposit will be of great importance in the future history of that strange land.

It is known that in a past geological age Greenland was not the dreary, ice-sheeted continent that it is today, but a beautiful land, almost tropical in appearance and in some respects. And if, in the future, geological or astronomical causes should bring about a return to the former conditions, when Greenland was really green, the rich stores of vegetable matter now accumulating there through the growth of mosses amid the ice will give wealth to the soil of the Greenland continent. Harold's Weekly.

from the table it was not his plan of attack to make a record-breaking dash to pick up the water glass or peek under the ruffled napkin in search of a hidden pittance. This waiter never ceased his attentions upon the patrons the instant they exhibited signs of departure. His tact was to see that their street apparel was delivered with alacrity at just the psychological moment and that they did not flounder themselves over misplaced chairs on their way out.

As far as the guests could discern, a tip seemed the most remote object from Juan's mind. Of course, when they were well on their way and his service was no longer needed, Juan would steal momentarily over to the vacant table and be rewarded for his honest efforts. The tip would always be there in his case, and the amount of the recompense would inevitably make his less shrewd rivals green with envy.

The tipping system, which in many instances has degraded the true profession, causing a decrease in hotel receipts, is upheld by Muller.

STUDIES HUMAN NATURE.

"When I first went into the business," says Muller, "I made a thorough study of human nature. I took note of how other waiters made themselves disliked by patrons. I observed the scowl on men's faces and the look of irritation when a waiter persistently hovered about the table. That was a lesson I never forgot and the one which meant success for me.

"If there is any one thing more than another which makes a waiter successful, it is the ability to detect and ward off self-evident greedy intentions of a waiter who is constantly lifting up the water glass, shifting the dishes, smoothing out the wrinkles in the tablecloth, or at the immediate right of the diner, and making himself conspicuous and his wants evident. That kind of service never makes a hit; in any hotel, and while the waiter who practices it is sure to get a tip, it is small and a disgrace to the real profession.

"When a waiter has attended to the immediate desires of his guests he should disappear, vanish, make himself scarce, and don't mean that his duties are over. In fact, they have just begun. The idea of longer in existence so long as their desires are gratified; but the moment they show signs that service is needed the waiter should be on the spot.

"Human nature is the same the world over, and when a person thinks you are desirous to get his money he dislikes you, and in the waiting profession to have the good will of your patrons is essential to success.

HOW QUEEN MARY SPENDS HER DAY

LONDON.—Queen Mary spends as busy a day as most of her subjects.

The actual day's work begins when the queen comes into her writing room after breakfast. This is usually from 9:15 to 9:30. Carrying with her the large correspondence of the morning's post, she goes through it with two secretaries. The queen herself has usually opened the letters and glanced through them before breakfast. She dictates her replies to such letters as need answering, and then clears off the lot.

Then follow regularly interviews with the governess of the children, with the chief nurse, the housekeeper, and the heads of various departments at Buckingham palace. Probably her majesty is most busy with the children, and so she next sees the various trades people, and other folk of that kind whom she meets herself now and then until 1:30, when luncheon is taken.

Almost every afternoon when in town, a little shifting the dishes, smoothing out the wrinkles in the tablecloth, or at the immediate right of the diner, and making himself conspicuous and his wants evident. That kind of service never makes a hit; in any hotel, and while the waiter who practices it is sure to get a tip, it is small and a disgrace to the real profession.

great London companies, or some interesting spot in London.

After 5 o'clock tea, she usually again summons her secretaries, and after getting through the correspondence which has arrived since morning. Then, if she has arranged private interviews with any persons, apart from officials or tradesfolk, she takes these interviews before dinner time.

After dinner, her majesty's chief relaxation and delight is reading, which she does up to a rule, till about 10:30. Occasionally music forms a part of her pleasure between 9 and 10, but she does not play or sing as much as she used to do when younger, and reading or sewing seems to interest her most at night. As a rule, you may take it that 11 p. m. is the latest time the queen retires to sleep, and only state functions are allowed to interfere with that excellent time for retiring.

Every lady and gentleman of the royal household, every functionary, can be reached in a twinkling. Then there are, of course, private lines to Marlborough house, St. James palace, and York house. Even the school-room of Buckingham Palace is "on the wire."

There are three fifty-line switchboards in Buckingham Palace. Two are for the day service and one for the night service, and during the twenty-four hours the staff works in sections. The transfer of the lines from the day to the night service is accomplished by means of a change-over switch, either in the palace postoffice or the palace itself.

The queen possesses an extension from the switchboard to his private apartments, and in addition, His Majesty has a private exchange line to his own apartments. This is used for special communications of a private nature in connection with state affairs.

Queen Mary has a private line, an exchange line, to the latter fault Princess Mary also enjoys; she can converse with her parents or with the occupants of the schoolroom. Mrs. Sheel has a telephone in her sitting-room from which she can converse with Queen Mary or Queen Alexandra.

Her majesty seldom pays a visit to any institution without making it a "surprise" one. She likes to drop in quite unexpectedly and see for herself how things are done, and how the work is being carried out each day. She is most particular in getting the right sort of people on committees with which she is concerned; she often asks them herself to serve on it as a personal favor. She takes a firm stand against any charitable movement being used so as to pauperize the people for whom it is meant; she is always trying to help to help themselves.

The queen is a great believer in character, as against sentimental talk and feeling, and she will never pardon any popular head of the day, however enthusiastically it may be taken up, unless the fact be eminently sound and sensible.

OPERA IN LONDON

And Covent Garden calmly vigilant, "sits tight." In no capital in the world, except London, could such an opera house flourish.

Year after year, round and round it goes in its narrow and hackneyed repertory, from Verdi, "Rigoletto," "Macbeth," and "Aida," with rare excursions into "Otello"; from Puccini, "Bohème," "Tosca," "Butterfly," and now and doubtfully, "La Fanciulla"; from the French composers, "Faust," "Carmen," "Samson and Delilah," and "Louise"; from the German, in a lump at the beginning of the season, "Tristan," "Die Meistersinger" and the "Ring" operas. No pretentious opera house in the world has so circumspect and monotonous a repertory.

That repertory, moreover, exists primarily for the display of a few eminent and well liked singers and conductors, of Emma, Melba, Destinn and Tetrazzini, of Mr. Bondi and Mr. Sammarco, of Mr. Campanini and, until the present year, Dr. Richter. The rest, especially the men, are singers of the second and the third rank, or the frank mediocrities of the continental houses, engaged cheap for a few appearances.

The public of Covent Garden takes Mr. Bassi, for example, seriously as an eminent tenor and not as the incarnation of ordinary Italian song, a worn Italian convention, Mr. Gilly, the capable secondary barytone of the Metropolitan, advances to the part that there fell to Mr. Amato and Mr. Scotti. Covent Garden is not curious and Covent Garden is economical.

Mr. Caruso, Miss Farrar, for example, cost too much for his prudent purse; its repertory gives little opportunity to singing actresses, like Miss Garden, who have cultivated an "ultra-modern" repertory. The wonder is that Miss Destinn stays—H. T. Parker, in Boston Transcript.

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL.

GREAT many people tell us they can read character by the face or the hands. Perhaps they think they are honest in their declaration, but it is probable that there never yet was a phrenologist or palmist who was not influenced consciously or unconsciously by the entire form of the person whose character they wished to read. The whole body must be taken into consideration. If one wishes to give the personality of the individual.

A woman's shoulders may not only give us a clue to her character, but they will open our eyes to her mode of life and even furnish a glimpse into her future. There is an old saying that "character is destiny." If we find shoulders that are weak, vain, or voluptuous—and these can be found every day among women in any afternoon tea room or other place where they congregate—we can readily imagine the destiny of their owners.

One may go farther than that and show that shoulders which are naturally weak can be made strong, and the methods by which we make them so add strength to character. We must learn that to make one's self beautiful physically will make one beautiful in character; it cannot do otherwise.

When women learn that their outward form always mirrors the personality within, they will cultivate assiduously the physical appearance which belongs only to the highest character.

We are coming more and more to realize and appreciate the influence of beauty upon character, and today a girl must learn early that she is the sculptor of her own self. If she wishes her body and face to be beautiful, she can make them so. Nothing shows more the independence of the modern girl than her squared shoulders, and it marks the woman of independence as coming on the world's stage since her grandmother's time. A tremendous change has taken place since then, you know, and the gymnastics, physical culture schools, and the rage for outdoor athletics all over the country are accountable for it.

Comparison of the Two Types.

Get out the family album and look at the pictures of great-grandmother, grandmother, or even mother, and you will see clustering curls and sloping shoulders as well as irresolute mouths and chins. Sloping shoulders signify indecision, and our grandmothers always allowed some one else to do their thinking. It was their father, their minister, their doctor, their lawyer, or their husband who told them what to do—always a man with great square shoulders, and whatever his decision, they acquiesced meekly. They did not "square up" to the world.

A comparison of the picture of the girl beautiful of today with an illustration of a famous beauty book of long ago will show how our ideas with regard to feminine pulchritude have changed. The average girl nowadays can show you arms just like those of her brothers, in their beautiful play of rippling muscle, but hers will be softly rounded withal. But can you imagine the anemic, stoop shouldered, flat chested heroines of the novels of our grandmothers, who always wore their palpitating hearts upon their sleeves, rising up on the tip ends of their wizened little toes to strike a "softer" pose or really "do things" in the world of art or business?

Advantages of "Standing Tall."

The athletic shoulders of the modern girl paved the way for the Empire modes and the kimono or peasant sleeve; no woman with a sloping shoulder can wear the kimono sleeve gracefully. And today woman's dress depends more than ever before for style upon the natural figure and good carriage, straight shoulders, broad chests, and flat backs. The dress reformer or physical culturist, attired in her eccentric garb, has lived to see her dreams, as far as a healthy, splendid figure—the acme of beauty for a woman—realized.

Sarah Bernhardt is a living illustration of what the physical culture teacher means by "standing tall" with its advantages to the chest, back, and stomach, and what is meant by a beautiful "back curve," and perfect poise of the head. She has taught us that "standing tall" is the correct pose and means raising your bust and holding yourself straight to your fullest height. The figure of the ancient Greeks is surpassed by the modern figure, as in this process hips have become slimmer and shoulders handsomer.

The athletic girl has rushed in where her mother feared to tread. She bestrides a horse, runs, rows, swims, and takes part in a hundred outdoor exercises, without being one whit the less womanly. She knows that an important factor of a fine form is the straight line from the roots of the hair to the base of the shoulder blade. She has learned that the marked difference in the way men and women naturally carry their shoulders is due to the development of the muscles of the shoulder girdle; that in men, who have been strong and well nourished since childhood, the outward ends of the collarbone slip outward and upward, whereas in women both ends of the collarbone are on the same level, or they slope outward and downward.

If all the pretty compliments that have been paid to beautiful arms, neck, and shoulders were written there would not be enough paper in the world today to print them all; and yet beautiful shoulders are not as plentiful as beautiful faces. A woman who cares for pretty shoulders should be particularly careful about the fit of her corsets. Ill fitting corsets have perhaps more to answer for where ugly high shoulders are seen than any other article of attire. She should see that they are not too high in the busts, as this style invariably sends the shoulders up too high, especially when one is sitting, and one loses all the softness and curves, which is one of woman's greatest charms.

American Women Most Comely.

American young women are the most comely in all the world in color and carriage, and they exceed all others in beauty of form. Undoubtedly the mixture of the races is responsible for the perfection with which they are born, and with just a little care they can keep this beautiful contour beautiful all through life. Of course, there is nothing in the whole world that equals youth, but age need not coarsen the body. If women will keep the same pure, sweet qualities through life that they have as children, and will seek that elusive quality of enthusiasm which is youth's greatest fascination, they will find that they will retain a beauty of form and carriage so long as life shall last.

Three things are essential to make woman's shoulders perfect: The first and most important of these is form; the second two are the texture and color of the skin. Cosmetics and art may hide the last two if they are imperfect, but form must exist. If your shoulders are inclined to round, a splendid exercise is to stand on the balls of your feet (just standing in this position will throw your shoulders properly) and take the deep breathing exercises, but while doing this carry a five pound weight in each hand straight at the sides. Walking on the balls of the feet without shoes all over the room in the morning and at night, carrying at least a ten pound weight in each hand and a good sized book upon the head, is also a good straightening exercise.

Watchfulness of Mothers Essential.

Tennis is also a splendid exercise for the shoulders. Never, by any possibility, allow your shoulders to slouch. There is nothing uglier than the slouching gait and poise of the shoulders affected by the college boy and girl. It is not only ugly from an artistic point of view but it gives one the appearance of indecision and physical deterioration.

For the texture and coloring of the skin upon the shoulders one should use much friction. A rather hard bath brush should be used daily, and in drying the shoulders take the bath towel in both hands and pull it diagonally across the back, first over one shoulder and then the other; this not only helps the skin but is a good straightening exercise. Mothers should be careful to detect and rectify the and Under the Arm Is the Most

first tendency to slouchy, rounding shoulders in their children. This usually comes first from habit, although oftentimes a tubercular tendency will bring on the stoop of the shoulders. A mother should be particular to see that her child sits straight and walks upon the balls of the feet, and a good exercise after the kiddies are ready for bed is to allow them to have a splendid game of tag, but insist that they shall do their running upon tiptoe. This will throw all organs in splendid alignment and will give them the starting point for beautiful, virile shoulders, and mothers early can discover whether the beautiful line which starts from under the ear and goes down over the shoulder and under the arm is being developed to exquisite proportions.

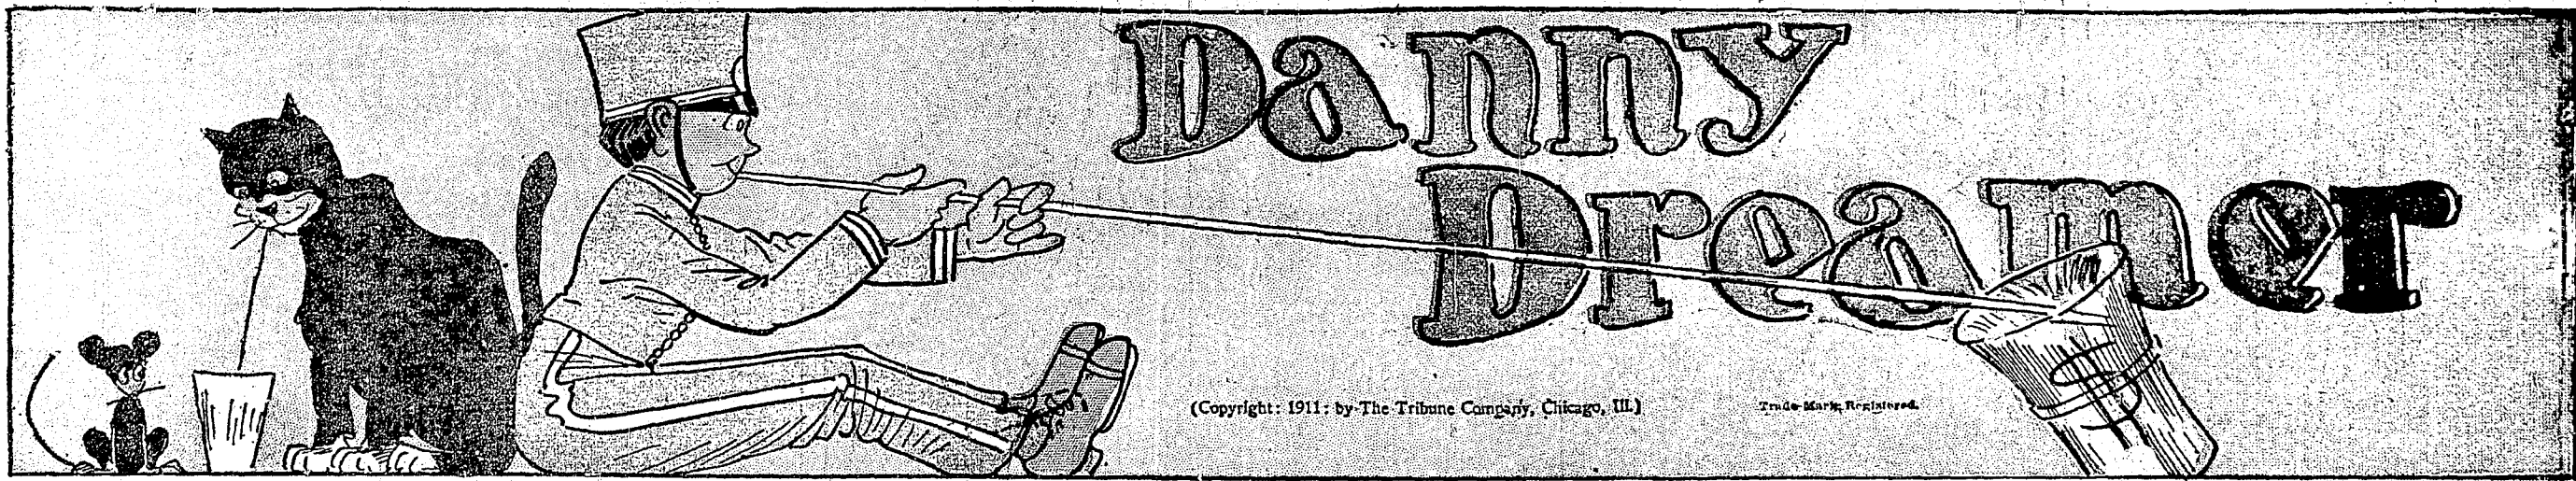

I said somewhere else in this article that we are the sculptors of ourselves; however, mothers begin the statue which the child must finish. A mother must teach her child that if she wishes its body to be beautiful it must learn to control its thoughts and emotions so that its character will be beautiful. Human passions and weaknesses written with deadly fingers not only upon a woman's face but upon her form—and thoughts have the magic power to carve one's body into a thing of beauty or an object of horror, for the foundation of all beauty is from within. No tree that is rotten at its heart can be beautiful; no flower is beautiful if the worm lurks within its chalice; and this metaphor can be applied both to the physical and the spiritual body.

The higher and more perfect the inner life, the more perfect will be the beauty of the body, and, like every other good rule, this works both ways. The mere fact that one lives a healthy, pure physical life and holds one's shoulders upright under the burdens which life puts upon them is an earnest of a rounded character and broad mind.

Top spinning is a tame sport with those toy tops. Of course it furnishes you children with much amusement, but I never had much fun doing anything unless I built my own contrivances. For instance, I made a gigantic top one time and nearly lost my life in spinning it. But I did some wonderful feats with it before I desisted. I never cared much for top spinning before that time.

OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright 1911 by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

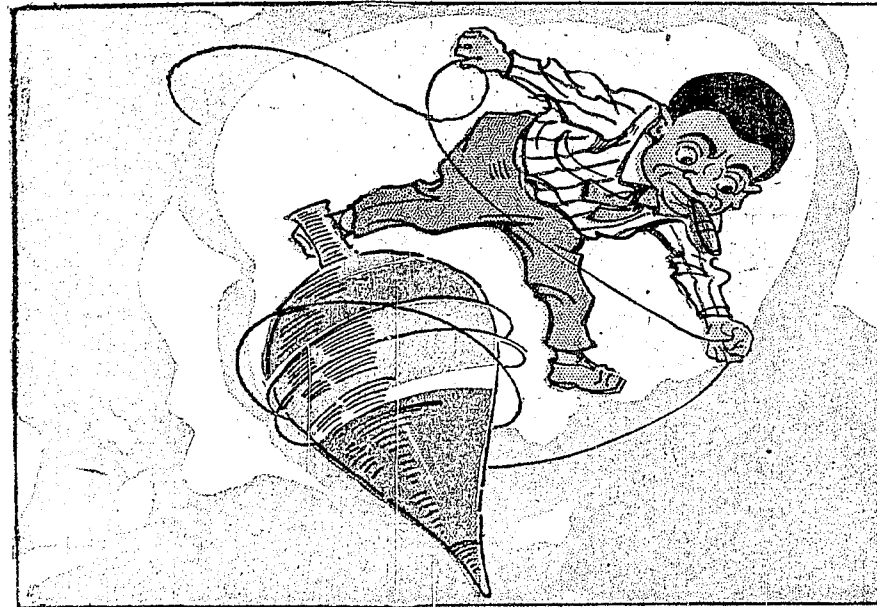

Doc Corbett, with whom I traveled about considerably when younger, prided himself on his top spinning ability. But I made Doc lower his plume and swallow his pride by building a top two-thirds the size of a good sized man and, with a common top string putting the top through a series of gyrations that made Doc hurry away to his sanitarium.

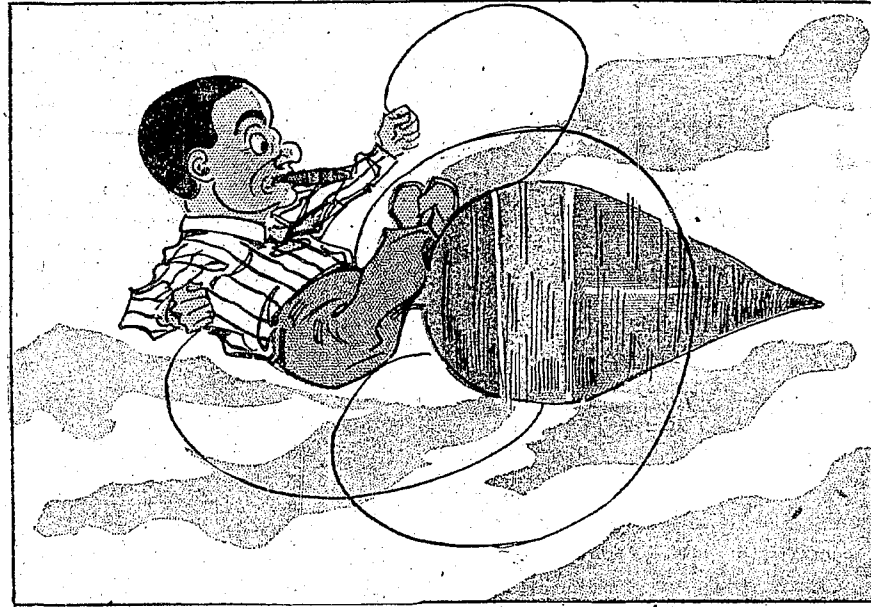

I set this top in motion without the least idea of what I intended doing. Doc sat on the bank of Winnebago lake in his motor boat and laughed at my early efforts. While it was spinning I rewound the string a dozen times or so to give the top greater impetus. Suddenly the top rose a foot or so off the ground.

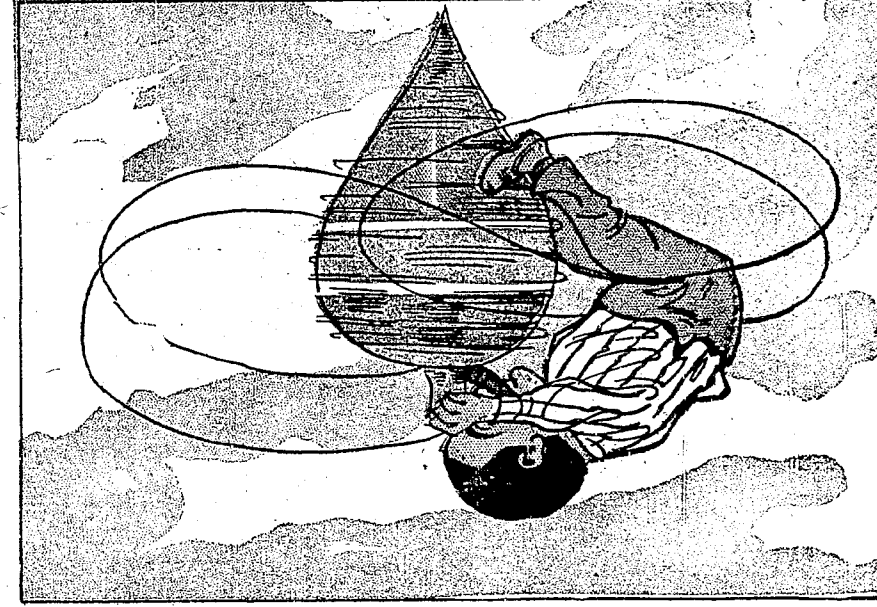

Quickly I wound my foot in the string and spun around the top two or three times to see that it was spinning with the same velocity in all directions. This being to my satisfaction, I bumped the head of the top with my own head to make sure it was in tight. Both heads were solid, so I set about the first trick of the series.

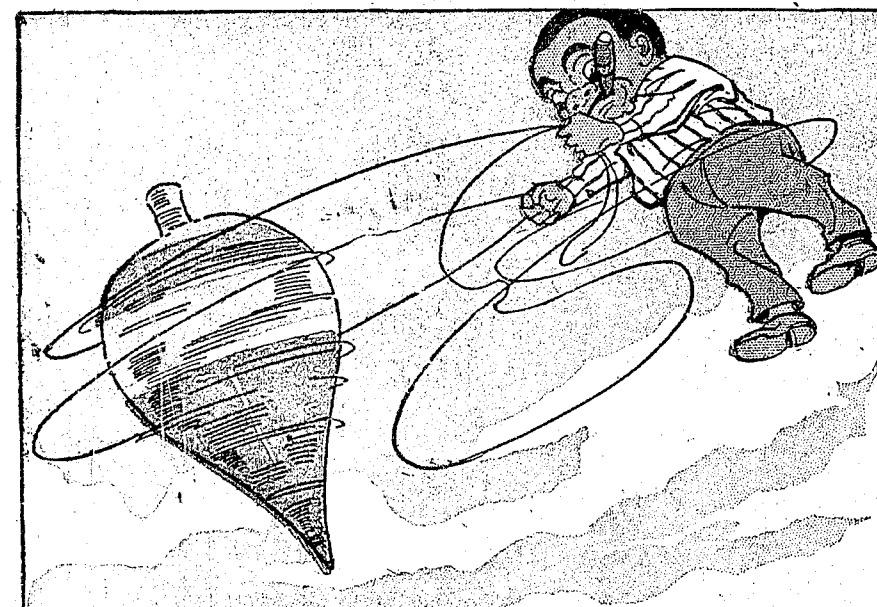

The top was momentarily increasing its speed and slowly rising higher and higher from terra firma. I stepped upon the cord and ran its entire length, winding it coil after coil, with great precision as I did so. The Doc had ceased laughing and was staring at me through his heavy lenses in rapt admiration.

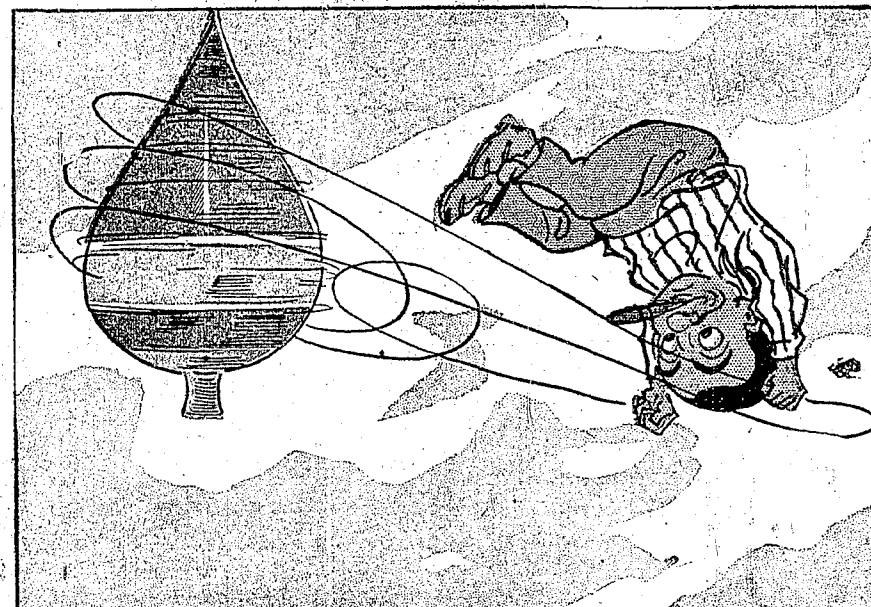

Wrapping my feet lightly about the head of the top, but not in any way checking its speed, I hauled it to a horizontal position and slowly circled about in the air. This, incidentally, was what gave me an idea for the first airship ever built. Then I grabbed the string and gave the top increased speed by unwinding.

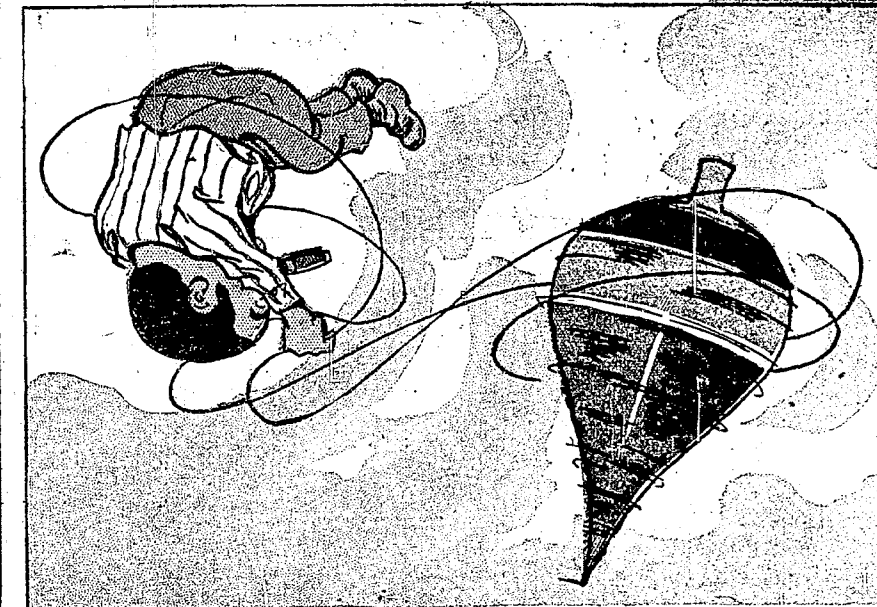

In doing this I upended the top until the point stood straight up. Then placing my feet against the wood and grasping the head in my hands, I spun with the great piece of wood, counting three hundred and ten complete revolutions to the minute. This I did only for two or three hours, giving myself a needed rest.

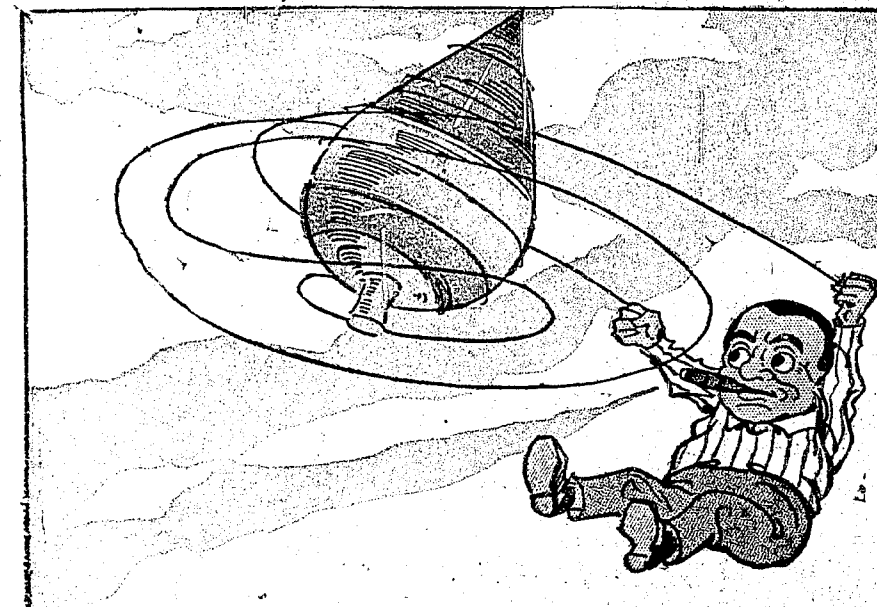

This form of amusement losing its novelty, I looped the string and, balancing myself a few feet above ground, lassoed the top many times, first throwing the string about the point and then about the head. In this way the top acquired great speed, although it was hard to keep my footing on the light air.

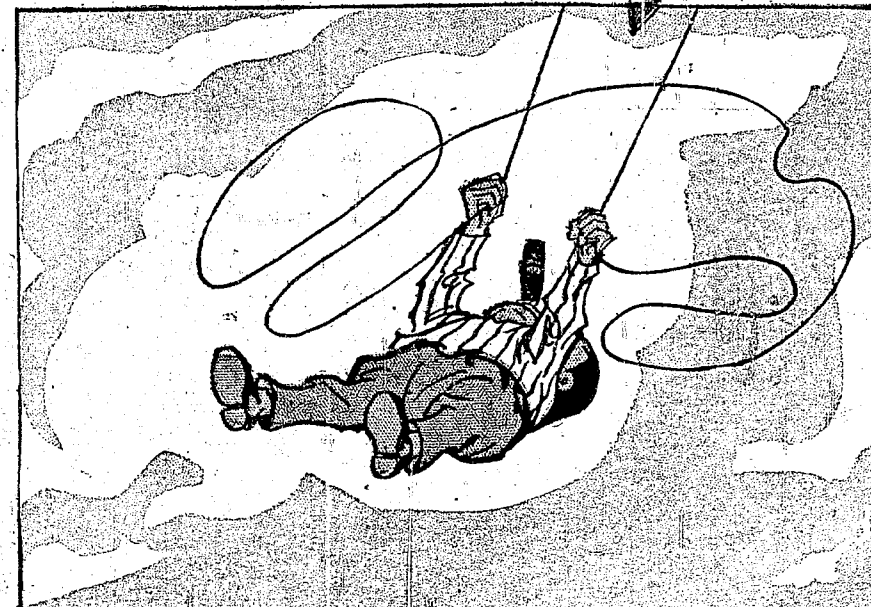

Slowly the top turned point upward. Keeping myself at the exact angle the top assumed, soon I found myself standing on my head and churning for dear life to keep my balance and still float in midair. But I kept the top spinning and the suction of the string kept me suspended in air.

Looping the string into a small ring, I threw the loop about the point of the top and caused the top to make a complete somersault. Throwing the noose about the head I revolved the top in the opposite direction, meanwhile twisting and turning my body in unison with each separate movement of the wooden monster.

In the meantime the speed of the top was increasing to alarming proportions. As it revolved the wind about it fairly howled. I paid little attention to the fact that it was rising farther and farther from the earth's surface. I was twisting the string about it in fantastic loops and coils.

Higher and higher rose the top. Faster and faster it spun. Far below I heard Doc Corbett shouting some sort of warning to me. I paid slight attention to anything but the spinning and escaping top. I managed to throw a slip noose about the point of the top and then look down upon the rapidly disappearing earth.

Holding tightly to the string I let it uncoil. It barely reached the ground as I scrambled to my feet. I rested a moment only and then, standing on the cord, I ran hurriedly down, jumping from the end of the string to the ground below. The top sped on and on and never again was heard of.

NEW FERRY TO CARRY AUTOS

Railway to Provide Rapid Service by Creek Route on Thoroughfare

Big Boat Will Carry Full Deck Load of Cars on Each Trip

Motordom will soon have a ferry service between San Francisco and Oakland without a limit. The long waits for accommodations on the transbay ferry boats, which have caused many an automobile enthusiast to wish for a bridge across San Francisco bay, will soon be over. This improved ferry service for the automobilists will be via the Oakland harbor route of the Southern Pacific Company.

Motorists leaving San Francisco can land with their machines right in the heart of the city of Oakland, returning the same way, thus avoiding the long waits for places on the Oakland pier ferry steamers for these harbor route boats will transport automobiles to their full carrying capacity.

CREEK ROUTE SERVICE.

The trip from ferry slip to ferry slip is more than that between the Oakland pier and the San Francisco side, but this twelve minutes is offset by the landing of the machines right in the heart of Oakland and the fact that three miles between the Oakland pier and the center of that city are eliminated from the transbay trip.

The new ferry steamer Thoroughfare now being constructed in the Oakland shipyards of the Southern Pacific Company, which will be placed in operation within the next few weeks, is to be the solution of the motorists' troubles in crossing the bay.

NO MORE DELAYS.

As on the present harbor route steamers the Thoroughfare will be equipped for the purpose of handling a full deck load of automobiles and other vehicles, and the delay caused by the limited number of machines allowed on the Oakland pier boats will be done away with. The Thoroughfare will develop a much better speed than the present boats on the harbor route run and the difference in time of twelve minutes will undoubtedly be cut down considerably. The rate per machine will be the same as at present, but there is a reduction of five cents in the fare of each passenger.

Dr. Wiley Not To Be Given Blue Envelope

Accusers Are Likely to Receive Reprimands of President Instead.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Dr. Harvey Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, will not be asked to resign by President Taft as a result of the charges preferred against him by the personnel board of the department of agriculture.

This statement was made tonight on high authority. President Taft is not ready to announce his decision in the Dr. Wiley case because he is making a personal investigation of the charges against the chief chemist.

President Taft will make his investigations exhaustive. The result of them will be that he will either refuse to concur in the recommendations of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and his personnel board but that he will "clean out" the politics and reprimand some of those who have sought to injure the administration through their attacks on the chief chemist.

All the evidence being submitted in the investigation by the House committee on expenditures in the department of agriculture is being received at the White House and the President is digesting it.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—As the result of heart failure, following an operation for appendicitis, which occurred several weeks ago, Mrs. Howard H. Hart, wife of the Alaska millionaire and resident of Berkeley, died at noon today at St. Winifred's Hospital. The many friends of Mrs. Hart, who was a prominent club woman, did not realize the seriousness of her illness, although she had been in the hospital for nearly two months.

Shortly after the completion of Mrs. Hart's palatial stone villa in Claremont, she entertained her fellow members of the California Club recently and shortly afterwards was taken ill. She had been preparing a book on Alaskan life which embodied many a personal touch taken out of her own experiences.

Mrs. Hart's husband was one of the first Americans to go to Alaska, where he made his fortune after considerable hardships and many trials. She will be mourned by a host of friends and relatives. So far no arrangements have been made for the funeral.

New Drill Tactics Result of Airships

Tacticians Revising Regulations to Protect Men From Attack From Aloft.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The expert tacticians of the army are now giving their attention to a revision of the infantry drill regulations with a view to meeting problems which have been created by the conquest of the air. They recognize that in future wars aeroplanes and dirigible balloons will play a very important part in the engagements. Not only will they be used for scouting purposes and for the transmission of information to the enemy, but experiments made within the last year demonstrate that aerobats are capable of offense.

Bombs may be dropped from them with accuracy and a large body of troops moving over the surface of the earth would be an easy target for the operators of flying machines. How to disperse troops so they will offer a minimum target is one of the problems which American army officers will try to solve. The work of the United States army aviators probably will furnish important information concerning this matter.

ROOSEVELT SHIES AT QUESTION

Gives His Version of Steel Trust Deal, in Which He Takes Full Responsibility

Evasive Answers to Many Queries Are Given by Colonel on the Witness Stand

"RESPONSIBILITY IS MINE"—ROOSEVELT

"I wish it understood that what I did was entirely of my own volition and initiative, and I take the whole responsibility for it upon myself."

He believed the acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron holdings worked no change in the status of the steel corporation. Furthermore, I believe the action was necessary for the general good and would check the panic as subsequent events proved it did.

"The result of the action I took was beneficial and the action I took at the time was necessary for the benefit of the people of the United States. In every crisis the temptation to indecision, to non-action is great. Action means risk and the certainty of blame to the man who acts, but if the man is worth his salt he will act."

"If I had not done what I did I would have been a timid and unworthy public officer. Every action I took was open as the day."

Former President Roosevelt before Stanley committee.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—"It would have been little short of crime against the people if I had not done exactly what I did," declared Theodore Roosevelt, pounding the table as he sat as a witness before the Stanley committee at the city hall today, defending his immunity bath to the steel trust for gobbling up the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, its biggest rival, in the 1907 panic.

When asked by Congressman Littleton if he really thought a general panic was imminent at the time of the Tennessee deal, Roosevelt said he did and quoted Emerson's "Red Sayer" in which are the lines: "They know not well the subtle ways I keep, and pass and turn again."

"SAVED NATION," HE SAID.

The former president said his sanction of the Tennessee Coal and Iron deal saved the nation which "was trembling on the verge of a calamity," a prospective disaster, "fraught with untold misery and woe."

He asserted he had been informed that two great banks were tottering and that moreover the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company was but as a drop in the bucket to the steel trust.

The former President was not sworn, as all other witnesses had been.

At the outset he read a prepared statement detailing his acts during the panic period of 1907. He described the panic as a battle and told how each engagement was fought and how the Roosevelt administration won day by day.

"But if we had sat supinely down after winning one of these engagements," he said, "we would have lost."

FOLLOWERS ON THE RUN.

The former President entered the aldermanic chamber guided by Police Lieutenant Kennell, the mayor's aid. As he entered the city hall the Colonel gathered a train of followers and most of them were on the run.

YOUTH AND GIRL ARE JAILED

Lulu Sievers and Tony Obora Arrested When Hunger Drives Them From Hills

Runaway Couple Had Established Camp Not Far From San Pablo

RICHMOND, Aug. 5.—Forced by hunger to abandon a snug camp they had established in the hills back of San Pablo, Lulu Sievers, the 14-year-old girl of this city, and her alleged abductor, Tony Obora, both of whom disappeared last Tuesday morning, went into San Pablo tonight shortly after dusk to seek provisions and were placed under arrest by Police-man Berry of the Richmond department and Deputy Sheriff George Valencia. They were taken to the jail in this city, where they are being held without bail pending the filing of charges against Obora by Edward Sievers, the girl's father. Monday morning the officers and their prisoners arrived in Richmond about 9 o'clock.

Neither of the two objected to being taken into custody when the officers told them that they were under arrest and they seemed to feel relieved that the suspense which had surrounded their flight had been brought to an end. Neither was inclined to make any statement. The girl admitted, however, that she had been contented to remain with Obora, but as to the reason of their flight, Obora, who is 28 years old, would say nothing. He has been employed as a laborer on the railroad.

COUPLE ARE KEEN.

Following a frantic search on the part of the girl's parents and officers of the law which lasted for several days and during which time the city was thoroughly searched as well as the hills in the vicinity, the hunt led in the direction of San Pablo where it had been reported that a couple answering the description of the missing pair had been seen last Thursday making toward the outskirts of the village. It was said that they were well supplied with bundles and appeared to be excited over something. Valencia and Berry remained in close touch with the territory and it was the result of their watchfulness that the girl and Obora were discovered.

Lulu Sievers, left her home on Chancellor avenue near Fourteenth street last Tuesday morning after telling her mother that she was going to visit a neighbor near-by. When she did not appear for lunch, a search was made and upon inquiry it developed that she had been seen running in the direction of McDonald avenue where she met a man who had evidently been waiting for her. After that all trace of them was lost and it was believed that the 14-year-old girl had fallen into the hands of white slavers who had induced her to leave her home.

The father swore out a warrant for the arrest of Obora shortly afterward upon the information that he had had something to do with the affair. According to Chief of Police J. P. Arnold, charges will be filed Monday morning.

Very Big or Very Little Hats Fashion of Winter

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Next winter's millinery will run to big and little extremes, according to Mrs. G. F. Campbell-Wood, wife of the secretary of the Aero Club of America, who returned from a shopping expedition in Paris today.

Mrs. Campbell-Wood wore one of the big extremes, which, she said, WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Has Admiral Togo a diplomatic mission in this country?

It is interpreted in high official circles that behind the famous Japanese sea-fighter's visit to America is something more than a desire to see this country; that in fact he has been commanded to appear before President Taft informally in the proposition to arrange an international arbitration treaty between the United States and Japan along the lines of the treaty just signed with Great Britain and France.

The admiral, of course, will not discuss the truth of this report, nor will its accuracy be admitted by State Department officials, but it is a fact that it receives very considerable credence in well informed circles.

FLAGS ARE ENTWINED.

The Stars and Stripes were entwined with the rising sun in the state dining-room of the White House tonight.

Beneath them sat the President of the United States beside Admiral Togo and fifty representatives of the Tokio and Washington governments.

An elaborate dinner finished, President Taft arose and toasted the Emperor of Japan. He told the mighty fighter from the Far East to go back to his people and his emperor and

MOROCCO GETS KAISER IN TROUBLE

Report of a Settlement of the Question Causes Big Storm.

Fear That Germany Will Not Get a Portion of Africa.

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—The government's formal announcement last night that Germany and France virtually had agreed on a basis of settlement in the Moroccan controversy has been received with suspicion and reserve by a large part of the public and open anger by the nationalists.
Incidentally it has loosened a storm of bitter comment directed at the heads of the government. The kaiser himself does not escape criticism, which in virulence rivals that which followed his famous London Telegraph interview.

NO AFRICAN MELON.

As France and England are known to be definitely opposed to any cession of Moroccan territory to Germany, the inference is drawn that an agreement could have been reached only by Germany receding from her original demands. Since the government took the vigorous course of ordering a warship to Agadir a large and influential part of the German public has been insisting that no settlement would suffice which did not give the fatherland a slice of Moroccan territory in accordance with Foreign Minister Kiderlen-Waechter's original intention. Any other result, it was declared, would be not only disappointment, but a blow to Germany's prestige.
The liberal press welcomes the prospect of a settlement. It points out that the terms may be found to contain ample compensation for Germany, but it can offer no positive as-urances.

Coney Island.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The Rockefeller Bible class of the Fifth-Avenue Baptist church has planned an excursion by automobile to Coney Island and on August 12. Invitations were sent today by Hunter S. Marshall, chairman of the entertainment committee. The invitations conclude with this announcement:
"The excursion will cost each person $1.50. It covers all expenses, excepting perhaps a few extra costs, as John D. Rockefeller Jr. and the Rev. Dr. Addison Moore, leader of the class, are spending the summer in Europe, but it is expected they will come to New York to take part in the excursion."

JAPAN BUILDING BIG DIRIGIBLE

Nipponese at Work Constructing a Powerful 600-Foot Airship.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The receipt by an English sewing machine manufacturer of an order for some specially constructed machines has revealed the fact that Japan is secretly building the largest dirigible airship in the world.
The Standard prints a statement that the new ship is 600 feet long and fitted with six motors of 120-horse power, each making a total of 720 horsepower. The British dirigible recently finished. These engines are expected to be capable of driving the ship 30 miles an hour against a forty-mile gale.
Japanese agents have been secretly studying the German dirigibles for months.
The dirigible now being built will be Japan's second as she recently finished one 400 feet long.

DOUGLAS COHEN IS

Douglas Cohen, former football captain, was elected president of the student body of the Frothingham high school on the last day of the spring term, the result of the election being made known yesterday. Byron Anderson was elected president of the Senate and Clifford Cole was made lay reader. The editor-in-chief of the college paper will be selected ality of President Taft at their conference this afternoon. The admiral volunteered the statement:

"I was very much impressed by the kindness of your President and I was impressed, particularly with the splendid progress he is making towards obtaining the peace of the world by his general arbitration treaty."

"As to your nation itself, and this city, I am pleased with the impressions made so far."

express to them the honest hope and belief of a perpetual peace between the east and the west on the part of the American people.

President Taft discounted the alarms of demagogues and told Admiral Togo that the interest of America and Japan in the Far East should be conserved side by side and that he saw no reason why they should ever be disturbed by war.

ANOTHER PEACE PACT.

Following closely upon the successful culmination of the arbitration treaties between this country and France and Great Britain tonight's meeting is believed to have paved the way for another peace pact.

Admiral Togo expressed the hope that President Taft's prophecy might be fulfilled, and though a man who lives by war, he hoped to see no entanglement between the two nations.
He was roundly applauded when he concluded his speech.

At 10 o'clock the President led Admiral Togo to the east room, where, surrounded by Baron Uchida, the Japanese ambassador, Secretary of State McKee and other dignitaries, he smiled and bowed to two thousand representatives of official Washington, whom President Taft had invited to meet him.

After fourteen hours of receptions and visits, tired and weary, Admiral Togo was escorted to his hotel by Major Butt and Lieutenant Commander Palmer, aids to President Taft. Captain Potts is looking after the admiral while he is in America. The first taste of Washington hospitality over, the hero of the Sea of Japan turned in to catch a little rest preparatory to another day of dinners, visits and sight-seeing.

End of War Would Mean Happiness, Says Japanese

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Admiral
Togo was asked tonight what effect the movement toward peace would have upon naval construction. He pondered, then slowly said: "I think it will be a great cause for happiness if war can be abolished by arbitrated treaty between the powers. Nevertheless the nations of the world will increase their navies. They will continue to increase them because increased naval power is necessary until the time when all cause of war shall have disappeared."

"Do you think," the admiral was asked, as to the future trend, "will it be for the construction of a larger fleetship than the types we now have?"
"That is an exceedingly difficult question to answer," said the old warrior. "There already a great many opinions as to the best way ship. Some authorities think the greatest efficiency can be had in a 20,000-ton machine. Others say that to obtain the greatest efficiency you must have a 30,000-ton ship."

LIMIT OF CONSTRUCTION.

"In my opinion, however, we have nearly reached the limit of battleship construction at the present time. But, of course, I cannot say what the future may demand."

"The admiral's attention was then directed to the aeroplane, as the enemy of the battleship."
"Have you paid special attention to the development of the aeroplane as a valuable adjunct?" he was asked.

"I can see that the aeroplane would prove of valuable service for and against navies in actual warfare," commented Togo.

"Would you specify what you regard as the best function of the aero-plane?"

"I should say that it would be most valuable as a scout."

"Admiral Togo would not discuss the Panama canal in any other way than as a highway of commerce."

The admiral was distinctly impressed by the personality and cordi-

MISS MARJORIE MORELAND, who, rumor says, may be
Mrs. Nat Goodwin No. 5.

Actress Says She Can't Imagine Who Started Gossip That She Intended to Wed

Although rumor has already named Mrs. Nat Goodwin No. 5 in the person of Miss Marjorie Moreland, one of the cleverest and prettiest of the younger actresses of today, Miss Moreland has denied with vehemence the statement that she is to play fifth wife to the wife of the much-married Nat.
"I know Mrs. Goodwin," said the actress, "and she acted with him, but I have no intention of marrying him. It would seem that one has but to converse with a man nowadays to start various Madam Grundies to gossiping. However, I cannot imagine what started the talk that I was to be the fifth Mrs. Goodwin."
Miss Moreland in private life is Marjorie Parrott, and though she has been on the stage a comparatively short time she has already gained an enviable reputation as an actress.
The much married comedian, whom she denies having any intention of marrying, is having troubles of his own just now, which are serving to bring him more prominently into the limelight than even his genius as an actor and his habit-matrimonial.
Goodwin wired his attorneys in New York on Thursday to begin a libel suit against "The Green Book Album" for the manner in which they are using his name to advertise Edna Goodrich's novel of theatrical life, "The Dignified Divorce."

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 5.—Although Minnesota and the Dakotas are placed in the progressive column, they do not accept La Follette as their standard-bearer and are not expected to instruct their delegates to the national convention to vote for him.
If the state convention were this summer it is probable Minnesota and South Dakota would instruct for Taft and North Dakota would send delegates to vote for La Follette. What the situation will be when the conventions are held next spring depends largely upon developments at Washington during the regular session of Congress.

Fans See Hal Chase Stop a Runaway

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Hal Chase showed his courage before a large crowd in front of the American League park this evening. A horse attached to a grocery wagon ran away and dashed south into Broadway, where a large crowd of fans was waiting the outcome of the Highlanders from their dressing rooms. Yells went up to alarm the crowds. Then Chase ran out, leaped into the back of the wagon and got hold of the reins. Bracing himself, he fell back, his feet braced on the rail of the board. Within two blocks the horse had been conquered. Chase drove him back and turned the rig over to the driver.

Rushes Wheelbarrow 1000 Miles on a Bet

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—"On my way walking from Atlanta, Ga., to New York City Hall and pushing a wheelbarrow on a bet," said Frank Orr, 37 years of age, who completed a 1000-mile walk after Mayor Gaynor had gone home today, "I met people who had never heard of the flood or of Moses."
Orr, who is the nephew of the chief of police of Charlotte, made a wager of $500 with the sporting club of that town that he could push a wheelbarrow from Atlanta, Ga., to New York City in forty-eight days.
"On the way up I slept in fields, under haystacks and bridges or anywhere night happened to overtake me," said Orr.
"Sometimes people would be very kind and give me a good night's rest, but more often they would not let me sleep in the barn."
Orr left Atlanta June 23 and had till the 10th of August to reach New York.
After leaving his letter from the mayor of Charlotte for Mayor Gaynor, he left by train with his dog for home.

HE SAYS

Blacks Are Dying Fast in Richmond and Health Officer Makes Prophecy.

Thinks That by Twenty-First Century Race Will Be Entirely Off Map.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—If the recent statement of Dr. Ernest C. Levy, chief health officer of Richmond, that in the Twenty-first Century the negro will be extinct is a logical conclusion reached from a perusal of the Richmond statistics, then Washington records forcibly corroborate the assertion.

When asked for an opinion on the assertion of the Richmond health officer, Dr. W. C. Woodward, district health official, would not commit himself.

"That is a big statement," said Dr. Woodward, "and I should not like to predict any such outcome of the situation. The mortality among the colored people, however, is very high and much in excess of that of the white race."

"In Washington 28 per cent of the population is colored and yet the death rate among the negroes is just about twice that of the white race. The colored death rate is about 27 out of 1000 persons and that of the white is 14 or 15 out of 1000. This is quite a marked difference, but as to whether or not the result will be the extinction of the blacks I would rather not say."

USES TERM 'SCAB,' HOOTING FOLLOWS

Blacksmith Empties Revolver in Running Fight With Sacramentoan.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 5.—Following a dispute over union labor matters, Emmet K. Hixon, a blacksmith, this afternoon shot and probably fatally wounded William Hellman, foreman in the horse-shoeing shop of David A. Hearn. The dispute started in a butcher's home, then to a saloon just across the street from the blacksmith shop, and the shooting continued from the bar to the center of the street, where Hixon fired his final shot, emptying his revolver.

The term "scab" used by Hellman and directed toward Hixon, is said to have been the immediate cause of the shooting. Hixon, it is asserted, tried to prove to Hellman by his card that he was a union man in good standing. When he failed the term "scab" was used. His ire arose and the shooting followed.

Hellman lies at the White Hospital and little hope is held out for his life. Two bullets entered his body, one passing entirely through the abdomen and the other lodging near the breastbone. Early in the evening following the shooting physicians operated on the patient but were unable to state what would be the result.

STRIKE CAUSE OF STOPPING OF CARS

Two New York City Lines Are Tied Up by Rioting and Attacks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Rioting today marked the strike of the motor men and conductors of the Smith street and Franklin avenue lines, both of which are operated by the Brooklyn and Coney Island Railroad Company. Service on both lines was suspended tonight. The company will attempt to man the cars with strike-breakers tomorrow. Deputy Commissioner Walsh will order out all the available police in Brooklyn to see that the cars and passengers are protected. The service on the two lines was not abandoned until many passengers and employees had been injured by strikers or their sympathizers.

MODESTY MAY BE CAUSE OF DEATH

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Aug. 5.—Because she was too modest to permit an operation upon her thigh, Mrs. Millie Vosek, a handsome young woman of this city, is a patient at the hospital here and probably will die from blood poisoning, the result of a dog bite and her refusal to allow a physician to cauterize the wound.

"I AVERTED PANIC," SAYS COLONEL TO COMMITTEE

As they followed him up the stairs and into the hearing room, "Colonel Roosevelt" was on the stand exactly two hours. When his examination was concluded, Chairman Stanley thanked him for the information he had given.

"An ex-President," replied the Colonel, "is only a citizen and it is his plain duty to give such assistance as he can to a committee of this character."

The arrangement for the examination of Colonel Roosevelt was made at an executive session of the committee yesterday. The committee had sent a letter to Roosevelt inviting him to appear. He responded at once and fixed today for his appearance.

PLANS KEPT A SECRET.

The fact that he was to be the witness was kept secret and none except the members of the committee knew of the plan until he appeared at the city hall. Word had been passed around, however, that the committee had "something good" in store. Congressman Littleton, as the representative of the Colonel's district, was waiting in the adjoining chamber and escorted the distinguished witness to the committee room. There he shook hands with the Congressmen.

Colonel Roosevelt seemed to enjoy the occasion more than he had any event since the late Saratoga convention when he entered the lists against the old guard. He was bubbling over with enthusiasm and eager to defend his right to the steel trust of immunity from prosecution for acquiring the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company.

There were good natured sallies between the President and committee men. Congressman Bartlett, of Georgia, asked him, among other things, what he thought of Judge Gary's proposal that the Government fix prices for the steel industry.

"I am afraid," replied the Colonel, "stiffening his back and showing his teeth; that if I had made such a proposal I would be accused as a Socialist."

ESCAPES ONE CHARGE.

"Have you entirely escaped that accusation?" asked Judge Bartlett.

"Well, if I have, it is the only accusation I have escaped," replied the Colonel. Roosevelt said that when Judge E. H. Gary and M. C. Frick of the United States Steel Corporation visited him unexpectedly one morning in Washington and conferred with him regarding the purchase of the Tennessee company stock, they assured him that they really didn't want it but that they would take it over in order to avert a national financial panic.

Roosevelt sanctioned the taking over of the stock, he said, he assured the Stanley committee that all that kept the country from being plunged into financial disaster.

DIDN'T MENTION IT.

"Did Mr. Gary or Mr. Frick advise you that the stock of the Tennessee Coal and Iron was preferred by them more than any other industrial stock before the panic?" Chairman Stanley asked.

"They never spoke of any such thing," Roosevelt replied.

"Did they tell you of their efforts in New York through this transaction to help out a certain stockbroker?"

"Oh, no."

"Did they describe the conditions in relation to this stock in Wall street, how the Tennessee had been knocked about like a football?"

"Mr. Stanley," the former President exclaimed emphatically, "you must apply to some one other than myself if you wish an expert opinion on Wall street."

Roosevelt laughed heartily at the conclusion of this answer, leaning forward over the table in a characteristic way.

"Have you seen the report of Herbert Knox Smith of the bureau of corporations on the United States Steel corporation?" Stanley continued, "setting forth that the corporation was worth about $700,000,000?"

"No."

DECLINES TO ANSWER.

Stanley then made a long argument concerning the actual values of the steel corporation asking Roosevelt's opinion thereupon.

"I do not want to answer hypothetical questions based on Mr. Smith's or any one's conclusions," Mr. Roosevelt declared.

"It was a matter of common knowledge that the United States Steel corporation possessed securities of enormous value," said Roosevelt, "and that Tennessee Coal and Iron stock did not come to my mind, though what we did proved of enormous importance and when the steel corporation power was put into that situation that the people placed confidence in threatened institutions."

"There are any other panics at that time?"

"Yes, panic after panic and each panic was followed by more efforts to stop the crash."

After Mr. Morgan and the United States Steel corporation, he asked, "panic in their hands and stopped the threatened crash was there any return of the troubles?"

WATCHED SITUATION.

"None as serious, though we had to watch the situation closely for several days."

"Did Mr. Frick or Mr. Gary tell you that New York or no stockbrokers ever had told them the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron by the United States Steel was necessary for its salvation?"

"Object to that," said Counsel Lindbergh for the steel corporation.

"Overruled," said Stanley.

"I never heard about such a matter," Roosevelt answered at once.

"Did they tell you there was no trouble except with a certain stockbrokerage firm which had been selling Tennessee Coal and Iron in the market in a way that we call out west by an ugly name?"

"Oh, Mr. Stanley, don't hurt my feelings," Roosevelt replied with a chuckle.

"Did they advise you that a certain wine agent had been buying this Tennessee stock and that Kessler, the wine agent, and Grand B. Schley, a stockbroker, had got into trouble without the knowledge of their colleagues and that such men as L. C. Hearn, Ogilby and others, when they found out the situation, offered the use of their money and securities to prevent their failure?"

HAD HEARD NOTHING.

"Oh, no, I heard nothing of that," said Roosevelt.

"Were you not advised that Kessler and Schley were in such a condition that if these stocks were not turned over to the United States Steel Corporation that Kessler and Schley would go to the wall and that the real fight was not to save the brokers of New York but to save certain stock jobs?"

"I never heard the name of Kessler before this moment."

"Colonel Roosevelt, I am neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet," Stanley continued, "more than a year ago I concluded that if you were kind enough to appear before us you would say just what you have."

"I hope Mr. Stanley, that you will not read into my statements anything that I have not said," Roosevelt replied.

The room was packed, a crowd quickly assembled as word went out that Mr. Roosevelt was telling the story of Tennessee Coal and Iron.

The committee then took a short recess. Afterward Chairman Charles M. Schwab was recalled to the stand. The committee later returned to

1912 Three FLANDERS Speed TWENTY

An Epoch Making Five-Passenger
Three Speed Touring Car Priced
With Standard Equipment at $800

The new Flanders "20" is distinctly original—original in those features that differentiate it from any other car upon the market, even though the assembly is entirely orthodox in meeting the demands of the hour. The prospective buyer simply cannot find an example of high-class automobile construction that is superior at any price, whether the car be put to critical examination by engineering experts or given a grueling test upon hill or road by the experienced operator.

The E-M-F Company has made history in the past. The E-M-F Company is making history today. It has the confidence of thousands of owners who drive the cars made in the company's plants and enthusiastically sold by the company's representatives, but never in the history of this great organization has such absolute confidence been assured the buyer, or such faith been projected upon the future of any car, the E-M-F Company has shipped from its factories. The three-speed Flanders "20" is not only the "latest," but the "greatest" achievement of the E-M-F Company.

A five-passenger, fore-door, standard equipped, three-speed Touring Car, $800.

When the E-M-F Company announced the price of their famous five-passenger "30" at $1000 the whole automobile world stood, as it were, aghast, yet this was but the prophecy of a future that should sink into insignificance the advent of that motor car which in twenty-four hours revolutionized the automobile industry by making forever the high price car a fad. The new fore-door Flanders "20" at $800 is the very car that has pinned the mastercraftsmanship of Walter E. Flanders, whose one ambition has been to place within the reach of every man's pocketbook an automobile that in power, speed, beauty and workmanship should stand unrivaled. The new Flanders "20" challenges comparison.

Competition in motor design and construction proves the survival of the fittest. The tendency of the age is specialization. Supremacy is built upon experience and is the result of knowing how. The new Flanders "20" positively and absolutely defies competition. This is not a bold statement to those who know that upon this new creation of the E-M-F Company has been showered all its specialized engineering skill and years of experience in the building of "perfect" automobiles. Every mechanical principle embodied in the new Flanders "20" is an achievement proven and guaranteed. Efficiency and utility have been built into every inch of the chassis, and for comfort, grace of line and general "good looks" there is no car sold at any price which can claim superiority and none that in ease of operation, economy of fuel and maintenance is comparable to it.

The Specifications of this masterpiece will more than confirm all that the greatest enthusiast can say about it. Cover up the price, give them to any expert to read, then ask him for his opinion and he will tell you no car could be made and sold to answer such qualifications under $1200 to $1500. That is expertly true. But the E-M-F Company with its eight mammoth plants, its marvelous manufacturing facilities, its tremendous purchasing power and unrivaled organization is years in advance of any other automobile concern. Apart from this, the reduction in "overhead" expense which immense quantity production naturally created has been shared with every purchaser who owns a car made by the E-M-F Company.

The New Fore-Door Three-Speed Flanders "20" is no exception. The sale of 25,000 of these cars for 1912 has been anticipated. This alone makes the price, $800, possible. We, naturally, are proud to present Alameda county buyers in the new Fore-Door Flanders "20" an opportunity to own an automobile that has taken years of patient producing, but is now the world's standard in every quality of motorcar perfection at the unparalleled price of $800.

We have a large shipment of these cars on the road and are in position to make immediate delivery.

Canaan, Wayne county, restored her hearing, although she had been deaf since she was a child, Mrs. James Decker, aged 65 years, is now blessing the fact that she was struck.

A bolt of lightning struck so close to her that she was thrown heavily to the ground and stunned. Fearful the change was but temporary she has waited anxiously to see if her deafness would return. So far it has not.

DEMANDS OF SOUTHERN PACIFIC SHOP EMPLOYEES GIVEN IN FULL

General Superintendent H. J. Small Issues Statement Declaring That Requests Cannot Be Granted

The controversy between the Southern Pacific Company and the employees of its machine and mechanical departments has led H. J. Small, general superintendent of motive power of the company, to issue a circular to all shop employees. THE TRIBUNE herewith prints the letter of Small to the employees and the demands made upon the company by the shop employees. This is the first time that these demands have appeared in full in the public prints.

Small's communication to the shop employees is as follows, and it embodies the demands made upon the company by its employees:

LETTER TO EMPLOYEES.

San Francisco, August 2, 1911.
To All Shop Employees Southern Pacific Company (Pacific System):
For the information of all shop employees, many of whom, I understand, are not cognizant of the full purport and details of the demands that have recently been made upon us, I quote the entire text of these demands.

These demands would involve an increase in the expenses for the shops under my jurisdiction of approximately $2,796,000 per annum, and which I must decline.

You are aware that during the past five years all of our shop crafts have been given increases, averaging 12 1/2 per cent and in some cases as much as 20 per cent, and furthermore that the wages now paid in the shops under my jurisdiction are higher than paid in the shops of any other railroad in the United States.

In addition to the high scale of wages the Southern Pacific Company, within equitable limitations as to age and time of service, has voluntarily introduced a pension system, which provides every employee, on leaving the service, with a pension for the remainder of his life.

You should also know that I have received requests for conferences from representatives of crafts with whom the company has agreements, and I have advised them that I would take pleasure in settling dates for such conferences as has heretofore been the practice.

These matters are called to your attention in order that you may have a full knowledge of the situation.

H. J. SMALL,
General Superintendent Motive Power,
Southern Pacific Company (Pacific System).

LOVE IS DEAD IN PRINCE D'ARAGON

Heart Is Crushed When Betrothal to American Beauty Was Broken Off.

Spanish Noble Now Visits the United States to Hunt
Big Game.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Prince Ludovick Pignatelli d'Aragon, son of the one-time ruler of Aragon before the great provinces of Castile and Aragon were united into the Spanish kingdom, arrived here today. He is young, good-looking and rich, but alas, he is a millionaire who would wear robes of royal purple and coronets of vermilion luster, he will not wed and has sworn eternal vows of celibacy.

"I have loved once," said the prince, with boyish frankness, "and I will never love again. I am doing with romance. My one and only love was an American girl, Miss Helen Hilton, of this city, and I still hold her memory sacred as the loveliest of all the fair. We met in Paris and became engaged. This was only a year ago. I am not revealing secrets, for it was in all the continental papers. The engagement was broken because of irreconcilable religious differences. But it was my last romance. I can never love again."

"I have met and expect to meet here many charming American girls, but there will be no romance. I have no need for fortune. I am a prince, and would not stoop to such a thing. My life henceforth will be spent in traveling and hunting."

This love-proof noble, Spaniard, 35 years old, is slender and of medium height, well knit and muscular, and he is renowned abroad as a mighty hunter. While in America he will be the guest of Robert Goetz, who expects to hunt some big game in the Rockies before returning to Spain.

An emissary from young Goetz met him at the pier and will escort him to the Goetz villa at Newport.

BOILING SOAP AND AID TO COURTSHIP

Industrious Widow of 62 Picks Savior of 75 as Third Husband.

READING, Pa., Aug. 5.—Mrs. Rebecca M. Boyer, an attractive widow of 62, was boiling soap for a neighbor when she picked out her third husband, an ardent suitor of 75. The pair were married recently.

Boiling soap is not the only accomplishment of Mrs. Boyer. She gives no odds to her younger sisters in the art of courtship. John M. Boyer, a prosperous farmer, was her prompt choice, of four men who had wooed her, since her husband's death two years ago. As she stirred the boiling soap and heard Manville's appeal, she was on the spot that she was the best of the lot.

"I know a good man when I see him," is Mrs. Boyer's confident comment. The pair were married by the Rev. I. Slahr, of Pricetown, Berks county, on Monday last. There were 500 guests from all sections of the county. There were music and dancing and a big feast, at which Mrs. Boyer recounted her courtships.

DESCRIBES COURTSHIP.

In her account of the courtship, the bride said:

"I had the choice between four men, all of whom called on me since my husband's death. Mr. Manville was the best, and I decided to marry him. I am sure that I will turn out just as good as my other husbands, for I know a good man when I see him."

GREENE FUNERAL IN COPPER CAMP

Special Trains Will Carry Friends From Arizona to Scene of Obsequies.

BISBEE, Ariz., Aug. 5.—The funeral of Colonel W. C. Greene will be held Monday at Cananea, according to advices received here today. The interment will be in the cemetery at the copper camp. A special train will be run from this city to accommodate the friends of the dead mining man, who wish to attend the obsequies.

Colonel Greene first came to Cananea in 1875. He was married in 1883 to Mrs. Ella Moson. Two children were born, one of whom, Mrs. Harry Langston, of Rochester, N. Y., is still living.

Mrs. Greene died in 1898. Colonel Greene married a second time in 1901, the bride being Miss Mary Proctor, of Hollywood, California. Six children were born of this marriage.

BLERIOT PUPIL BUILDS AIRSHIP

Young Son of Wealthy Swiss Mine Owner Will Fly Own Machine.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 5.—John Lagrive, a 19-year-old son of a wealthy Swiss mine owner, who claims he is a pupil of Bleriot, the famous French aviator, is building a monoplane in Spokane and expects to make several flights next fall, before returning to New York to tour the United States and Canada. The machine is of the cross-channel type, 25 feet in length, with a wing spread of 24 feet, 6 inches. The engine is of 20-horse power. The apparatus represents an investment of $2000, which young Lagrive saved from his allowance and earnings in a local factory since coming to Spokane, a year ago.

Lagrive has been in America three years, passing a year in New York, where he attended the public schools, to learn the language. He left home because his father objected to his work with Bleriot, but he has not his advised his parents that he intends following in the footsteps of the French birdman.

FIRE PROTECTION IS BEING SOUGHT

Irvington Residents Suggest Construction of Tanks on Hillside.

IRVINGTON, Aug. 5.—The most important business attended to at the last meeting of the local Chamber of Commerce was the discussion of ways and means for acquiring a sufficient water supply for fire protection, which at present is admitted to be wholly inadequate. Henry Lachman of the Mission was present, and a discussion was entered into on the advisability of putting up two large tanks on the hillside.

A committee consisting of W. W. Hirsch, A. Griffin Jr., H. D. Ford, A. Hirsch, Dr. Anderson, will approach the citizens in regard to financing the project, and report at the next meeting.

OSLER RIGHT; YOUTH SUCCEEDS AGE

Gray Hair Is First Sign of Age. Harmless Remedy Restores to Natural Color.

Osler isn't the only man who turns down with age. In the business world the "young man" is always the one who picks the plums. It is an age of "new thought," "new talent," etc., and the old man is passed by in the race. One of the first signs of coming age is the appearance of gray hairs. When you see them, act promptly. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will correct this sign, which so often deceives people into thinking that age is really upon them. It is a well-known fact that Sage and Sulphur will darken the hair. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur combines these old-time remedies with other agents which remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair. The manufacturers of this remedy authorize the druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

CHINESE UPRISING NOT LOOKED FOR

Legations at Peking Make Light of All Revolutionary Indications.

PEKING, Aug. 5.—There is little or no fear among the legations at Peking or even on the part of the Chinese government that any of the movements that would seem to be of a revolutionary character will culminate in a serious uprising. The reasons for this optimism are several. The temperance of the Chinese is still contrary to argument by force, only an infinitesimal number of foreign educated students being persuaded against the peaceful doctrine of Confucius. The modern troops of the central government are sufficient to cope with any rising at present within the bounds of possibility. There is apparently no revolutionary character to the movement of the students, though there is much discussion by hot-headed students who often send memorials to Peking written in their own blood. But the foreign legations are only minor reasons for confidence. The chief reason is the fact that the serious men who are dissatisfied with the present state of affairs fear that a revolution would give a pretext to two or more foreign nations to invade and annex provinces like Mongolia, Manchuria, Yunan and Tibet as has been discussed seriously for many months in the newspapers and among the newspapers, and among the half-trained students throughout the country. The partition of China, a theme which excited the Western world several years ago, has only now struck and alarmed the mass of the Chinese. The fear of foreign invasions is inspiring patriotism and is causing many memorials to be sent to the throne, pointing out the dangers of the alleged situation and beseeching the prince regent to institute rapid reforms including the development of the army and navy. But the Manchurian dynasty is not likely to increase the army lest, after becoming capable of defending the state, it might turn upon the alien dynasty, of which there is much jealousy. At present the Manchus control not only the government, but the army.

KITCHENER'S APPOINTMENT PLEASES BRITISH PEOPLE

Egyptian Nationalists Stand Alone in Protesting Sending of Soldier to the Sudan

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Except among the Egyptian Nationalists, who, however, have been very quiet of late, the appointment of Lord Kitchener as British Agent in Egypt and the Sudan, has been received with the greatest enthusiasm. Here in England satisfaction is expressed at the fact that the Government has at last found something for the greatest of British generals to do, something that is considered worthy of his talents, while the British residents in Egypt have received the news with the greatest delight. Although Sir Edward Grey has announced in the House of Commons that the appointment of Lord Kitchener does not foreshadow any change in the Government's policy, there is a feeling, both here and in Egypt, that there is no change, there will at least be a different way of carrying out that policy. Kitchener's reputation gives the Imperialists hope that he will deal a little more drastically with those Nationalists, who at the moment are the only obstacle to the Government's policy. Lord Kitchener's full title is Minister Plenipotentiary and Consul-General and his salary is $35,000 a year. In theory he simply acts as the authorized exponent of the views and wishes of his Government to the Government of Egypt. In reality, however, he is arbiter of Egyptian policy, and will be responsible, under the British Government, for the administration of Egypt and the Sudan and the Khedive, the theoretical ruler, is bound to accept his advice. The Khedive is said to have opposed the appointment of Kitchener, for with a strong man at Cairo, the Sultan's representative will have very little to say.

SMOLDERING DISCONTENT

While the Nationalists are quiet and their leaders disassociate themselves from all talk of violence, there is known to be a great deal of smoldering discontent, encouraged by the Socialist members of parliament. A strong man, it was felt, was needed to keep this under, and in Kitchener the people believe they have the man. His long experience in Egypt and the Sudan further fits him for the place and his appointment was doubtless made with the almost practical certainty that his prestige would be a benefit from his administration. There are some optimists who believe that this benefit will spread throughout the Near East and that with Kitchener and a strong army in Egypt, Britain will be able to formulate and carry out any plans she may wish in Turkey and Persia or frustrate any schemes of other powers that might interfere with England's policy. Lord Kitchener's full title is Minister Plenipotentiary and Consul-General and his salary is $35,000 a year. In theory he simply acts as the authorized exponent of the views and wishes of his Government to the Government of Egypt. In reality, however, he is arbiter of Egyptian policy, and will be responsible, under the British Government, for the administration of Egypt and the Sudan and the Khedive, the theoretical ruler, is bound to accept his advice. # JAPANESE NOT OPPOSED TO ARBITRATION TREATY

Nippon Would Know More of What May Be Proposed Before Committing Herself

TOKYO, Aug. 5.—Hesitation on the part of Japan to enter into negotiations with the United States looking to the conclusion of an arbitration treaty on lines similar to that proposed in Great Britain and the United States, is not born of objection to arbitration, but arises from a desire to know more of what may be proposed before committing herself. It is pointed out that there are certain things which Japan cannot and will not arbitrate any more than it would be reasonable to expect the United States to arbitrate the application of the Monroe Doctrine in the Caribbean Sea. The crisis, so much has been said and is being said about the hand of the whole world being against Japan's expansion policies that it has come to be the popular belief in Japan that every effort will be made to prevent her making any more out of her present position in Manchuria than the life of the leases permit. It is a fact, undoubtedly, that Japan's plans for the future, so far as Manchuria is concerned, are nebulous. She has developed the port of Dairen along the lines of the program laid down by Russia before the war, and Dairen is becoming a magnificent Pacific port. There is intention of building a great Arthur naval base, but it, too, will be developed along commercial lines. Four hundred miles of the South-Manchurian railway, together with the lease of the peninsula, have involved vast expenditures. These may be reimbursed by China and the leases terminated, but there is another interest, namely, the Antung-Mukden railway, which in another year will be the continuation of the Korean railways and the last link in the line between Fusan and the southern end of the peninsula of Korea and Berlin.

INTEREST IN FIGHT

Trade Unionists are looking forward with interest to a fight over the question of the organization of a citizen army to be raised at their annual congress in September. The subject is to be brought forward by the London Glass Blowers' Society in the form of the following resolution: "This congress realizing that militarism and the existence of a regular standing army constitute a menace to popular liberty, is of the opinion that the time has arrived for the institution of a real citizen army, free entirely from military law during times of peace, officered by the best of the section of the rank and file. Such citizen army to be used for defensive purposes only."

The members of the congress are not by any means agreed on this subject. At previous congresses similar resolutions have been defeated, the members declaring themselves opposed to all forms of militarism. If the proposer of the resolution is to be heard, however, trade unionists are coming around to the view repeatedly urged by Will Thorne, M. P., the labor member, that every man should be compulsorily trained to bear arms and that they should be organized into a citizen army to take the place of the standing army. A variety of opinions have been given by labor leaders and social reformers on the resolution. It is rather interesting to note that W. W., the secretary of the Social Democratic Federation, declaring that "military training in some form or other is bound to be introduced into this country before long, and we prefer to see it universal and in as democratic a form as possible, without the application of military law in time of peace."

RUSHING STOCK OUT OF MEXICO

Prophets Say Madero Is Fearful of Results to Follow Coming Election.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 5.—Reports from Mexico are to the effect that the Madero family has begun the shipment of cattle out of that republic, thirty carloads having left one station, all of these the property of the Maderos. Cattle shipment is not confined entirely to the Madero family. Other large producers are on the jump to bring on a hurried movement of stock to the United States. It is pointed out by some that this is an effort to get this valuable property out of the republic before the approaching election, it being maintained that those on the inside do not know what may follow the election. While the recent revolution was at its height, cattle proved a pretty valuable sort of contraband. Steers, good cows and yearlings were big factors in the commissary supplies of the Maderos. One of the big cattle barons of northern Mexico was a liberal contributor to the revolutionary commissary—not willingly, however, but the Madero soldiers were good foragers and helped themselves. It would seem from the present movement that the Madero family is living up to the old adage, "In time of peace, etc."

SUGGESTS PAINTING FOR IRISH COMMONS

The prize for the best painted will be $3500, for the second $500, for the third $150, and for the fourth $100. MRS. B. F. GAVICA, who was a bride of last night.

Miss Jennie Sawyer, daughter of Mrs. A. Sawyer of 519 Eighteenth street, and B. F. Gavica, an attaché of the Orpheum theater, were married last night at the home of the bride, Justice James Quinn, tying the nuptial knot. The ceremony was private and only immediate relatives were present. After a wedding supper the young couple left on a honeymoon trip to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Gavica is an attractive brunette, who has many accomplishments. For a number of years she has made her home in this city, where she has a legion of friends.

SOLONS TO PLAY NATIONAL GAME

Democrats to Be Pitted Against Republicans of House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Washington is to play some class baseball at last. On Monday afternoon the Democrats and Republicans of the House will meet to decide the congressional championship. With Webb of North Carolina in the box for the Democrats, and Kendall of Iowa dealing out the slants for the Republicans, it is confidently predicted that the score of neither side is likely to go into three figures.

The Democrats' slab artist was some sweet pitcher when he cavorted on the sand lots of North Carolina, and he has assured Captain Kinkadee from New Jersey, who is to play second base, that he still knows how to deliver the goods. Representative Kendall was once a twister of words, and in Representative Burke, who is to do the back-stopping for the Republicans, he has a catcher whose knowledge of the game and ability for steadying the team are decidedly a la Charley Street.

Governor Tener is coming from Pennsylvania, purposely to umpire the game, but the appearance in the role of umpire of Representative Tener is expected to prove a big drawing card. It is hardly to be expected that the cry of "kill the umpire" will be directed at Berger, as he is the only Socialist member of Congress and would have no reason for being partial to either side.

LONGWORTH ON SECOND.

Representative Nick Longworth is going to play second base for the Republicans, while several members of the House who claim they will know how to put up a classy ball will be in the game.

Members of the House are expected to turn out en masse to witness the contest. Officials of the Washington Play-ground association, for whose benefit the game is to be played, are making the necessary arrangements and a record-breaking crowd is expected. The following was announced today as the official line-up:

Republicans—Kent of California; Mott, New York.

Empire Governor Tener of Pennsylvania and Representative Victor Berger of Wisconsin.
Scorers—Representatives Ayres of New York and Proctor of Iowa.

WOMAN DISAPPEARS ON TRIP TO SEEK WORK

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—The police have been asked to search for Mrs. A. Wagner of 1016 McCall street, who left home yesterday morning saying that she was going to the Jacobs Tailoring Company to get work and has not been seen since. Her friends have begun an inquiry on their own account, but so far her disappearance is enveloped in mystery and no one seems to know just what has become of her.

Paving the Way for Commercial Supremacy The Future of Capwell's Revealed by Past and Present Activity An Evolution from a Small Mercantile Acorn to a Gigantic Oak

Oakland bristles with achievement. Many changes are taking place in every part of the city and the spirit of public improvement which has given birth to parks, harbor improvements, new hotel, city hall and auditorium has also given birth to a new commercial structure—the Greater H. C. Capwell Company's Store—one of the notable instances of latter day commercial exploits. For this store is to be one of the most modern trading places on the Pacific Coast, with a roof garden feature unequalled by any store in the United States.

And it is to be a store for all classes of people, a cosmopolitan establishment. It is to be a store where every convenience known to the age will be installed. The escalators will be a feature hitherto unknown to Oakland shoppers. The new store proves the achievements of this old store and indicates what the future holds forth. We are on the very tip-top of eagerness and impatient to take this further step forward.

Capwell's has grown side by side with Oakland, the growth of our store reflecting the growth of the city. The Greater Capwell's means the Greater Oakland. We are grateful and proud of this city and as lasting expression of that pride the new Capwell's will stand as a testimonial to home talent, home progress and home industries, for it is being wrought by the brains and hands of home people from materials (wherever possible) of home production.

But had there been no consideration of loyalty when it came to having this building designed and constructed, good judgment would have entrusted it to the same hands because of the greater skill and technical knowledge of our local designers and artisans. Perhaps Oakland does not fully realize its resourcefulness. If so, it remains for Capwell's to forcibly point this out.

Experts say our Oakland steel work is the best on the Pacific Coast. The electrical wiring contract is the largest ever let in Oakland (with the exception of Hotel Oakland), and the preparations for wiring necessarily delayed work on the building for several weeks. The terra cotta used is a product of Alameda county and its beauty of design and finish will, soon speak for itself. The lumber, mill-work, roofing, etc., were obtained in Oakland. The excavating for the most modern store basement in the west was done by an Oakland contractor, with mechanical methods far in advance of any heretofore used on similar work.

This bigger, better and finer edifice will be completed and ready for us in the Spring, and in the meantime—a word about our plans for Fall and Winter. That our customers may have the new things first and in a big variety to select from, our buyers are now in New York buying direct from mill and manufacturer in quantities that insure the lowest possible prices. Each day's express and freight adds new goods to those already here and soon there will be assembled the greatest stock of Fall and Winter Merchandise we've ever had. We maintain an office in New York City all the year round, with representatives in charge. We have direct foreign relations with all the important style centers. We are proud of the trust Oakland places in this store. Fall and Winter will see the greatest activity in its 22 years of existence and Spring will see the Greater Capwell Store. Quality—fair dealing—satisfaction—these are our watchwords.

SUIT TO SHED NEW LIGHT ON DISPUTE

Gross Frauds Are Ascribed to Members of Roosevelt Administration.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—A suit for $100,000 has been filed here in the District Supreme Court by General J. Floyd King, former member of Congress from Louisiana against D. R. Perrin of Williams, Ariz. It is said that new light will be shed through the suit on acts of the Roosevelt administration, showing reservation of land in the San Francisco mountains for forests.

Attorney W. P. Fennell, who filed the suit, ascribes gross frauds to members of the Roosevelt administration, whose names he refuses to divulge.

In the suit it is alleged that the defendant became indebted to the plaintiff to the extent of $100,000 for services rendered "in procuring an investigation of certain proceedings in the United States Senate of California by the United States Senate for the purpose of vindicating the character of the defendant from certain charges in the procurement of land titles in California." Fennell is quoted as say-

BRODEUR TO GO TO HIGH COURT

Change in Laurier Government to Be Made Before General Election.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Aug. 5.—One change will take place in the Laurier government before the general election. Minister of the Navy and Fisheries Brodeur, whose health is considered too poor to carry him through the campaign, is to be appointed to the supreme court. Postmaster General Lemieux will be transferred to the navy and fisheries portfolio, and H. S. De Land, Liberal representative of Beauce, Quebec, will become postmaster general. The government believes his appointment will strengthen the Liberal party in the Province of Quebec.

Opposition Leader Borden, who was to have spoken in Toronto today, will remain in Ottawa preparing for the speaking tour he is to make shortly. The gathering of Conservative leaders in Toronto will take place, however, and the opposition campaign program will be mapped out then.

THIS MAN'S SHIP IS IN IF HE CAN BE FOUND

to Be Made Before General Election.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—According to letters of inquiry from Germany which have been communicated to local attorneys, an inheritance awaits Ludwig Wendelin Bolstetter, formerly a resident of this city, if he can be found. If Bolstetter is dead, his children or heirs may be the recipients of an unlooked-for heritage.

Bolstetter had long been a wanderer over the face of the earth and the last heard of him was at Wibaux, Montana, about two years ago. The trail leads to that city and there ends.

TWIN PUPS CAUSE TARIFF PROBLEM

Born on Ship and Inspector Puzzled Over Question of Duty.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—A complicated problem has arisen in the present tariff regulations. The government has exacted a high duty on dogs brought into the country, whether they be aliens or native-born dogs, merely returning from foreign trip. The landing of the dog consigned to Mr. James Croft of Europe has set the experts guessing.

The owner applied at the dock with the necessary credentials for claiming the Pomperanian, only to discover that the dog on the way over had become the mother of twins. Since his official paper designated by one dog, the appraisers were considerably at a loss to know what to do. Mr. Croft claims, with some show of justice, that the dogs were five born and therefore not liable for duty. Of late relief, has been afforded by the passage of a bill in the Senate permitting animals, taken out of the country temporarily, to return to the land of their birth without the customary complications.

FAIR DIRECTOR WOULD HAVE GATE FREE TO ALL

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—“Let's have a free fair!” So says Henry Fortmann, president of the Alaska Commercial Company and one of the Fair directors. He is for letting everybody enter the fair grounds without a cent's charge.

At first it looks like a wild idea. But there is nothing wild about Fortmann. He is a thoroughly practical and singularly solid man, managing one of the great business enterprises of the country, including the greatest fleet of ships under the American flag. He has his arguments, of course.

“In the first place, we would lose no money by a free gate,” says Fortmann; and when people protest in astonishment he simply says: “We can sell our concessions for enough more on a free gate to make up the difference.”

“And then, what an advertisement for San Francisco and California hospitality!” he says, as he warms to his argument and gets enthusiastic. “Why, they'd be talking about the free fair the green earth over and the wide world round. That's where we would make the thing pay—in straight-out advertising.”

And when you come to look the thing in the face there is a lot of hard business sense in Fortmann's idea.

One Way to Pay a Club Debt

Of course there are all sorts of schemes afoot for securing concessions at the fair, and the dreams of fortune would fill a dozen fairy-books. But it has remained for Alex Robertson, the publisher and book-seller, to suggest the unique idea among them all.

The Bohemian Club has a debt—as have all the clubs since the fire. That debt worries the club directors. They have cudged their brains for ways and means to decrease the indebtedness. Robertson said to them one day this week:

“I want you to take my proposition seriously. I suggest that as we have in our club membership a majority of the Fair directors we secure from them a concession, and reproduce, on the Fair grounds, a mid-summer jinks. We could bring in the trees and paint forest and hillside scenery, and let the world see and hear what we do in the grove. Why, you could fix your own admission price and pay the debt in no time.”

At the Sign of the Stranded Ship

There is one relic in San Francisco that is going to have a distinct commercial value during the fair. It is an ancient wreck that has gone through at least two big shakes and two great fires.

When the water came up to Montgomery street there was stranded and hauled up on the beach an old craft, and the timbers that had braved the billows were permitted to rot in the mud, while the cabin was made a human habitation, where the fortune hunters came and fled in the quest for gold.

Well, strange as it may seem, that cabin remains. Its old timbers and carefully ship-carpenentered boards have resisted the tooth of time. It is on Montgomery street, just north of Washington, in the same block where divine providence “saved Hotelling's whisky.” The fires of the 50's left it unscathed, the earthquakes of '68 and 1906 did not shatter it.

After the earthquake and fire of five years ago Earl Cummings used the old cabin as a studio. It was known to Tavernier and Carlsen and other big artists who had their studios near at hand. Now it is part of a carpenter shop. But it is sure to be resurrected, given a history and made a resort.

A Man Who Ought to Stay in Jail

They have Upton Sinclair in jail down in Delaware for violating some blue law by playing tennis on Sunday. It seems farcical to jail a man for such a thing, but if the authorities would wake up they ought to jail him for a contemptible crime against the decencies of life.

His latest book, “Love's Pilgrimage,” is supposed by his friends to be a sort of story of his own life in his relation to the life of his wife. In the tale he enters into the description of the most intimate affairs of the married relation, and the slow conquest of his wife's physical being is side-splitting to the ordinary man who loves in the good, old-fashioned way.

But when he comes to describing child-birth in cold type—well, he ought to be thoroughly kicked, then arrested, then jailed and kept there. London and Sterling, to whom he sent advance copies of his book, revolted at it.

By the way, it is London and not Sinclair, whose preachments along the socialistic lines the men of Wall street fear. Sinclair has cost them money, but London they don't know how to deal with.

Why There Is No Rehabilitation

I talked this week with a man who has been trying in a practical way to bring about the rehabilitation of the California Safe Deposit Company—the company that was wrecked by the queer financial methods of Walter Bartlett and J. Dalzell Brown.

The man with whom I talked had no financial visions such as Bartlett has been indulging in, and he has no great regard for Wilson, the financier, who promised so much for the bank, but whose chief achievement seems to have been the wooing of Lena Deike from California. This man is a lawyer who has much to do with practical affairs. In discussing the defunct banking company, he said:

“Of course I do not think there was anything very sound in the ideas of Bartlett or in the schemes of Wilson. But there was one real reason why the California Safe Deposit and Trust Company could not be rehabilitated. That reason was that the other banks of San Francisco did not want it rehabilitated. They did not want another rival in the field. As a consequence they quietly blocked every effort to get the necessary money for rehabilitation—and the job is up.”

The Illness of Papa

If you hear our handsomest real estate broker addressed as “Doctor” you may know that behind the title is a bit of a jest. This is the way the story runs the rounds of the hotels and clubs:

There was to be a party. Some of the men were disappointed in getting their girls, but our hero showed up with a stunner, a pippin, a lulu, a peach. He just lorded it over the others and was the envy of them all.

Then as the evening was well along the young lady was called to the telephone. She came back distressed, to say:

“Oh, my papa has been taken dreadfully ill and I must go home right away. The doctor is coming for me in his automobile.”

Sure enough, an automobile called, and those who went to the door with the young lady said: “My, but that was a mighty handsome doctor.”

Afterward, on his way home, our hero stopped at the home of his lady to make inquiries as to papa's condition. Mamma came to the door.

“How is Mr. Smith?” asked our hero.

“Why, he's all right—why do you ask?” He came home early and went to bed.

“Isn't he ill?”

“Oh—ah—er—well, good night!”

“Good night!”

Another Doctor and Another Girl

At the Bohemian Club they are telling another doctor story. According to the wits this was the occurrence:

A doctor who has an eye for feminine beauty walked out of the club and there was a young lady standing at the corner of Post and Taylor streets—a dream of loveliness.

“Waiting for a car?” asked the doctor to make conversation.

“Sir!”

“Fine day, isn't it?”

“Sir!”

“Are you waiting for some one from the club?”

“Yes, and here he comes now!”

The doctor gave a hurried glance behind him and saw coming one of the biggest and most athletic of the club members. Then he beat it.

But the big club member joined the girl and soon the two were on the doctor's track. The faster he walked, the faster they walked—down Post street. In the doctor's ear was constantly the muttering of the big member's vengeance. He turned up Mason street. The big member and the girl turned after him. He doubled up Sutter street. They doubled, too. He almost ran, but they kept pace behind him. He hurried down Taylor street and rushed back into the club. He had been chased clear around the block.

Then the big member and the girl walked off exploding with laughter as they went. And, of course, the joke was too good to keep and of course it does not lose anything as it goes the rounds.

The Serious Side of Club Men

Down at the cross-roads village of Portola in San Mateo county is a little Catholic Church. Next to the village is “the Farm” of The Family, where the club men, generally supposed to be the most careless of all club men, have their frolics and their games.

Presiding over the destinies of that little church and the parish is Father Lacombe, and after-mass on Sunday the good father goes over to “the Farm” and has a chat with the club men, some of whom attend his services. He is a welcome guest at all times—in fact, he is growing to be very much loved by the men of all creeds or no creed at all.

There is a debt of about $1000 on Father Lacombe's little church. The debt is a heavy one for the little parish. And now those men of the care-free club are arranging to pay off that debt and make Father Lacombe's heart lighter thereby. A committee has been appointed to take the matter up, and is to begin arrangements next Tuesday night.

All of which may show many people an unexpected view of club men—the good and serious side.

Exposition Director's Dream

The directors of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition having given publicity to their dream in relation to a site for the big fair, they are now engaged in reducing this vision to a concrete plan that shall be no idle fancy—otherwise preparing to cut their garment in accordance with the cloth at their disposal.

The report, or recommendation, which included miles and miles of broad boulevards, “intermural” railway, terraced hills and esplanades, the largest statue in the world, the greatest observatory ever constructed, costly and permanent structures for art gallery, coliseum, auditorium, aquarium, yacht harbor and other construction on a mammoth scale, proved to be largely an iridescent dream, much of which vanished with the awakening on the morrow.

A calmer review of the proposed plan disclosed that an exposition on the lines suggested would cost at least $50,000,000, and probably $70,000,000. While still pleased at the exhibit of the powers of their imaginations the directors are slowly coming to earth and devoting their efforts to ascertaining the relative possibilities of the exposition and the approximately $20,000,000 at their disposal for the purposes of the great international fair.

The exposition will have permanent buildings, boulevards, electric railways and much that is instructive, beautiful and entertaining, but the general primary plan will be confined to an expenditure of not more than $20,000,000 and with that San Francisco and California will be able to present a far more attractive exposition than have been any of its predecessors.

The principal part of the exposition will be at Harbor View and the main entrance situated near Fort Mason. Permanent structures include an art gallery, a coliseum at the present stadium and an aquarium probably will be placed in Golden Gate Park. The outlook is for an auditorium and grand opera house near the intersection of Market street and Van Ness avenue. It is proposed to place the county exhibits, including live-stock, etc., in the section between Lincoln and Golden Gate Parks.

Public clamor forced the directors to give out “something” in the line of the choosing of a site, which they did. Now the board is normal once more and the business of the exposition is being conducted on practical business lines.

A Tailor, Not a Sailor

The appointment by Governor Johnson of Thomas S. Williams, the successful merchant tailor, to the office of Harbor Commissioner has been a much discussed topic in water front and shipping circles generally. The new member of the board has indicated that he will favor a policy of rigid economy, as during the first week of his administration he has effected a considerable saving by reducing the amount of soap used in the lavatories and offices of the Ferry building.

A story that has much vogue on the city front runs to the experiences of Ole Lindbloom, now a wealthy mining man and known as one of the “Lucky Swedes,” who made fortunes at Nome during the rush for gold in that section of Alaska.

Lindbloom was a journeyman tailor in this city and a good one; it is said. Ole had a weakness that made it difficult for him to return to his home of a Saturday night with his week's wages intact. On one of these fateful occasions Ole had an unpleasant encounter with his justly indignant spouse, out of which he came somewhat demoralized. A repetition of this separation from his wages occurred the following Saturday night and Ole feared to go home, so keen was his recollection of the experiences of the week before.

The following Monday found Lindbloom on board a sailing vessel passing out of this port and bound for Nome. When the ship got outside the Heads the sailors were called forward and assigned to their watches. Lindbloom was put in the first mate's watch. A little later he received orders to go aloft and set sail.

“I bane no sailor,” pleaded Ole in pathetic accents.

“What are you here for then?” gruffly inquired the mate, who then called the captain and repeated Ole's statement of his lack of seamanship.

“Didn't you tell me you were a sailor?” bawled the captain.

“I bane no sailor, I bane a tailor,” almost wailed the thoroughly frightened Ole.

Then there was trouble between the sturdy skipper and Ole which resulted in the latter being incapacitated for the remainder of the voyage.

Arriving at Nome Lindbloom found the Swedish

Mission and was soon at home among his own countrymen, and in company with them in a short time struck it rich and amassed considerable wealth.

In his prosperity Lindbloom never forgot the captain of the hot temper and heavy fists and whenever the skipper was in port at Nome he was Ole's guest at a dinner, and it cost something to be hospitable at Nome in those days. But Ole sought to put the captain at ease and at the same time duly impress him with the importance of his former “sailor” by always reminding him:

“I bane a rich man now.”

Elections Come High

Political campaigns cost money, and lots of it. In the canvass of Hiram W. Johnson in this city last year the committees in charge of his campaign for Governor raised and expended a little in excess of $85,000 for his fight in San Francisco alone. This sum was almost wholly contributed by persons and corporations in comparatively large sums. The “popular subscription” of one dollar was a financial failure. Not sufficient money was received from it to pay the postage on the scheme. The requests, numbering about 40,000, were sent out in sealed envelopes, requiring two-cent stamps, and other stamps of the same denomination were enclosed for the return contribution. The amount received from this source was less than $1500.

In the current city campaign the Municipal Conference of 1911 is popularly credited with a campaign fund of $50,000. This is the organization that is most active in promoting Rolph's candidacy for mayor. On the other side of the contest for this office the clubs and other organizations to the fore in McCarthy's canvass for mayor are credited with having collected almost fabulous sums to advance his cause. These figures are probably much exaggerated, as none of them run into less than six figures and in some instances are in excess of $400,000.

Then the sums being expended by the candidates for other offices, individually and through their friends, are large, but of course all the statements filed after the election of the amounts disbursed by the candidates will come strictly within the limits set by the law.

First Federal Appointment

The next Federal office, situated in this city, that will become vacant by expiration of term is that of Postmaster Arthur Fisk and not that of Assistant United States Treasurer William C. Ralston, as heretofore suggested. Fisk's second term will expire in February of next year, whereas the first term of Ralston in the sub-treasury will not come to a conclusion until the 24th of May next.

The postmastership commands a salary of $6000 a year and carries with it much patronage, both of which are strong attractions for aspirants to the billet. Senators Perkins and Works having come together in concord over the appointment of General Samuel W. Backus for Commissioner of Immigration to succeed Hart North at this port, it is presumable that they will continue that harmonious relation in the making of other appointments.

The appointment of Immigration Commissioner belonged to Senator Perkins in the apportionment of the patronage between the two Senators. But Senator Works particularly desired the selection of his friend and close associate in Christian Science, General Backus. It is understood in Federal circles here that notwithstanding Senator Perkins had a candidate of his choice he conceded the junior Senator's request and joined with the latter in recommending Backus to President Taft. It is expected that the harmonious relation thus engendered will continue in the making of subsequent selections for Federal appointment.

Some of the interested politicians would like to have seen the test of this relation between the two Senators first made by Ralston, the latter having held his office but one term, and it being conceded, all other conditions being favorable, that an appointee is entitled to two terms. Fisk will have served two terms next February and that fact, together with the allurements of the extensive patronage of the office, may cause to be introduced a number of aspirants for the place, and thus a merry scramble for the plum may be precipitated.

“Tim” Sullivan, Millionaire

That San Francisco is a pleasure loving town is shown by recent activities in theater construction. The Cort Theater is to be opened to the public next month, adding one more first-class playhouse to the already large number in this city, and that in the face of the fact that the legitimate business has been badly shot to pieces of late by the introduction of vaudeville and other performance in the cafes.

But it was not theaters in general that I had in view in beginning this paragraph, but rather the luck, good fortune, or whatever designation may best apply to the success of one of San Francisco's well known citizens, and the Cort Theater is but an incident in that relation. The man to whom I refer is Timothy R. Sullivan, active in local politics here for many years and in which game he was familiarly known as "Tim" Sullivan. In short he has become so accustomed to that name that it is said he occasionally inadvertently signs it to checks, for "Tim" is now a millionaire.

For years Sullivan, when not engaged in politics or other employment in this city, wooed Dame Fortune as a prospector and miner on the burning deserts of Arizona and Mexico and later when gold was found at Nome he was among the first to try his luck in the snow and ice of Alaska, his camp being the furthest north in that territory of any pitched by the goldseekers of that exciting time.

But luck eluded his efforts and it was not until after the fire of 1906 that the fickle dame looked with favor upon his overtures, and then, too, when he was living in comfort in his own city home rather than sleeping on blankets in an Arizona mining camp or endeavoring to keep from freezing in a sleeping bag at night and driving a dog-sledge by day in Alaska.

In 1906 Sullivan engaged in the electric fixture fitting business in a comparatively small way. He had for a partner Fred G. Cartwright, a mechanical and electric engineer. They both now hold large interests in the Equitable Electric Lighting and Power Company, one of the concerns included in the United Property's Company, which recently combined several enterprises under its capitalization of $200,000,000.

A Theatrical Venture

Sullivan and Cartwright are also engaged in the electrical construction business under the name of the Metropolitan Construction Company. It was this concern that took the contract for wiring the new theater on O'Farrell street near Market, which was then being constructed by William Morris, who represented a syndicate running in opposition to the theater trust. Morris' main backer was "Little Tim" Sullivan, the New York politician. The latter died when the construction of the local theater was but fairly under way. By the advice of "Big Tim" Sullivan of New York, the widow of "Little Tim" withdrew from her husband's theatrical ventures. Morris discontinued work on the theater and Sullivan and Cartwright took over the property and will have carried the building to completion and ready for opening early next month, as required by the original contracts.

In this new theatrical venture is traced the novel condition of a theater the construction of which was originally financed by "Little Tim" Sullivan of New York, then discontinued by "Big Tim" of the Eastern metropolis and later completed by San Francisco's "Tim" Sullivan.

It is said that the new theater has been leased to the Cort syndicate for a term of ten years at $35,000 a year. In addition to this Sullivan and his partner hold a large percentage interest in its receipts.

Presidential Campaign

The politicians of high degree still are marking time and awaiting orders for a forward movement in the National campaign. There is talk that after the adjournment of Congress President Taft will go to Alaska to personally investigate the coal situation in that territory. This is accompanied by a suggestion that the President will visit San Francisco to view the Panama-Pacific Exposition grounds on his return trip. These stories, however, are not given keen support by those believed to be in touch with the authorities at the National capital.

California's National Committeeman, George A. Knight, was in San Francisco last week. He, too, is awaiting orders. It seems to be understood that Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican National Committee, will visit California at an early date and possibly the National campaign in California will date from his arrival. There is no doubt but Taft will secure California's delegation to the National Convention, the only question being as to the manner of electing this delegation.

It has been the practice of the Republican National committees to use the Congressional district as the unit of apportionment in its calls for the election of delegates for National conventions. Should this same policy obtain in the approaching election the Lincoln-Roosevelt League delegations to the nominating conventions of last year will be put out of commission, as they were all elected on a county apportionment plan. Delegates to the State Convention, called to choose delegates to the National convention, would have to be elected anew and probably under the provisions of a call of the National Committee promulgated when the National governing body of the Republican party meets in Chicago next December.

The Lincoln-Roosevelt Leaguers are in a bad state of dumps. Their sudden melancholy is the result of their being obliged to throw La Follette, whom they had intended to make their standard-bearer, overboard. They are now drifting like a ship without a rudder. Not only are they, minus a candidate, but their dumpiness is increased by the knowledge that several of the counties of California which were in the League column last year will be for Taft for President no matter what the method of choosing delegates to the National nominating convention may be.

Frank W. Marvin, president of the Good Government League, a section of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League machine, recently flew the following signal of distress in an interview: "If we could only induce Roosevelt to run he would be elected in a walk. Of course we will not stand for Taft, particularly after that letter to Ballinger."

Marvin was a delegate to the last National convention and swung into line for Taft and at one time even favored George A. Knight for Vice-President. He now assumes to believe that the Lincoln-Roosevelt League is the whole Republican party, his political horizon having been much narrowed by his failure to secure a political appointment. He still has hopes, however, and his eyes are turned toward Governor Johnson with pleading gaze.

THE KNAVE.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK CAUSES GENERAL NERVOUSNESS

Crop Conditions and Stock Market Become Very Unsettled During Week.

CORN AND WHEAT YIELD IS SHORT

Impending Dissolution of Tobacco Trust and Standard Oil Cramps Speculation.

(By RALPH EMERSON.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—This has been a week of general disappointment from several important view points, more especially crop conditions and the course of the stock market. It is an indisputable fact that the leading crops of the country, with the single exception of cotton, have undergone a deterioration not generally known, even a week ago. Next to the report of the government bureau will show considerable decline in corn and spring wheat. In the meantime preliminary estimates of the probable harvest outcome are being freely indulged in. One of the best known crop experts predicts a total yield of 2,550,000 bushels of corn, 455,000,000 bushels of winter wheat, 215,000,000 bushels of spring wheat and 760,000,000 bushels of oats.

STOCK OF TRUSTS DECLINES.

The unexpected break in stocks to a level as low as that reached in May, and five or six points in two weeks, partly contribute to the unfavorable crop outlook. It was started, however, by the announcement of the decision of the American Tobacco company to postpone its common stock dividend until the pending dissolution of the company should be effected. This was a specific and trying evidence of the hardships to the stockholders of the corporation of the anti-trust laws.

Another instance was given in the plan of the Standard Oil company to distribute among its shareholders parts of about two score companies in return for each of the Standard Oil of New Jersey. This has caused selling of the stock of that concern. Its market price and that of the American Tobacco company have depreciated about $15,000,000 in the last few weeks.

Naturally these interests have disturbed holders of the shares of other trusts. More than this, they have irritated the large financial interests and again provoked them to expressions of harsh opinions of government policies as regards corporations. Railroad managers are bitter again and none the less so when they see approaching signs of new rate reductions.

LUMBER COLLAPSES AND TEAMSTER IS INJURED

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—P. J. Burke of 3283 Army street, a teamster for the Pope & Talbot Lumber Company, had his foot crushed beneath a load of boards at Anderson's shipways at Hunter's Point tonight. The load fell upon him before he could get out of the way and in addition to his foot injury he received a lacerated wound of the scalp and a cut on the forehead. He was treated at the Potrero Emergency Hospital.

BAPTIST SERMON. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—Rev. Norman Wilfred Pendleton, pastor, will preach at the Covenant Baptist Church, Fourth avenue, near Clement, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock on "The Coin That Rings True"; and in the evening at 8 o'clock on "The Heroic Order of Pioneers."

ROYAL MATCHMAKERS ARE BUSY OVER ALL OF EUROPE

PARIS, Aug. 5.—How to produce such an ideal strain of royalty in Europe as to prevent the monarchical system becoming discredited—that is the task French savants have set themselves.

The recent engagement of the prettiest royal princess in Europe, Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Crown Prince of Romania, with Prince George, son of the Crown Prince Constantine of Greece, and the rumors as to the matrimonial intentions of the Prince of Wales and Princess Victoria Louise of Prussia, have riveted public attention once more on the mating of royalties.

Like all royal matings, this Greco-Romanian one is a political affair. But while in France marriages are distinguished into unions of love and unions of convenience, these wise men have set themselves the task of balancing royal temperaments so nicely as to find a scientific basis for imperial matchmaking. They claim to be able to prove that certain royal types should wed certain other types, regardless of all other considerations. If an ideal succession is to be produced.

In these lucubrations there is no necessity to dwell upon the royal widows. For, though they are numerous, and some of them are beautiful, like ex-Queen Natalie of Serbia, and some of them are youthful, like ex-Queen Marie-Amelie of Portugal, who is only 45, not one of them is likely to follow the example of Queen Christina of Spain, who found her affinity in a blue-keeper, ennobled him and married him.

A mixture of astronomy and of astrology, which by the way, certain Frenchmen are trying to rehabilitate, is brought to bear upon this question. It is brought to bear upon this question of making royal types of certain planets; some are of the Luna type, some of Mercury, some of Mars and some of Venus. Others are of more complicated types, such as that of earth-Mercury, Luna-Mercury, Saturn-Luna, etc. Again we may find a combination of the types of earth, Mercury, and Luna, of Saturn, Mars and Venus.

Like diseases, each has to be diagnosed. Similar types must not marry. The Saturn type should not wed that of Saturn nor the Mars that of the god of war. Venus should seek another type than that of the star of the evening. But a more negative rule, a difference of type is not enough; the actual affinity between the different types must be found.

DISMAL OUTLOOK.

According to the advocates of the new theory, the engagement of Princess Elizabeth of Roumania and Prince George of Greece must lead to matrimonial disaster. For there can be no affinity between them. The Prince is too much of an Apollo Belvedere. There is something of the Apollo in both. The nose and forehead of the Roumanian Princess are those of Apollo, although her eyes recall Diana. Her affinity would be found in Prince Adalbert of Prussia, third son of the German Emperor.

The senior of the marriageable royal princesses is Her Royal Highness, Princess Victoria, of Great Britain and Ireland, the only unmarried daughter of the late King Edward. She is 43 years old. And it often puzzled the friends of the good King Edward, who was a matchmaker as well as a peace-maker, why he did not find a suitable husband for his dignified daughter. According to the new system, her affinity is an Austrian archduke, but the obstacles are so great that a marriage is not likely.

Speaking of the Austrian archduke reminds me that there is an interesting royal princess there who should marry Prince Oscar of Prussia. She is the Archduchess Mechthild Marie, daughter of His Imperial and Royal Highness, Archduke Charles, and of the Archduchess Marie-Theresa of Tuscany. She will be 20 years old next October. Prince Oscar is three years her senior. He is described as being of the purely Germanic type, brave, dutiful, but lacking decision of character. The Archduchess has the long nose and short upper lip of Saturn and the small shell-like ears and rounded chin of Venus. She is described as being of the Juno type with the strength of Jupiter in her forehead. It will doubtless be very difficult to find a suitable mate for Princess Victoria Louise of Prussia, daughter of Kaiser William. She was born on September 13, 1892, at Marmor Park, one of the sixty dwelling places of His Majesty. The news will not please her royal parents, but her affinity is Prince George Kara-Georgevitch, eldest son of King Peter of Serbia. He ought to be the Crown Prince and heir to the throne. While he did not sell his birthright for a mess of pottage, his warlike spirit got him into trouble at Belgrade. He renounced his right to the throne in favor of his younger brother, Prince Alexander, and is now living obscurely with his regiment in a mountain village far away from the capital. He has the dark eyes of his mother, Princess Zorka of Montenegro, who died when the child was only two years old. Prince George is now 33. As he is not heir to the throne, it is very unlikely, in spite of affinity, that any ruler will ever give his consent to the marriage of his daughter with such an unimpressive subject. No Princess Victoria Louise is more likely to ignore astrologers and mate with the Prince of Wales or some other notable prize in the marriage mart.

AS TO MANUEL.

For his years, more efforts have been made to find the affinity of ex-King Manuel of Portugal than for any other royalty. His romance with Gaby Deslys, who passed over as a boyish adventure, the late King Edward and Manuel the Second's mother, Queen Marie-Amelie, made extraordinary efforts to find this young man a suitable wife. But though Manuel has some excellent qualities, no available royal princess could be found to sit with him on a throne and be the bride of a man whose father and of his elder brother, Princess Patricia of Connaught, for instance, rejected him with an emphasis there was no mistaking.

Judged by the new science, his real affinity is Princess Thyra of Denmark. The fact that King Frederick's daughter is very much Manuel's senior makes no difference where matings by combined astronomy and astrology are concerned. The Princess is in her 31st year; the ex-King is not yet 24. Yet they should marry, say the savants. For Princess Thyra is of the earth-Mercury type, her forehead and mouth are of the former, her chin and facial expression are of the latter. (And King Manuel is of the type Luna-Mercury. But even she would not give much for Manuel's financial prospects, nowadays.)

For several reasons, the Crown Prince of Bulgaria is one of the most interesting royal princes in Europe. His paternal grandmother, the Princess Clementine de Bourbon-Orleans, who died in 1907, at the age of 90, was the keenest woman politician in Europe. His father, taking advantage of the political situation in the Balkan and neighboring states, had himself proclaimed Emperor under the title of Ferdinand the First, three years ago. The Crown Prince, who is named after the Bulgarian Tzar and hero, Boris, first attracted the attention of Europe by an unseemly quarrel about his baptism. Prince Ferdinand insisted that the heir to the throne should be of the religion of the Bulgarian nation. He carried his political point, but Boris' mother, who was a Princess of Bourbon-Parme, died of a broken heart.

TO LEARN COST TO VESSEL COLLIDES WITH BIG ICEBERG

Anchor Liner Columbia Runs Into Obstacle in Dense Fog.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Wireless messages received here tell of the collision on Wednesday morning of the Anchor line steamer Columbia, from Glasgow, with an iceberg 150 miles north of Cape Race, off the coast of New Foundland. Officials of the line decline to make public the dispatches, but said that the accident resulted in slight damage to the vessel, no injury to passengers and occurred during a dense fog.

The Columbia is a vessel of 8000 tons. She sailed from Glasgow on July 29, with 410 first and second-class cabin passengers and 105 steerage passengers. Officials of the line said last night that she would reach here under her own steam on schedule time tomorrow.

"MEASURE OF MAN." SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—The Rev. Fletcher Cook, Ph. D., will deliver the eighth in his series of sermons on "The Measure of Man" tomorrow afternoon at the 5 o'clock vesper service at Grace Protestant Episcopal Cathedral and Taylor streets. His subject will be "The Dominion of Man."

The presentation of a memorial, addressed to all of the governments of the world on the subject of the prohibition from harmful use of all intoxicants, is one of the striking features of the Second International Prohibition Conference at The Hague, Holland, during the week of September 10-16. It is proposed to directly bring to the attention of all the ruling sovereigns of the world, and their chief legislative advisers, the importance of a serious inquiry into the moral and economic damage inflicted by the use of alcohol, opium, hashish, etc. It is hoped that deep and favorable impression may thereby be made, over probably the widest area ever yet attempted in the history of any social reform.

The two special prohibition sessions have been fixed for Wednesday, September 13; and at such other times and places as may be arranged for later. Among those who are expected to take part on the program are Prof. Robert Herod, Ph. D., Switzerland; Miss Agnes Slack, England; Herr P. Van Der Meulen, Holland; Prof. Taav Laitinen, M. D., Finland; Samuel Dickie, D. D., LL. D., United States; Judge Herman M. Popert, Germany; Hon. E. Wavinsky, M. P., Sweden; Dr. Matti Helenius-Sapponen, M. P., Finland; C. W. Saleeby, M. D., F. R. S. E., England. The president, Guy Hayler, past international superintendent of the International Order of Good Templars, will preside.

ALL NATIONS TO PARTICIPATE. A roll call of the nations will give the delegates and others present opportunity to report the notable progress which the prohibition cause continues to make around the world. Large parties are reported to be under arrangement from various countries to attend the prohibition conference and the Thirteenth International Congress Against Alcoholism, with which the congress is affiliated. The congress meets at the invitation of Queen Wilhelmina, and the Dutch government, and a brilliant and varied program is rapidly approaching completion on the part of the Dutch total abstinence societies. The foreign travel facilities have been largely entrusted to the Prohibition Conference, which is arranging for special trains, boat accommodations, etc. between London and Scheveningen, the seaside suburb of The Hague, where the main sessions of the congress and conference will be held in the Kurhaus.

TEMPERANCE EXHIBITION. Joint Prohibition and International I. O. G. T. headquarters at Scheveningen have been fixed upon at the Hotel de Gales and the Grand Hotel Royal. At the latter an important temperance exhibition will be held under the united auspices of the Swedish government, the I. O. G. T. and the Prohibition Confederation. Advantageous hotel arrangements have been made both at The Hague and at Scheveningen for all who contemplate attending the conference and the congress. Full details of arrangements in general may be had on application to Edward Page Gaston, honorary secretary, International Prohibition Confederation, 133-4 Salisbury Square, London, E. C. England.

AGED MEN IN BLOODY FIGHT

M'Loughlin and Bundy Victorious

Hugh Craig and W. C. Hamilton Come to Blows in Syndicate Office.

The Mayor of Piedmont, as Hugh Craig has been familiarly known, was a party to a lively fist fight in the office of the Realty Syndicate yesterday afternoon. His opponent was William C. Hamilton, 60 years old, a salesman, and it is said that glasses were shattered, cravats torn and blood spattered before the final blow had been put over.

Craig would not admit that there was a battle, and neither would Hamilton, but the latter finally admitted that there had been something doing and that he had come out on top.

One of the salesmen declared that the fight had been hanging fire for some time and that Hamilton's rights had been trampled upon by Craig. The latter is close to 70 and it is said that on several occasions he has been called upon to use his fists.

Success of Parcel Post Law Predicted
By Many United States Officials

Cage for registered parcels of the British Parcel Post Service which is giving infinite satisfaction in the United Kingdom. In England they carry parcels up to eleven pounds in weight not more than three feet six inches long, and the rate from any point in the United Kingdom to any other point is six cents (3d) for one pound, up to 22 cents for eleven pounds.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—It is the belief of many that the parcels post bill will pass and among these is the postmaster general. Those who favor the parcels post here point out its successful operation in England and the satisfaction it is giving to all concerned.

If the parcels post bill becomes a law in the United States it will be possible to send by mail all small packages that now go by express. The express companies say that the service will not be so satisfactory and in the end will cost the community more money.

In England they carry parcels up to eleven pounds in weight not more than three feet six inches long, and the rate from any point in the United Kingdom to any other point is six cents (3d) for one pound, up to 22 cents for eleven pounds. The parcels rates from Great Britain to points in Germany are 25 cents for three pounds up to 50 cents for eleven pounds.

There are details of the parcels post business which may be adopted by this country in time. For example, in England they have a special messenger service, known as express delivery service. The charge for this special delivery is 6 cents on each package over one pound in weight. There is a C. O. D. arrangement with certain countries under which, for a charge of 8 cents, collection is made on packages, up to $25 in value and so on up to a maximum of $100.

ANNEXED DISTRICTS WILL ASK COUNCIL FOR SEWERS

Rousing Meeting of Improvement Clubs to Discuss Ways and Means to Meet Emergency

The Laurel Grove Improvement Club was host, last night, to a number of improvement clubs in the four sanitary districts in the annexed territory whose sewer bonds were invalidated by a recent decision of the supreme court. Discussing means for relief under the circumstances, occupied most of the time.

It was decided to petition the City Council to order the construction of a sewer system in the four districts referred to, under the "Vrooman act."

A committee consisting of at least three members from each club will attend the council meeting, Wednesday morning and advocate an appropriation for the work of $150,000, on the ground that there is a crisis impending in which the health of the people is threatened.

The chairman of the committee will be Phillip Riley.

There was a great variety of methods for relief discussed, among them being that of a main sewer system, to resort to the Vrooman act, or to petition the council for the work, or to appeal to Governor Johnson to bring the matter before the legislature and an appeal to the legislature to pass a bill to afford relief.

The following resolutions, by W. F. Broderick, were unanimously adopted:

APPEAL TO COUNCIL.

"To the Honorable the Council of the City of Oakland:

"Gentlemen—Whereas, The supreme court of California has held to be invalid the proceedings heretofore taken for the sewerage of the territory comprised in Oakland, Sewer District No. 1; and

"Whereas, It is absolutely essential to the protection of our health and the preservation of our property interests that a sewer system be installed at once; therefore, the undersigned, owners of property within the said Oakland Sewer District No. 1, hereby, petition your honorable body to take such action as will secure the construction of the necessary sewer system at the earliest possible date, and to such end we particularly petition as follows:

"First—That the petition for a rehearing of the sewer case be pressed.

"Second—That in the meantime all preliminary steps be taken to install sewers under the general state laws, generally known as the Vrooman act.

"Your petitioners further state that it is fully understood by them that the cost of the necessary sewer system will be greatly increased by proceeding under the general state laws, and further increased if deferred payments are permitted."

SEWERS AT ANY COST.

John Duffy presided and C. Hubn was secretary of the meeting. The first speaker, E. Bardellini, said he had preached sewers for years. The time had now arrived to stop talking. There was no doubt that sewers were needed, that the people wanted sewers, and the only thing to determine was how to get them, with least delay. Oakland could do nothing in the case. The legislature could do nothing. Bardellini was for sewers now, when they might cost. He did not favor an appeal to the legislature. He had never heard of men losing their homes through the expense of building sewers.

Bardellini wanted the matter to be discussed and action taken immediately. He was opposed to going before the city again. The people were supposed to have the best legal talent and yet they were at the present time only where they were when they began. He again proposed that the people pay for the sewers under Vrooman law construction.

CRITICISES SUPREME COURT.

F. S. Gladding suggested that the recall might be used upon the justices of the supreme court at the next election. He was not entirely pleased with the decision of the supreme court of California to invalidate the sewer bonds of the annexed territory. He thought that the recall of the justices of the supreme court would afford the desired relief.

Frickstad said that Woolner intimated the law might be prepared with a favorable recommendation from the justices. He thought, too, that the question of a re-hearing ought to be pressed as earnestly as possible. If the rehearing should not be granted the district might circulate a petition invoking the Vrooman act and in the event the court refused to take a petition could be withdrawn. He thought also the district should appoint a committee to discuss the matter with the officials of the city.

VROOMAN ACT DISCUSSED.

Questions were propounded by Mr. Frickstad by several of those present regarding the working of the Vrooman act to which he replied in detail.

J. A. Currie thought the people of the district should stand together and get a petition signed by the owners of all the front footages and proceed under the Vrooman act. He asked how long it would take to have relief afforded and to which he replied in detail.

W. F. Broderick, favored proceeding under the Vrooman law. He did not think the supreme court would reverse itself.

Bardellini said that he was ready to take a petition and go to the bat to have the work done under the Vrooman law.

Another resident of the district stated that he thought that if the people of Oakland, of which the four districts were a part, were asked to vote bonds for main sewer, they would do it because they would be voting to protect themselves as every resident in the older Oakland knew that sewers were a necessity.

PLAINTIFF IN CASE.

F. W. S. Brookes, the plaintiff in the case that caused the decision regarding the bonds, said that thousands of dollars had been lost to the district by the decision. It seemed to be hopeless to expect relief by the passing of any more laws for the reason that the very law which the supreme court had pointed out would be the one that would be followed by the very one the court had declared unconstitutional. The only way that seemed clear to him was to get the district to sign up in favor of the Vrooman act. There was nothing lost by signing in that manner. He believed it regardless of the expense cost over the bonding method because the sewers were an absolute necessity.

Ben Wilson said that he had spoken to City Attorney Woolner in the premises as also with the mayor, and that both of them felt hopeful that they would be able to get some understanding with the judges that a bill could be introduced which would have their approval and would help the people in the district. He believed that they would still be able to get relief through a new law.

HAD THE LAUGH.

Bardellini said that was where they got the laugh the last time. They had been told that when they got their sewers they would have the laugh on Alameda, but Alameda now had the laugh on them.

Phillip Riley said that he thought the best way was to petition the city council to include the cost of a main sewer in the budget for this year and that he thought that the councilmen would favor it because they all knew that sewers could not be got along without in the older part of the city, and that they could not be got along without in the new section either.

This idea found favor with many and finally the action taken as above referred to was the result. There was more desultory discussion and then the meeting adjourned.

PROPOSES BIG MASS MEETING.

He suggested that they call a mass meeting and discuss the matter. He would rather be in jail than not give expression to his views. His wife would take in washing if the neighbors did not bring in some carcases.

Walter N. Frickstad of the city engineer's office said that it was difficult to tell what ought to be done in order to get sewers quickly.

City Attorney Woolner had suggested three means by which relief might be afforded. The first was to get a re-hearing by the supreme court of the case. Frickstad doubted that there would be a reversal of the decision even in the event of a re-hearing. There were several reasons assigned for the opinion but he understood that there was only one of them considered and that was that the people of the district had not had an opportunity to show whether they were opposed to the bonds.

APPEAL TO VROOMAN ACT.

The second method of relief was to resort to the Vrooman act but Frickstad said the cost by that plan would be from 30 to 40 per cent greater than by the bond method and it would take a great deal longer to get the sewers.

A sewer system costing $100,000 under bonds would under the Vrooman method cost from $130,000 to $140,000. A great deal of time would be spent in securing a right of way. That would have to be done after the manner of perpetual easement like the giving of a deed. Beside there would be delay especially if the right of way had to be secured from a railway.

The third manner suggested by Woolner, according to the speaker, was to appeal to the governor to include in the call for the extraordinary session of the legislature next fall the subject of enacting legislation which would afford the desired relief.

Frickstad said that Woolner intimated the law might be prepared with a favorable recommendation from the justices. He thought, too, that the question of a re-hearing ought to be pressed as earnestly as possible. If the rehearing should not be granted the district might circulate a petition invoking the Vrooman act and in the event the court refused to take a petition could be withdrawn. He thought also the district should appoint a committee to discuss the matter with the officials of the city.

AMENDMENTS MAY BE INVALIDATED

Frank Jordan Says Clerks Made Errors in Submitting the List to Him.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 5.—Frank Jordan today made a request for legal advice to Attorney General Webb, asserting that the last legislature made errors in certifying and transmitting the proposed constitutional amendments to the Secretary of State.

It is pointed out that the copies were regularly certified by L. B. Mallory, chief clerk of the Assembly, and by Walter M. Parrish, secretary of the Senate, to Governor Johnson, and transmitted to Jordan by the executive secretary.

It was discovered, after adjournment, that the original copies, filed, were not accurate. Corrected copies were placed on record and it was asked that they be substituted.

Jordan is advised by his attorneys, he says, that he has no power to exercise discretion in the matter, but that he must submit the original and erroneous copies on October 10, and yet if these erroneous amendments are voted upon, the whole list of amendments may be invalidated.

The errors are laid to clerks and the matter has been put up to the attorney general for his decision.

The Bogle of Black Domination Laid.

The Federal census taken last year lays the bogle—permanently, we hope—of Negro domination in the South. It demonstrates beyond cavil that the natural increase of the white race in that section is greater than that of the blacks. In Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi the colored people come nearest to holding their own—that is, their relative proportion—but even there the percentage of increase, as shown by the birth and death rate, is in favor of the whites.

In Louisiana, which had a colored majority thirty years ago, the white preponderance of population has substantially increased. The former black majority has been turned into a decided minority. The white lead of ten years ago has considerably increased. This is due to three causes: White immigration from Europe and the North, the steady drift of Negroes to the North and West and the heavy death rate among the blacks. In New Orleans the death rate among the colored folk exceeds the birth rate, and the black population must be constantly replenished from the outside to hold its own. The whites now outnumber the blacks in the Crescent City by nearly two to one. In the rural districts the whites are increasing faster than the blacks.

In South Carolina and Mississippi the Negroes still outnumber the whites, but the latter are gradually closing the gap, and if something does not occur to arrest the present population movement will have a numerical superiority in the next generation. The Negroes are not holding their own on the farms, are drifting away to the towns North and South. In the South they are not employed as factory operators and hence the increase in Southern manufacturing activities swells the white population and drives out the blacks. This is noticeable in the Carolinas and Virginia. In North Carolina the percentage of increase among the Negroes is hardly one-third the increase shown among the whites. In Virginia it is hardly perceptible.

In Texas the whites have completely swamped the black population. There are still half a dozen minor counties in which the Negroes have a numerical superiority, but their preponderance is rapidly disappearing. Forces are at work which steadily diminish the black man's hold on the land and his place in the industrial organization.

The old plantations are disappearing. With them is going the Negro renter and his mule. Small white farmers who till their own land and only employ Negroes as a help are taking the place of the planter and his colored tenants. So the Negroes are drifting to the North and to the towns, where the majority of them huddle in slums and fall victims to tuberculosis and other diseases propagated by irregular habits and bad sanitation. The drain on the black population is not replenished from any source. Reproduction is its only source of supply. That source is neutralized to a large extent by a disproportionately high death rate which favors the whites whose numbers in the South are being steadily augmented by immigration from the North and from Europe.

The Negroes have substantially increased since the census of 1900 was taken, but more of them are north of the Potomac and the Ohio. And in the South the white race is multiplying faster than it is in the North. Furthermore, the Negroes are showing a diminished fecundity as they advance in education and material prosperity. They do not have so many children, showing the same tendency—to a considerably less degree—toward small families that is manifest with the increase in wealth among white people.

The net result is that the black race has lost ground relatively even in what is termed the black belt of the South. The colored people are not retrogressing, but a combination of circumstances is steadily reducing their numerical proportion south of the old Mason and Dixon line. The spectre of black domination is fading from view. The American Negroes, isolated from their kin and cut off from reinforcement by immigration, are year by year becoming a smaller element in the sum total of the country's population.

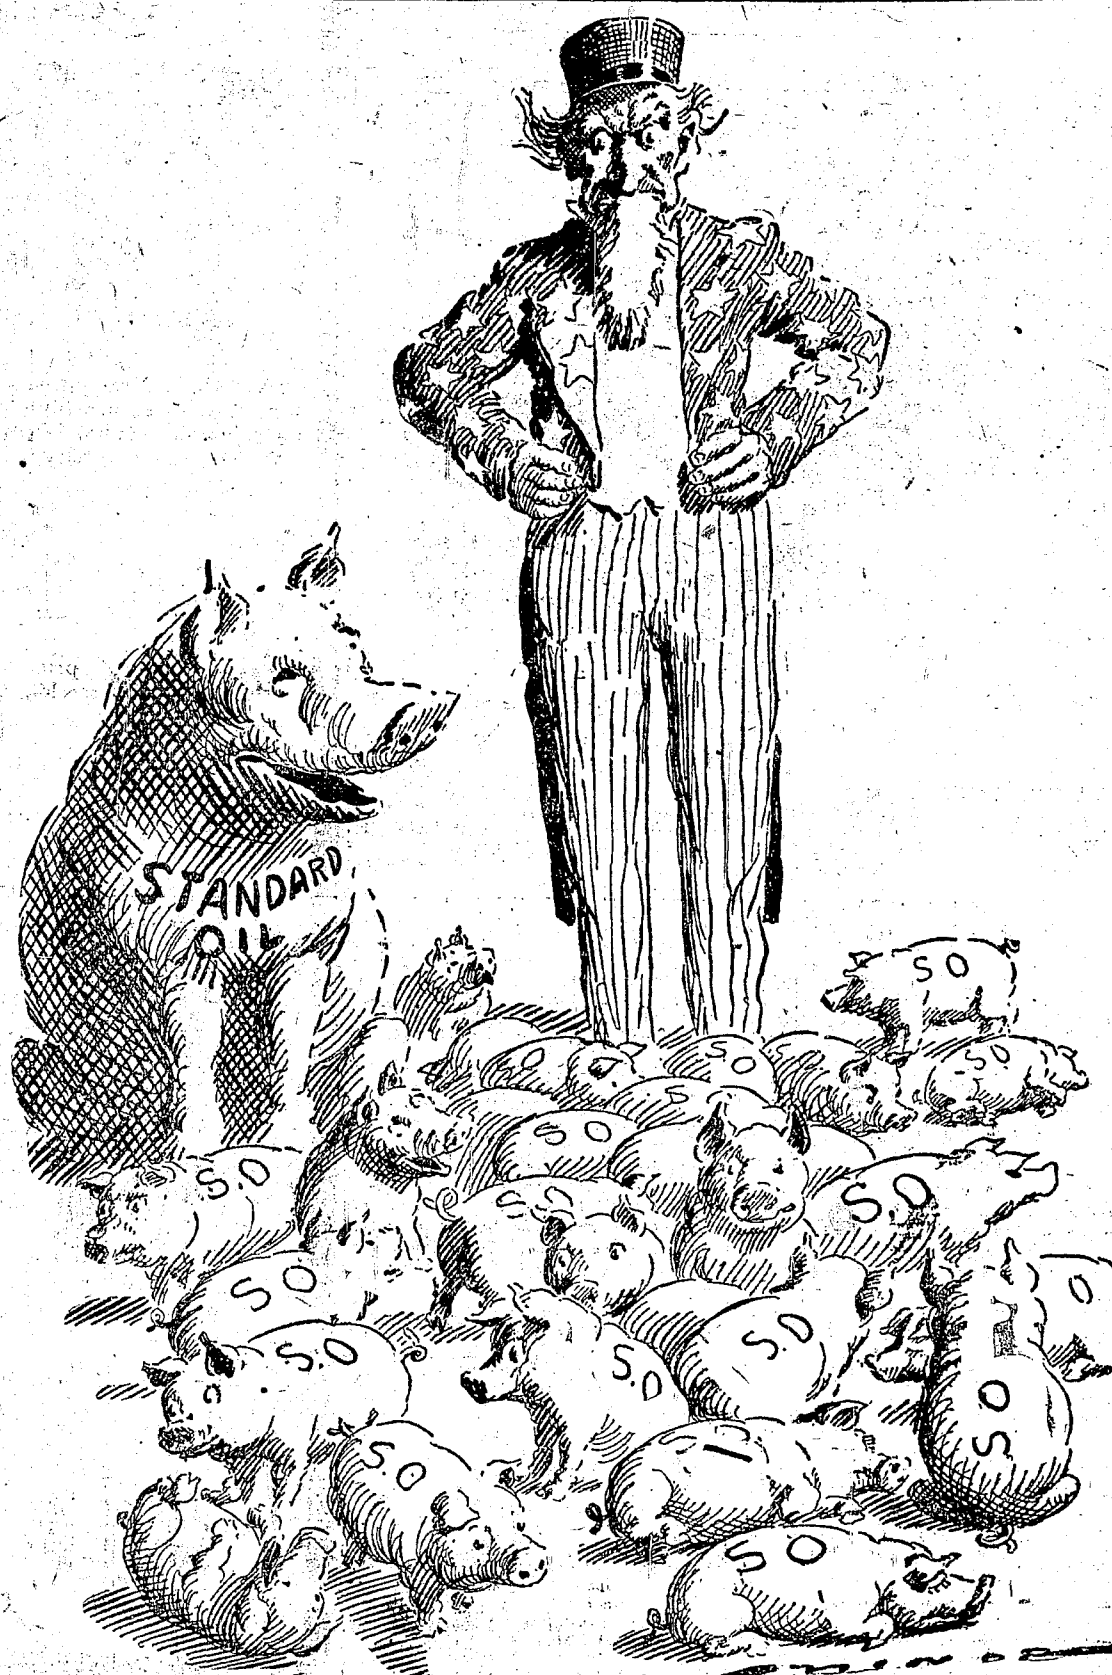

No sympathy need be wasted on Upton Sinclair because he was arrested and compelled to serve eighteen hours in jail, in Delaware, for playing tennis on Sunday. The law is an idiotic piece of bigotry, it is true, but Sinclair dug it up and had himself arrested for violating it for the sake of gaining notoriety. He has capitalized this fool law for an immense amount of free advertising and is doubtless overjoyed at the success of his expedient for gaining publicity free of cost. Let no one sorrow over Sinclair's alleged mistreatment; he would have been grieved and disappointed had he not been arrested. By refusing to pay a $4-fine he gained thousands of dollars' worth of free advertising for his books. In fact, he has worked this Delaware blue law for a bonanza. The arrest of some baseball players for playing in Nashville, Tennessee, on Sunday gave him the idea.

Now that the apportionment bill has passed the Senate, the political mathematicians are figuring out what the effect will be. The population increase in California during the last decade was 892,516. The Third and Seventh Congressional Districts furnish more than half this increase—to be exact, 466,872. The Third District has 133,039 new inhabitants, and the Seventh, which comprises Los Angeles county, has 333,833 more than in 1900. The First District, which has the doubtful honor of being represented at present in Congress by a Democrat, has gained 3564 inhabitants in the past ten years. Alameda county now has more than enough inhabitants to constitute a Congressional district by itself, while Los Angeles has enough for two and some to spare.

The Pacific Coast States will have six additional Representatives in the next Congress, counting only California, Oregon and Washington. Adding one from Arizona and the one gained by Montana the increase will total eight in the lower house. Arizona's two Senators will help swell the political strength of the Far West in the affairs of government. This section of the Union has ceased to be negligible quantity.

If anybody does not think Oakland is a growing and important city, let him ponder upon these facts: During the past six years $40,000,000 has been expended in this city in building and making other civic improvements. A third transcontinental railway has made Oakland its Pacific Coast terminus, and more than a score of manufacturing plants have been added to the city's industries. That scarcely is going some.

"PIGS IS PIGS"

Colonel Roosevelt and the T. C. and I. Deal.

Colonel Roosevelt corroborates Judge Gary's statement that the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company by the Steel Trust was an act of philanthropy. The Colonel says it was not pursuant to any speculative design, but was done to ward off a panic which was then imminent. Had the Steel Trust not purchased the plant, the banking house of Moore & Schley would have failed, other banks would have been embarrassed, the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company would have gone into the hands of a receiver and the stock market demoralized at a moment when the whole financial system in New York was tottering to a fall.

Putting aside the question of technical legality it does seem that the absorption averted a disaster that would have been widespread. Whether it was entirely justified depends upon the point of view, but in our opinion the deal was prompted by honorable motives and carried out mainly with intent to serve the public interests. This is not the popular view, but we think it is the correct one and we do not believe Theodore Roosevelt will suffer in the estimation of candid and thoughtful men for his part in the transaction.

A panic would have inflicted injury on millions, would have been a national calamity, in fact. It was a public blessing that it was averted, and it is neither wise nor fair to examine too minutely into the methods by which it was averted. Desperate diseases require desperate remedies, and while we are not disposed to regard with favor the financial operations of J. Pierpont Morgan generally, he acted in this instance with praiseworthy intent. At least, we believe so. The only unfortunate feature of the affair is that the deal enormously strengthened the power of an overgrown trust and put an end to a competition that promised to be formidable and beneficial.

The determination of the city commissioners of Vallejo to clean out the dance-halls and low dives is laudable. The saloon and dance-hall are an evil combination. It brings lewdness and intoxication together under depraving conditions corrupting to the moral and physical health of a community. It is an insult to Uncle Sam's sailormen to argue that they demand "amusements" of this character. The statement is made by men who are commercializing the social evil and incidentally inducing young people of both sexes in depraved courses. The gaiety of the saloon dance-hall is the hectic glitter of moral decay. It attracts only to corrupt and destroy. Such evil influences should not be tolerated, and it is gratifying that the municipal authorities of Vallejo have at last decided the demoralizing influences. It is true that some men will seek the company of lewd women, but that is no reason why a public rendezvous should be maintained for men and women of this class—places in which the young and unsophisticated of both sexes are thrown together in an atmosphere of licentious abandon heated and poisoned by liquor and vile company. Liquor, lewdness and dancing are the components of an orgie. Keep them apart—at least, do not license the combination.

Beautifying Cities

Municipal improvement and beautification are by no means the exclusive concern of the shaping cities of the newer countries; one of the oldest cities of them all is preparing to get into line. Rome, partly as the result of the recent activities connected with the current celebration of Italy's semi-centennial, has decided to take herself definitely in hand. Being a world capital, she will try to look the part, giving her weight of history and authority the advantages of a modern guise.

As Rome has a somewhat heavy debt—$20,000,000 for a population of 600,000—the general government will lend its aid. There will be a kind of comprehensive dicker between city and state, and the latter will assume a partial censorship of the municipality's financial affairs. The city will cede to the government a number of sites for public buildings, and the government proposes the erection of several important departmental structures together with the enlargement or addition to old ones, of the city's museum and picture gallery facilities. The city, in turn, puts itself under obligation to spend $25,000,000 on schools, markets and sanitation.

Though steps for the improvement of Rome have been going on irregularly for the past thirty or forty years, a really radical, intelligent and comprehensive handling of the matter remains to be accomplished. The stir and endeavor of a great exposition seems finally to have administered the necessary impetus all along the line, as has commonly been the case with other large cities that have come forward, on some specific occasion, to receive and entertain the world. It is likely that Rome, ten years from now, will not only be more completely and creditably a modern capital, but will also look it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

GOING BACKWARD

Dr. Elliot took up the freedom of the Fourth to stand up in Faneuil Hall—of all places—and say that the Declaration of Independence is a misleading document that we are not created equal, and that we have not the inalienable rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This seems rather startling, but close reading shows that Dr. Elliot finds fault with the statement as an abstract proposition than with the conditions that make it absurd. We are not the less created equal because immediately after birth later conditions remove the basis of equality. And if our further rights are not inalienable it is because they have been alienated by what he calls "new interferences."

The Declaration of Independence brought about the freedom of the American people more than a century ago. The study and assertion of that declaration, as it was intended, will result no less surely in the betterment of conditions that have grown under a perversion of the feelings and wishes of the father of the republic.—Chicago Examiner.

WHEN RUBENSTEIN WAS COAXED

James W. Morrissey possesses the traditional hand of iron under a silken glove. Urbane, suave, self-possessed, his exterior is the mask for a firm will, directed by tactful skill. Where he cannot drive he can coax or he can lead. A signal instance in the early part of Mr. Morrissey's career was his conquest of Rubinstein. That trouble-planted raised a howl of protest when he found that P. S. Gilmore's hand which was to fill up the intervals between his solos, would play selections from the music of Johann Strauss. At sight of the programmes prepared for his first concert he leaped from his chair and stood holding the paper at arms' length and glaring at it.

"Vat iss dis?" he cried. "Your-people may like it, Monsieur. They such music may like, maybe, but I, Rubinstein, cannot play." Vat I, Rubinstein, on the same concert play with this Strauss, this—this jingler? Nevar! nevar! I would be disgraced. It is an insult! From here I go!" He bolted through the door. He jumped into his carriage. He gave orders to his coachman. But, luckily, Mr. Morrissey arrived in time to stop the carriage and drag the angry musician upstairs.

"Now, see here, Mr. Rubinstein," he cried, "This is my first attempt as a manager. You fail me this evening, if I have to disband this great audience that has gathered here to hear you play, I shall be ruined financially and discredited in reputation."

"Oh, but the reputation of me, Rubinstein, you forget!" he broke in. "Vat about me? Vat about my friends, the great musicians in Europe, saying: 'Oh, Rubinstein in America forgets everything but money. He will play mit a jingler. He forgets his dignity, his art.' No, no, Monsieur, dollars are nothing to me! I live for my art. I cannot play!" Then Mr. Morrissey quietly suggested that the hated name of Strauss should be struck from the programmes. Mr. Rubinstein reluctantly consented to the compromise. Gilmore was informed that no Strauss was to be played. The programmes were collected from the very hands of the audience and altered in sight of the pianist.

"Vat dat all?" he asked. "Well, nearly all," answered Morrissey, "though in actual fact those in the balcony and gallery had not been touched."

"Vat, dep, I blas, because I feel like it."

And he did play—magnificently, so Mr. Morrissey informs us. "As I stood listening to that wonderful uplifting music coming from his favorite Steinway, it was hard for me to realize that the great musician who was producing it was the same man who a few minutes before had stirred up such a furious little tempest in a teapot."—August "Columbian."

J. P. MORGAN'S FEW FRIENDS

It is said there are scarcely fifty men in the financial district who have a speaking acquaintance with J. P. Morgan. Whether the number is correct or not it is certain that his acquaintance is relatively small, and that his real friendships are reserved for a very few people, chiefly the men whom he has known all his life and with whom he is very likely not associated at all in a business way. His dislike of having a meaningless fuss made over him by strangers is shown by his never appearing at public meetings, and by his perennial irritation at the never-say-die reporters and camera men who unfailingly close in upon him when he is sailing or returning from across the water. In London he insists upon not being noticed when he comes in or leaves his office, and has stopped the custom of showering him with deferential bows which was long clung to by his employees. When he drives up to his house—or his office in New York—he is out of his cab or automobile and into the building in two strides, swift and purposeful. Anyone who hoped to interest him would carry away nothing from the attempt but the mental impression of the financier's air of extraordinary vigor and the recollection of the intent and piercing expression of his eyes, fixed before him.

J. P. Morgan was almost bred a mathematician. While at Göttingen Morgan specialized in mathematics, and with the professor in mathematics he would spend long hours, at problems. About ten years ago a number of New Yorkers who had been at the Göttingen University together held a dinner and invited their old professor of mathematics, who happened to be visiting this country, to be present. The German stood his ground—he gave them his own idea; looking at Mr. Morgan he said that he was indeed very glad his old pupil had succeeded so well as a banker. "But I regret," he went on, "that you did not remain at the university. Had you stayed with me you would have been my assistant as long as I lived, and unquestionably, at my death you would have been appointed professor of mathematics in my place."

"Then he broke it into little bits and stuffed it into his pipe!"—Metropolitan Magazine.

CAR COURTESY

The Pittsburg Car Courtesy league, to be organized to procure seats for women on the street cars is a little indefinite in its prospectus, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. Do the members intend to give up their own seats to women or is it merely their purpose to try to induce the car company to give enough seats for all? Is the courtesy to be extended by themselves or is it a vicarious courtesy that they hope to extract from the corporation? If it is to be primarily individual it is not clear why it should be necessary to wear a league button before offering a woman a seat. Real courtesy would not require a woman to stand while she looked around for a blue button; it would offer her a seat at once.

Car courtesy is a perennial source of discussion in every large city, but it has not been noticed that any marked improvement in manners has resulted. The man with a seat remains riveted to it as firmly as his eyes are glued to his paper. It's a curious survival of chivalric instinct that a man deliberately discourteous in his regard is so thankful for something to hide behind. Only the most hardened can without such defense persistently remain seated while a woman hangs to a strap before him. Still the courtesy league should be encouraged. The buttons, if enough people can be induced to wear them, may serve to keep the idea of courtesy in mind. But there ought to be a woman's auxiliary to the league, pledging the members to wear smaller hats, shorter hair, to say "Thank you," to do their shopping earlier so they will not increase the congestion in the crowded hours, and particularly when two or three are seated together not to occupy twice the space that as many men would occupy. There ought to be reciprocity in courtesy and consideration. If the courtesy league and this woman's auxiliary can be organized to work together there may be some hope of permanent betterment. The fundamental trouble is individual disregard for others and this is not chargeable against one sex more than another. With a more general consideration for others traveling in the street cars and a lot of other experiences would be vastly less disagreeable.—Los Angeles Tribune.

DEFENSE OF LIBRARY LIONS

New Yorkers are saying things about two stone lions that have just been placed outside their public library. The first complaint is that they are squashed-faced lions, the second that they have Paderewski hair, the third that they are so fierce looking that nobody will dare go a book out of the library and the fourth that their bodies are like unto the body of St. Bernard dogs. With these trifling exceptions the rest of the figures are lions.

The sculptor was asked, so goes the story, why lions were selected to go with public libraries, and his reply was that they could search him; he was asked to sculpt lions, and lions he sculpted. As to what the lion has to do with the field of art he opines not. The truth of the matter is that the lion is selected only through the theory of elimination.

20 YEARS AGO IN OAKLAND

A meeting of the Y. W. C. A. was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. M. Condit, 362 Thirteenth street, at which it was announced that the association had $5000 on hand to be used toward the erection of a new $15,000 home. Last evening the stockholders of the Farolite Manufacturing Company held a meeting at which time the following were elected as a board of directors, to serve during the year: Charles W. Kellogg, Elbert Olney, W. H. Wood, Hiram L. Forster, John Cushing, George O. Simmons and Charles H. Davies. The company was organized a year ago for the purpose of manufacturing articles from a mineral substance found in the vicinity of St. Helena.

Oakland Council No. 6, Y. M. I., has elected James F. Kennedy and Martin Ryan representatives to the seventh grand council which is to be held at Waterville next September. James J. McElroy and P. Barry were chosen alternates.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Mayon, who have been away for the last year on one of the islands of the Shumagin group, near Alaska, where Mr. Mayon is superintendent of a mine, have returned to their home in this city.

George H. Collins has returned from Berlin to inspect his interests in California. Mrs. Collins and the Misses Collins remain in Germany, where the young ladies are studying music.

There was a quorum and one or two members to spare at the meeting last night of the Alameda Improvement Association. Among those present were J. A. Waymire, George Brown, F. Dohrmann, F. H. ## SUFFRAGISTS PLAN AN ACTIVE WEEK Noted Workers Are Booked to Speak at Two Important Gatherings.

HOUSEWARMING TO BE ENJOYED NEXT TUESDAY

Helen Wixson of Colorado Is Busy Making Converts in the Southland.

The Oakland Suffrage Amendment League has opened larger headquarters in room 209, Albany block.

The members will have a housewarming Tuesday afternoon, from 2 to 5. Mrs. Hester Hurland of Berkeley will tell of the work being done in the college town. Mrs. Grant Taylor of San Francisco will speak of the larger work of the State association and the last of the week will give a resume of the activities of the Oakland League. A cup of equality tea will be served and a social hour enjoyed. The public is cordially invited.

The regular monthly meeting of the league will be held as usual in Lincoln Hall, Thirteenth street, between Broadway and Franklin, Wednesday evening, 8:15 p. m. The principal speaker will be Miss Margaret Hiley of Chicago. Miss Hiley has a very interesting story to tell and she can tell it very entertainingly. It has to do with the recovery of $25,000 in one year which had been evaded, and the fact that she had crippled the schools of the Lake City. The teachers of Chicago were intensely interested in this work and Miss Hiley claims that her experiences made suffragists of all of them.

SAN LEANDRO MEETING.

A suffrage meeting will also be held in the Masonic Hall of San Leandro, under the auspices of Oakland Amendment League, Thursday evening, at 8 p. m. Mrs. Agnes Day, president of the league, will preside. Mrs. J. B. Hume and Mr. Albert Elliott will be the speakers of the evening. The ladies of San Leandro will furnish some good music and quite a large delegation from Oakland will attend.

Helen Wixson, State Superintendent of Schools of Colorado, spoke in the southern part of the state at the Political Equality League on July 22. Mrs. Wixson informed the Los Angeles suffragists under the laws of Colorado which have been enacted by the vote of women. David Evans of Utah, who introduced into the Utah constitutional convention the clause which was later adopted, gave the women of the State the ballot, spoke at the same meeting, saying there can no longer be the slightest doubt as to the strength and benefit of woman's vote, in the states in which they now vote.

ENDORSES SUFFRAGE.

Lorin A. Handley, the city clerk of Los Angeles, is one of the city officials who endorses suffrage. He says: "I shall support the constitutional amendment granting political equality to women. It is right, and right will always make for the common good. The just powers of government are derived from the governed; that is, from the people. Therefore, all should participate in our government—women as well as men."

New York is watching California and its suffrage campaign. The eastern women have not only planned a week of fasting in order that they may send money to the California suffragists, but they have sent out a call for help outside of their ranks for money for the women who are devoting their utmost to the enfranchisement of the women of this State. "The Woman Voter," the organ of the Woman Suffrage party of New York, says: "The California legislature goes down in favor for doing more justice to woman than any legislature the State has ever had. When laws already on the statute books were made it is evident that women were little considered. In California the crime for stealing a girl is exactly the same as for stealing a mule or a calf, but before this legislature raised the penalty it was only equal to that for stealing a pig. The father is the sole guardian of minor children. If the children are born in wedlock, illegitimate children belong solely to the mother as in New York."

$3.50 Recipe Free For Weak Men

Send Name and Address Today You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, falling memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural diet, or the failure of youth, that has cured so many weak and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and surely, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary envelope to any man who writes me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor I have ever put together. I think I owe it to my fellow men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop struggling himself with harmful, useless, and expensive medicine. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 1015 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a pre-

INDIANS TO PAY RESPECT TO DEAD

Colville Tribe to Hold Potlatch in Memory of Chief Barnaby.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 5.—Captain John McA. Webster, superintendent of the Colville Indian reservation, announced in Spokane today there will be a great potlatch at Daisy, Wash., the middle of August, when tribesmen will mourn the passing of Chief Barnaby, who was for years the representative of his people before the President of the United States at Washington, D. C.

At the potlatch the crowning incidents of Chief Barnaby's life will be recounted, after which his possessions will be distributed among his friends. Barnaby was 75 years of age at the time of his death and is survived by a son of 18 years. His most notable speech was before President Roosevelt and Indian officials five years ago, to intercede for the payment of $1,500,000 due on land sales.

He adopted the ways of the white man years ago, and the sermon at the funeral was delivered by Father Caidi, a traveling field missionary. The body rests in an elaborate casket in the Colville Indian burial ground.

WANT LONG AND SHORT HAUL LAW

Northwest Shippers to Ask Congress to Enact New Rate Legislation.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 5.—Shippers in the intermountain and western interior country, between the Canadian boundary and the Mexican line, will be requested by the interstate commerce committee of the Spokane Chamber of Commerce to join in a petition to Congress at its next session to enact a long and short haul clause. It is proposed to send a delegation of representative western business men to Washington, D. C., to work for the measure.

Henry M. Stephens, chief counsel for the people in the famous Spokane freight rate case, in which the Interstate Commerce Commission announced its decision on July 25, said in discussing the foregoing that, while a great victory has been won, he thinks additional advantages may be secured by urging Congress to amend the fourth section of the Interstate Commerce Act, so as to make it absolute and without proviso from eastern interior points.

QUOTES LANE RULING.

"Commissioner Lane's holding in the Nevada and Arizona cases," Mr. Stephens added, "is to the effect that there is no water competition in the Chicago-St. Louis territory, notwithstanding Commissioner Prouty says the commissioners are unable to state that water competition does not have any effect upon rates from Chicago to St. Louis. I have always contended there is no evidence of water competition west of the Buffalo-Pittsburg line, and the commission holds there is no such competition from Chicago and St. Louis."

Hence, I am of the opinion that an absolute long and short haul clause provision from territory where there is no water competition of no water shipments of material consequence would be legal, unless the carriers can show that the reduction in rates would result in the confiscation of the railroad property. This, I am confident, the companies can not show."

PEACH CROP NORMAL AND GRAPE HEAVY

AUBURN, Aug. 5.—The normal crop for Placer county is placed at 3000 cars, but the estimate for this season is placed at 1800 cars. ## SEEKS PARDON FOR BRAVE EX-CONVICT Woman Appeals for Release of Man Who Saved Her Life.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 5.—In saving the life of his benefactor, Mrs. C. T. Artlip, of St. Joseph, Mo. John Rogers, a paroled prisoner from the Kansas penitentiary, may be granted a full pardon. Mrs. Artlip and a number of other friends of Rogers have made application to Governor Stubbs for the pardon.

Several months ago Mrs. Artlip obtained the parole of Rogers, who had served 20 years of a life sentence for murder. She took him to St. Joseph and found him a position as janitor of her home. Recently, while doing odd jobs about Mrs. Artlip's home, Rogers overpowered the basement and stumbled across Mrs. Artlip's body on the floor. She had been overcome by gas. He carried her into the open air, and after heroic efforts revived her.

Rogers was sent to prison from Fort Scott, Kan., for killing his employer, a farmer. The farmer's wife and daughter left him and Rogers, who was in love with the daughter, went with them. Returning to the house for some of his belongings he quarreled with the farmer and killed him.

CHICAGO POLICE AFTER GUNMEN

Labor Troubles in Windy City Force Resort to Drastic Action.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Judge Kavanagh today threw the whole machinery of the courts and of the city's police power into the gunmen's labor war, ordering Inspector Hunt to have the police search every suspect and weed out every alleged thug and gunman in the city.

This drastic measure was followed by a statement from the state's attorney's office that "Skinner," Madden and Simon O'Donnell, as a result of the conviction of the quartette of sluggers yesterday, had declared open warfare on each other and that the names of the dynamiters who had been blowing up the Edison manholes had been revealed to the state's attorney.

CONVICTED MEN MAY 'SQUEAL.'

"The men that they caught yesterday and will send to jail are going to squeal," is the cry that was sent forth from certain quarters where men who are said to have paid for the slaying and maiming of labor enemies have their rendezvous. "Bright" is believed by the police to be the head of the sluggers who shot up the ice company's plant, among a score of similar attacks in the feud between rival steam fitters' unions. The men convicted in Judge Kavanagh's court were Arthur O'Connor, William Connor, Edward Steward and Peter Gentlemen. Conviction carries an indeterminate prison sentence of one to fourteen years in the penitentiary.

CHILE DENIES INTENTION OF OCCUPYING TIACAO

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 5.—The Chilean Minister of War has declared that Chile had no intention to occupy Tiaclao, which is in the disputed Tacna and Arica region. Political circles recently have been discussing a rumor that Chile intended to occupy Tiaclao, and it was feared such a move would result in hostilities with Peru.

EXPORTS EXCEED BILLION DOLLARS

Manufacturing Activity of the United States Sets New High Water Mark.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Exports of manufactures may pass the billion dollar mark, the first time upon which the country is now entering. Of course, a prediction regarding the foreign trade at the long distance of one year can only be made in very general terms and must be based upon the record of the preceding year as well as conditions at the present moment, but both the record of the fiscal year 1911 and existing conditions suggest that unless some unexpected change should occur in the outward flow of manufactures the total will be likely to exceed one billion dollars in the present fiscal year.

WONDERFUL FIGURES.

This estimate of more than a billion dollars worth of exports of manufactures in the year upon which we are now entering is based on the figures of the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor, for the fiscal year just ended. In the 12 months ending June 30, 1911, the total value of manufactures exported was $10 million dollars, of which 601 million was the value of manufactures ready for consumption and 393 million, manufactures for further use in manufacturing. This total is not only the largest in the history of the country, but represents a larger gain in the year than that shown by any other year. The increase over 1910 was 148 million dollars, or 18 1/2 per cent. Should the rate of increase in this fiscal year be but a trifle more than one-half that of 1911, the total would pass the billion dollar line.

GROWTH OF DECADE.

A comparison of the export record of the year just ended with that of a decade or two decades ago is interesting. The total value of manufactures exported in 1911 was $10 million dollars, against 466 million in 1901, 10 years ago, and 155 million in 1891, 20 years ago. Thus the value of manufactures exported has increased nearly 100 per cent in the 20-year period and 354 per cent in the 20-year period.

Not only did the exports of manufactures in 1911 show a larger total than ever before, but they contributed in that year the largest percentage of the domestic merchandise exported on record, the figures being: in 1911, 45.19 per cent, against 44.86 per cent in 1910, the record high record, 35.57 per cent in 1909, 31.13 per cent in 1908, and 14.78 per cent in 1880.

DEATH TAKES MAN

59 YEARS INSANE

Charles Thorp Passes After More Than Half Century in Asylum.

FULTON, Mo., Aug. 5.—Charles Thorp, 59 years old, for nearly 52 years a patient in the Fulton State Hospital, died here yesterday. Thorp was admitted to the asylum from Adair county October 30, 1859.

Since he was first admitted to the institution Thorp has been discharged four times but was returned each time. Once he escaped. During the time that Thorp has been in the hospital thousands of patients have come and gone and of these but one who was sent here during the early days of Thorp's stay, remains. He is William P. Cook, who has been in the asylum for 51 years.

The cases of Thorp and Cook are said to be without equals in the annals of the insane asylums of this country.

PAPER BOTTLE FACTORY MAY BE BUILT HERE

ANNA LANGLEY IS GREETED IN COURT

Her Case Postponed While in Meantime She Weeps at Bier.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Anna Langley, the 19-year-old wife who slew her husband, James M. Langley, last Wednesday, and who was admitted to the nominal bail of $100, appeared today in the police court for a preliminary hearing. She found that the mills of the law grind slowly and grind with exceeding deliberation. Her case was continued to 2 o'clock next Thursday, when the grand jury, which will again consider the tragedy Tuesday morning, shall have rendered its final report.

The police court did an unprecedented thing in admitting a homicide to such meager bail, but at the time of its deliberations the girl was in a state of physical collapse, which argued for her return to her home and her mother's ministrations. Since that time she has entirely recovered, and when she appeared court today, accompanied by her parents and friends, she was completely self-possessed and shook hands and received the congratulations of friends with the air of one who has done a heroic deed.

Her self-possession deserted her for a moment when she heard the court continue her case until Thursday. She walked out into the corridor with unfaltering step, down the stairs, into the street where she and her party again met.

She wore a suit of blue, black hat and thin black veil. When she appeared in the court room many friends, schoolmates and men and women of mature age, came forward to assure her of their sympathy and to clasp her hand.

The girl widow spent nearly all of yesterday and this morning at the bier of her husband, and when she went to the morgue to see the corpse, tears streaming through the hands which covered her face.

"You know I did right, Jim," she would say. Then, "if you had had a good father you would never have gone into saloons." With each fresh thrust, the father of the dead man, who was present, wept more bitterly.

She will attend the funeral tomorrow dressed in deep mourning.

CLIFF GLACIER IS FOUND ON SHASTA

Prof. R. S. Holway of Berkeley Makes Important Discovery on His Trip.

BERKELEY, Aug. 5.—After making an important discovery of a cliff glacier, not heretofore mapped, on the slope of Mt. Shasta, R. S. Holway, assistant professor of physical geography in the University of California, has returned to Berkeley. With Walter Nolan and other students he spent several weeks in geological investigations among the mountains of northern California.

Prof. Holway recently made known his discovery that glaciation exists in the Coast range of mountains, and it was partly in connection with further research in that direction that he made the trip this summer.

The former known extent of the glaciers on Mount Shasta was four miles below the point where the cliff formation was found by Prof. Holway and other members of his party.

The cliff glacier was discovered at the head of Clear creek, on the southeast slope of the mountain, about 10,000 feet above sea level. It is a well-defined remnant of a flowing glacier and its head is as extensive as that of other glaciers.

The Clear Creek canyon was formerly one of the largest glaciers in the state.

Allison, chairman of the Fairview Club, which originated it. The new road, which would be constructed several miles northeast of town, has long been felt.

President William Angus authorized the committee on the Fairview Club on definite plans. The members of the committee are H. G. Walker, J. E. Geary and H. W. Holmes.

It is pointed out by those advocating the road that at present travellers have to go miles out of their way in reaching different towns northeast, owing to the lack of a cross road near the foothills.

which will include statistics pertaining to the commercial and agricultural resources of this section, will soon be ready for distribution as a feature of general commerce.

J. T. Stanton, E. C. Pitzer and D. J. Simmons were enrolled as members.

PIGS LOSE JOB OF MOVING GARBAGE

Porkers Grew Fat, But Plan to Show Economical Side.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 5.—With grunts of dissatisfaction it was announced today that the city of New Haven's elaborate plan for the economical disposal of garbage has proved a failure.

On January 1 last the city lawnmowers, on looking over the bills for collecting and disposing of the garbage, were amazed to note that the cost of the work was greater than their estimation it should be. They met in solemn conclave and decided, after a lengthy discussion, to buy a drove of pigs, fatten them on the garbage, and sell the fat pork.

The pigs fell into the plan enthusiastically, but when the aldermen got together recently they found that the experiment was costing at the rate of $4,000 a year, most of which represented the investment in pigs.

JURISTS MOURN DEATH OF PROMINENT LAWYER

ALAMEDA, Aug. 5.—Many prominent jurists were among the mourners this afternoon at the funeral of George H. Perry, a former resident of this city, which was held in San Francisco. Bernard, J. E. Foulds and S. F. Fegley. The active pallbearers were: Edwin Otis, Henry Hiller, A. E. Clark, F. Clark, Edwin Reed and J. W. Sibley.

This evening Miss Vera Norton was found to be in the lead with 655 votes, her nearest contestant being Miss Gertrude Olivera, with 650. Miss Mayme Churchila is keeping the third place in the fight, having 559 votes in her support.

The fact that many votes are being bought and held back makes the ultimate result of the race quite uncertain, as backers of the different nominees are planning to spring a surprise in the closing days of the race by registering votes in heavy numbers.

A meeting of the arrangements committee, under the chairmanship of B. Magnusson, will be held Monday evening, when further plans in connection with the carnival will be discussed. The festival will open on the 18th inst., lasting to the 20th.

Several babies have been entered in the baby contest, which will be a feature of the celebration.

LONG SPRINT TO SEE FATHER DIE

Boy Runs 43 Miles and Faints in Mother's Arms at Finish.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Aug. 5.—To reach the bedside of his father whom he believed to be dying, 14-year-old Royal Bubanks raced on foot from Morton to Centralia, forty-three miles, in thirteen and a half hours yesterday. When the little fellow, utterly worn out by his terrific exertions, threw himself into his mother's arms, he fainted away after hearing the news that his father was safely on the road to recovery.

The lad is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bubanks, who live at Centralia. Royal is ex-Mayor Wood. With his father and his mother Bernie he went fishing up the north fork of the Tilton river early in the week. As his father was standing on two logs with his legs wide apart, one of the logs swung out and he was thrown backward violently across the other.

The impact of his fall knocked him unconscious, and the two little lads, at the imminent risk of falling in the water themselves, rushed out on the log and caught him just as he was slipping into the river. They managed to hold him there until their frantic shouts brought help. The injured man, still in a dazed condition, was carried to Morton and from there to Centralia.

There was room for only one of the boys in the buggy, and it fell to Bernie, the elder, to accompany his father on the trip home. Undeterred by the fact that he would have to make part of the lonely journey in the dark, Royal followed on foot as fast as his legs could carry him. Speed and strength were lent to his wiry little limbs by the prospect that his father might be dead before he arrived.

When he reached home he had just strength enough left to cry, "Gee, whiz! I'm glad papa is going to live!" before he fainted.

WOUNDED BIRD SPRINGS ON HUNTER AND MIGHTY EAT- TLE ENSUES.

BODEGA, Aug. 5.—Samuel Boyd, a well known resident of this community, figured as one of the principals in an exciting battle to the death in one of the lonely canyons of his ranch near Bodega last week.

For many years the lofty redwoods that adjoin his property have been the habitat of several pairs of bold eagles. From time to time they have reared their young in nests built in the high and inaccessible branches practically undisturbed by man or beast or creeping thing.

Lately a neighbor's goats have been mysteriously disappearing and suspicion fell on the eagles.

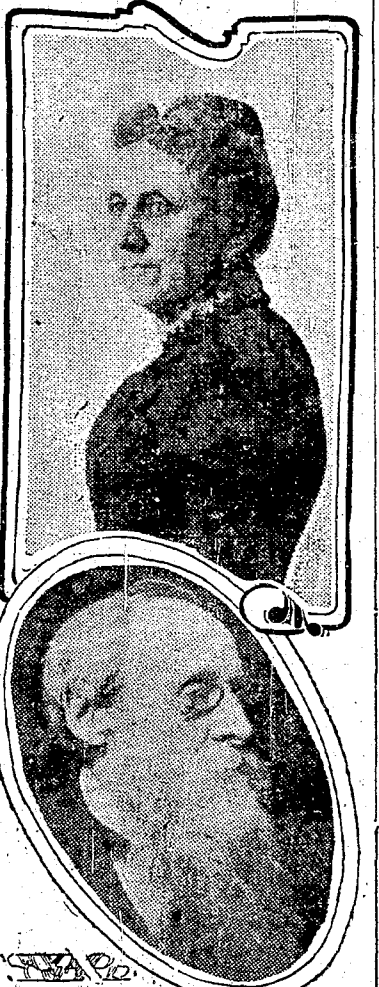

Boyd caught the robbers red-handed one day. Costing all sentiments to the winds, he sallied forth to battle. A well-directed bullet brought one of the eagles to the ground from his elevated perch—a piece of a goat still stuck in his talons.

Aside from a broken wing the bird was in full fighting trim, though this was not apparent to Boyd at the time. Thinking it a shame to waste a good ammunition in the fray, he rushed in and tried for a half Nelson. Then he learned that part of his education which related to eagles and their wiles had been sadly neglected. There were no onlookers—not even a referee. No recognized rules of the prize ring governed the contest. A time-keeper would have been a useless official for there was no clock to be seen. There was hitting in the clinches, blowing and belting, butting, heeling, clawing, biting and at one stage of the fight Boyd even got on and rode. The bird actually dragged him a short distance over his shoulder. He got a death grip on its neck, hammered it over the head with his fists—anything and everything that a rough-and-tumble scrapper could bring into action Boyd did.

In the meantime the infuriated eagle was using its beak and claws to the limit. It scratched Boyd's face, trying to gouge out his eyes, tore his clothing to shreds, bringing the blood with every rake of its mighty talons. Though thoroughly exhausted, Boyd dared not let go for fear of his life. There was the ever-present peril that the other bird would come to help their fellow. Finally with a mighty effort, the man succeeded in getting a twist on the neck of the bird, and by putting forth all his strength he broke it.

When Boyd had disengaged himself from the dying bird, he stood there headed in honor of his expiring adver-

UNIQUE WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF PIONEER COUPLE

JOSEPH COOKE and wife of Berkeley, who yesterday celebrated the fifty-ninth anniversary of their wedding.

BERKELEY, Aug. 5.—At a home constructed by Joseph Cooke, after he had celebrated his 80th birthday, Mr. and Mrs. Cooke celebrated yesterday the 59th anniversary of their wedding.

Mrs. Cooke is 77 years of age and her husband 85 and they have resided in the West for more than fifty years. Mrs. Cooke, who was for many years a teacher in the Salem, Ore., schools, has written articles for the press for more than a half century and is the author of numerous poems. At the wedding anniversary celebration yesterday when friends of the couple were entertained, Mrs. Cooke read one of her poems entitled "Crossing the Plains."

The Cookes resided in San Francisco prior to the fire of 1906, when they moved to 1210 Bonita avenue, in this city, where Cooke, at the age of 80 years, built his cozy dwelling, unaltered.

Among the guests yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burpee of this city. The former crossed the plains with Cooke.

MAN AND EAGLE IN TERRIFIC FIGHT TO DEATH

Wounded Bird Springs on Hunter and Mighty Eat- tle Ensues.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—A story of an escape from a tribe of Arabs in a sandstorm, which they declare was brought about by their prayers, was one of the tales of suffering and peril brought to this city by John Wiseman and Wesley Newbern, missionaries from California, who, dressed in the garb of early Christians, have traveled through the greater part of Europe and the East in eighteen months.

The men arrived yesterday aboard the Martha Washington, of the Austro-American line, and will return to California by way of Florida, traveling most of the way on foot. Dressed in flowing robes and sandals, they held daily services on board the Martha Washington and excited much interest as they stood on a pier waiting for a customs officer to inspect the tiny bundles which made up all the baggage they carried.

They declared they set out on their pilgrimage in order to demonstrate that missionaries who would dress and live as Christ did, and whose disciples did would accomplish far more for religion than men who live comfortably in the houses and preached from the pulpits of churches.

While journeying on foot from Jericho to Jerusalem, in Palestine, they were suddenly surrounded by a band of Arabs who demanded money and accused them of masquerading as Mohammedans. When they explained that they were Christians, the Arabs, who were Christians, the Arabs, they charge, announced that they would kill them. As the Arabs were discussing their fate the captives bowed their heads and prayed for deliverance.

According to Wiseman their prayers were answered. He said that out of a clear sky there came a sandstorm and the Arabs in their throes themselves on the ground and wrapped their heads in their burruses. The travelers seized the opportunity to escape, and they declare, they made their way to Jericho through whirling sand. They say they think it was miraculous that they could breathe.

At other times, they assert, they were attacked by hyenas and jackals, but beat them off with their staffs. They say that after the first of these attacks they never doubted that they were under Divine protection.

Their determination to live according to the manner of early Christians they preserved despite much ridicule and many hardships. At times they could not get lodging at inns and were forced to sleep in the open.

Wiseman, formerly was an engine driver employed by the United Pacific Railroad and Newbern was a carpenter. They will spend the winter in Florida. In the spring they will walk to California, they say.

CONGRESSIONAL CONFEREES FAIL TO AGREE

SESSION TO LAST FOR MONTH

No Hope of an Adjournment Prior to September 1, Even if Then.

Effort to Be Made to Put Free List Bill Up to Taft at Early Date.

by RALPH M. WHITESIDE.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The earliest date now set for the adjournment of Congress is September 1 and there is no very active hope that this date will see the legislators ready to knock off work.
The tariff situation will not permit an earlier adjournment than September 1.
The Senate finance committee today decided to allow brief hearings on the cotton bill. These will not be had until the statehood bill is out of the way next week.
Senator La Follette and Chairman Underwood have in charge the conference on the wool bill and the free list bill and will probably not reach an agreement for several days.

COTTON BILL DELAYED.
When the finance committee took up the cotton bill it was explained that it would be at once reported back to the Senate adversely. Senator Smoot moved to report adversely and Senator Williams moved to report favorably. Senator Simmons of North Carolina pleaded for a little time for hearings for the cotton manufacturing industry. The committee adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman, Penrose.
If Senator Simmons can arrange it, it is expected that the committee will give a hearing to the cotton manufacturers one day next week, probably Wednesday. The bill, under an order of the Senate, has to be reported back not later than Thursday.

UNABLE TO AGREE.
The conference on the wool bill and the free list bill, who are the same members in each case, on meeting today were advised by Senator La Follette and Representative Underwood that they had been unable to reach an agreement on the wool bill. Each desired to consult his followers further.

On the free list bill Underwood wanted a dispositive report in which the Senate might express itself again on the amendment for free imports, and in order that there might be a further test of sentiment in each house on the free list bill, an amendment was put on in the Senate. This was not pressed, however, and the free list bill was finally referred to La Follette and Underwood just as the wool bill was.

A strong disposition has shown to report an agreement on the free list bill before the one on the wool bill. Senator Bailey is opposed to that. The plan was to have the wool bill and which they probably will, is to put the free list bill up to the President and to make him sign or veto that ahead of the wool bill.
REASONS FOR ACTION.
This will be done for various reasons. It is thought the first veto measure is the one the country will read, and it is believed by the allies that the President cannot make use of the tariff board idea to advantage in vetoing the free list bill.
All indications are that the conference will agree on a compromise wool bill, but the exact figures are not expected to go above 30 percent, although La Follette is earnestly urging 35, the figure in his bill, on the theory that if the President could not refuse to sign such a bill and might refuse if it were lower.
There is every indication now that a strong effort will be made in the House to tackle the steel and sugar schedules. If this effort is successful there is no telling when an adjournment will be reached.
Senator Cummins about summed up the progressive feeling when he declared he thought the House ought not to adjourn until it had also revised the sugar and steel schedules.
"If the President would veto the wool bill," he said, "I would still be in favor of going on with our work. It is our duty to pass laws. It is the President's duty to approve or disapprove them."

MARTIAL LAW PREVAILS OVER TURBULENT CITY

Saloons Closed and Citizens Are Ordered To Stay in Doors in Des Moines

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 5.—Des Moines is tonight under what virtually amounts to martial law as a result of the great disorders which have been caused by the street car men's strike. The police today charged the mob which had gathered around the Iowa hotel, where about 100 strike-breakers were housed, with drawn pistols. Two policemen have been wounded. The fire department was called to the scene of the rioting and the firemen dispersed the crowd by turning the water on them. The mob retaliated with bricks and stones and showers of missiles fell about the firemen and police.
The mayor ordered the saloons closed tonight and issued a warning to the people to keep off the streets. The climax of the disorders came this afternoon in a battle between the police and strike sympathizers which resulted from an attempt to take the strikebreakers from the Iowa hotel to the railroad stations. Three times the strikebreakers, under heavy guard, were taken out of the hotel and every time the hostile demonstrations by the crowd were so great that they were forced to retreat.
All of the police available were thrown out around the hotel and ropes stretched across the surrounding streets to act as barriers in case the strikers advanced on the hotel.
Governor Carroll has taken a hand in the affair and is in conference with the municipal and county officers on the question of calling out the state troops. It is feared the sympathizers of the strikers will cause great damage during the night.

Church Hit by Lightning, Panic and Fire Follow

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Lightning struck the tower of the Immanuel Baptist church at 3 o'clock this afternoon and set the structure on fire. The shock of the lightning was so terrific that several persons in the vicinity were stunned. The lightning ripped most of the slate roofing off one side of the top of the tower, which is a big square one. The frame work began burning instantly.
Several fire engines arrived on the scene and these with the lightning stroke caused alarm in the Metropole hotel, adjoining. Finally firemen climbed up a ladder on the inside of the steeple, carrying hose, and began a fight on the flames. By 4:30 the blaze was under control. The church was damaged heavily.

Motor Cyclists From California Tour Europe

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Two Californians, motor-cyclists on a world tour, lately arrived in Edinburgh. They began their pilgrimage at San Francisco. As one aim of the journey is to demonstrate that a motor-cycle can carry sufficient clothing and toilet requirements to meet all the claims of conventional travel each man has two oblong boxes fitted on either side above the back wheel. One of the voyagers, William Striess, says that after running over Ireland they will visit the continent and after Europe is crossed they will map out a route through Asia, India and Australia.

Sister of Dead Aviator Skillfully Masters Air

MINEOLA, L. I., Aug. 5.—Miss Matilda Moisant, sister of the late John B. Moisant, fulfilled her promise today which she made months ago that she would be able to fly a monoplane. She tried out her machine on the Hempstead plains and made three long flights of about two miles each, being fifty feet above the ground. Her landings were so clever and successful that all the aviators on the fields cheered her skill.

OAKLAND WILL VAST FOR BRIDE OF ASTOR

Growing Industries Along the Western Pacific Great Benefit to This City.

Railroad Director Sees Vast Prospects for New Road and Terminus Here.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Edgar L. Marston of Blair academy, a director of the Missouri Pacific railway and member of the executive committee of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, returned today from a month's inspection of the Gould lines. With President E. T. Jeffery of the Denver & Rio Grande he went over the coast over the Denver-Western Pacific lines. In reply to inquiries, Marston said today:
"We found business on the coast in excellent condition, although there, as elsewhere, there is absent to a considerable degree and decided inclination to embark upon new ventures at the present time."
"In San Francisco every one seems filled with enthusiasm for the exposition. So far as the Western Pacific railway is concerned, the inspection of which was the immediate purpose of our trip, we found it in what seemed to me exceedingly good shape."

BUSINESS ENCOURAGING.
"Considering that the road has, practically speaking, been in full operation only since the destructive landslides of last winter were removed, the business which it is now carrying is most encouraging. The officials of the road, founding their estimates upon the volume of existing business, state that the receipts for the year should amount to at least $5,000,000. Certainly, traffic which we saw on the line seems to justify this estimate."
The readiness with which business developed on the Western Pacific is an exemplification of the pressure everywhere for increased and speedier transportation facilities. The new road appears to have facilities relatively free and therefore able to give uniformly prompt and efficient service, a large amount of business, almost instantly transfers itself to that road until conditions as between it and its competitors are fairly well equalized.

INDUSTRIES STARTING.
"On the other hand it is astonishing to see the way in which this new line in large part through unopened territory where business has come, virtually no business existed, has already begun to develop all along its line. At every turn we saw new mills, logging enterprises, power plants, and other indications of coming industrial life which were directly attributable to the construction of the railroad. I have no doubt that the two factors mentioned, the close of the Southern Pacific and the one hand, and the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific roads on the other hand, will all profit very largely. I speak of the Southern Pacific advisedly," continued Marston, "for I have not the slightest doubt that the increased growth from the whole of the new line of railroads need fear that will result in the construction of the Western Pacific and the development of new territory incidental to its operation will result directly in a benefit to the Southern Pacific that will largely exceed any loss that may result from the transfer of business from one road to the other."

WILL INCREASE BUSINESS.
"The time is past on the Pacific coast when the managers of an existing line of railroads need fear that the building of any rival line means loss to them."
"We returned over the Denver & Rio Grande from Salt Lake to Denver by way of the Denver & Southern and Denver & Rio Grande narrow-gauge lines as far as Alamosa. I was surprised at the agricultural and horticultural development upon all of the lines of the narrow-gauge system which, however, seems as yet adequate to the traffic of the territory it serves."

Careses Son After He Had Slain Father

Mother of Patricide Consols the Youth Who Made Her a Widow by Act

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Tenderly caressing the son who less than thirty hours before had shot her husband to death, Mrs. Barbara Vacek sobbed for five minutes this afternoon in the arms of Joseph Vacek Jr., the 17-year-old patricide, at the Lawndale police station, after a coroner's jury had held him to the grand jury on a charge of murder.
Young Joseph, who for hours after his braggadocio confession had been a veritable fountain of tears, wept some more as she shriveled little woman pressed him to her breast.
Then the son whispered to the mother he had widowed the same story that he had given the police—that he had been so enraged when his father ordered him to kill her that he did the shooting in a moment of uncontrollable excitement and anger.

MISS FORCE WILL BE ENDOWED WITH RICHES BECOMING PRINCESS AT MARRIAGE.

Attitude of Society Leaders to Girl Matter of Conflict- ing Gossip.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Colonel John Jacob Astor will settle a princely fortune on his young bride-to-be, Miss Madeline Raimonde Force, when they are married at Newport, early in the fall, according to reports current.
Colonel Astor returned to Newport this afternoon on his yacht Norma, taking with him Mr. and Mrs. Force and their two daughters.
Miss Force and her mother spent a busy day in selecting the young woman's trousseau. The prevailing color scheme of her gowns will be pink, which is her favorite color and one in which Colonel Astor delights to see her.
A friend of Mrs. Drexel's made a statement today designed to hush the gossip that has been afloat as to the rival aspirations of Mrs. Drexel and Mrs. Ogden Mills for social leadership and the cold shoulder they may turn to Miss Force.
"The stories are absurd and without a shadow of truth," the statement says.
"Announcement of the engagement was only made a few days ago and she has not had time to be acquainted. She may be a most charming and lovable girl, but it will be time enough to plan entertainments for her after we know her."
"The attitude of society toward her after she becomes Mrs. Astor remains to be seen. Colonel Astor has many friends."

MRS. ASTOR IS MUM.
LONDON, Aug. 5.—All efforts to get Mrs. Eva W. Astor to comment on the engagement of her former husband, Colonel John Jacob Astor, to Miss Force have been vain. But the colonel's romance is causing the keenest interest among her friends.
Mrs. Astor has resolutely declined to see newspapermen. Nor will she reply to any letter on the subject. Her closest friends say that even among them she has persistently ignored the topic.

Kansas City Has Reno Backed Off the Map

One Out of Every Three Marriages Is Proving to Be Failure.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 5.—As a habitation of the matrimonially distressed, Kansas City, according to figures just compiled, has Reno backed into the background.
These figures show that one of every three Kansas City marriages has its finale in the divorce court. In 1910 the figures showed that one in every four marriages in this city were failures and a great increase in the number of divorces has caused much perturbation in the churches.
Various causes have been given for the high rate of divorces. The laxity of the divorce laws, the greater independence of women.
Whatever it is, since January 1, there have been 1900 marriage licenses issued and in the same time nearly 700 divorce suits filed. This is an increase in the number of marriage licenses issued over a like period in 1910, but a "proportionately greater increase in the number of divorces suits filed."
Incidentally more children from broken homes have been taken charge of by the juvenile court than in any similar period.

STRANGER JAP IS MYSTERY OF STEEL

Mysterious and Unknown Yellow Man Eager Listener at Each Session.

Secret Service Men Vainly Seek to Learn Reason of His Presence.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—United States secret service men and United States steel corporation's detectives alike are worried over a mysterious Japanese who has edged his way into the central seat of the Congressional investigation of the steel trust which has been going on for a week at the city hall.
The Oriental stranger is of unusually dark skin. He has large features and an eye as inscrutable as a sculptured Buddha. Every day, half an hour before the hour set for the hearing—and that is invariably an hour before they actually begin—the Japanese has come, smiling impersonally at other arrivals, the furniture and the pictures on the walls and has pulled a chair close up to the one in which the witnesses sit. The yellow stranger never leaves that seat once he has taken it, until Chairman Stanley of the committee adjourns or orders all outsiders out because of an executive session.
DON'T MOVE FOR TOGO.
When Admiral Togo arrived in the city hall to call Mayor Gaynor, city hall park was thronged with a shouting, pushing mob and police bugles were tooting all over the place, the Japanese sat tight in his chair. A clerk of the committee was curious over his apparent indifference to the nearness of the great Japanese warlord.
"Did you know?" asked the clerk, "that Admiral Togo is out there?"
"Yes," said the little man shortly; "I know."
"You can see him from the window, go look."
"No," said the mysterious one shortly. "If I leave this seat once, else gets the place. I must be where I can hear each word whenever it is spoken. I must see the look on the face."
"Some other time, when I am home, I can see the Honorable Togo. I thank you for the place. These are the only words, except murmured apologies, which the stranger has uttered at the hearings.
Of course, there is nothing in the steel hearings which is open to the world. The interest of the steel corporation and also of the United States government is to find out just what system of espionage the yellow stranger represents and how far that system extends. It is that and a United States secret service investigation has been started.

AMBULANCE IS WRECKED BY CAR

Overtaken on Mission Street and Driver Is Injured in Collision.

Steward Presses Wagon Into Service, Answers Call, Then Assists Disabled Official.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—An ambulance corps which started out on a hurry call from the Harbor hospital late this afternoon was forced to stop and look out for the injury of one of its own members before reaching the patient for whom it had been summoned. A collision with a fast-moving Mission street car overturned the ambulance at the corner of Fourth street, and while Steward Leo Thomas escaped injury, the driver, Henry Pfuhl, was badly bruised and the vehicle partly wrecked.
Thomas, realizing the urgency of his call, which was for a young boy caught in an elevator, stopped only to see that Pfuhl's hurts were not too severe. The ambulance was in a dangerous and ran to 733 Mission street, where Stanley White, a 15-year-old lad, was awaiting him. He summoned an express wagon, hastily put a bandage on the boy's wounds and sent him to the hospital.
Returning to the overturned ambulance he managed, with the aid of citizens, to right it, placed Driver Pfuhl among the wreckage inside and himself drove the crippled vehicle to the hospital. Pfuhl was found to have received contusions of the left side and leg and bruises of the body, while White was badly cut about the neck, shoulder and back and was suffering from shock.
The lad had been caught in the side of the elevator while the car was being brought to a stop at one of the floors.

Gun Found in Ruins Of Quake Was Loaded

Boy Pulls Trigger of a Rusty Weapon and it Sends Bullet Into Thigh.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—A rusty old rifle, which had been lying beneath a brick wall since the earthquake and fire of April, 1906, caused the painful injury of Frank Lochritz, a 12-year-old boy of 452 Natoma street, early tonight. The lad was digging about the ruins at Fifth and Polson streets when he came upon the gun and began examining it. Pulling the trigger he was unprepared to find it loaded and the shot entered his leg near the thigh. The bullet did not plow deep, however, and the wound was dressed at the Central Emergency hospital.

SCENIC VARIETY ON MT. HAMILTON TOUR

Journey to Lick Observatory Offers Splendid One-Day Tour.

To motorists seeking a delightful variety of scenery, and to those who like the sensation of ascending into the higher atmosphere, is recommended a trip up to the Lick Observatory, on the summit of Mount Hamilton. Not only is the journey by automobile to the top of this famous mountain enjoyable on account of its scenic beauty and its rarified and clear air strata, but also because it is one of the most instructive one-day automobile tours in this part of the State. It is instructive for so many reasons that if the motorist who makes the ascent is not fortunate enough to make the trip by night so as to view the stars through the monster telescope, he will still have absorbed so much instruction that he will always remember the journey as one of considerable educational value.

Centrally to the general impression that the trip up Mount Hamilton is a difficult one, it can be made with ease in one day. The nature of the road, which is good, all the way up the mountain, makes careful driving imperative, and it also calls for rather skillful driving, as the grades vary almost constantly, from 5 to 10 per cent, and the turns are so many and mostly extremely sharp, that one must keep his wits about him to get the highest possible efficiency out of his car at all times.

That this particular journey is one which should be taken by all motorists at some time during the summer months, is the opinion of a party of local motorists who made the journey up old Hamilton last Sunday in an E-M-V "90" touring car. The route is extremely simple, as the beaten trail from this city to San Jose is followed. On arriving in the Garden City, one continues direct on Santa Clara avenue into Alamo Rock avenue, a continuation of Santa Clara avenue, beyond the cemetery, and on to the Mount Hamilton road, which turns sharply to the right at a point just a trifle over five miles from the electric tower in San Jose.

The climb up from Smith's creek is extremely interesting. Mountains across the valleys to both the right and left, the motorist seem to be dropping down into the valleys, so steady is the climb. The vista across the mountains increases in grandeur at every turn and when the summit of the mountain is reached Santa Clara valley from the bay down is spread out like a monster relief map. It is a scene which can be reproduced by neither the camera nor the brush.

Motorists will be delighted to find that the scenery and libraries and photographic galleries are open to the public, as well as records of all descriptions. Several hours, if the visitor has only the daylight hours in which to tarry, could be spent quite profitably in these galleries, but the most interesting feature of a trip to this point is to remain until after dark and view the stars through the big telescope, which is said to be the next to the largest in the world.

STATUE COMES TO LIFE AS ROBBER

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—John Anderson of Roseland was walking in Michigan avenue at daylight when a stranger accosted him with:

"Say, what do they mean by having another statue on that horse at the Logan monument?"

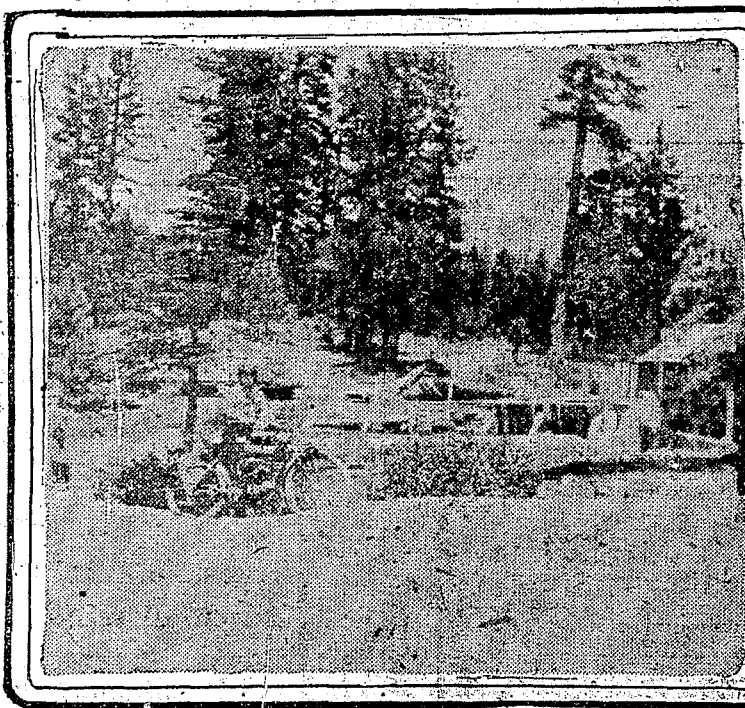

Anderson expressed doubt. They walked over to the statue and there, sure enough, Anderson saw another figure perched on the bronze horse behind the figure of General Logan.

He walked up to make more detailed investigation. As he did so the figure jumped from the horse and landed on top of Anderson. Both men overpowered him and took $160 and his watch. They tied Anderson with his suspenders to the fall of the bronze horse and escaped.

JAILED AFTER LONG CHASE.
SYDNEY, Aug. 5.—After being pursued through scrub forest for seven days David Horation Smithson was arrested 100 miles distant from Woodlupine, West Australia, where he is alleged to have murdered a girl, Frances Compton. When a horse, which he stole, failed to carry him further, he continued his flight on a railway trolley, and later on another horse. He was arrested in a railway truck. Accused was identified from among a number of half-castes by four persons as the man they had seen near the spot where the girl was murdered. Accused's father was a half-caste Maori, or West Indian.

CHALMERS ISSUES WEEKLY PAPER

"Doings" Is Title Given to News Sheet Edited for Dealers.

The Chalmers Motor Company publishes, for the benefit of its dealers and salesmen, an interesting little weekly paper which is called "Chalmers Doings." Just at present "Doings" is conducting a contest which is attracting up a lot of interest among Chalmers salesmen everywhere.

E. P. Brinegar of the Pioneer Automobile Company, local representative of the Chalmers Motor Company, is one of the contestants. He has just sent to the editors of Chalmers Doings the date of his first sale of a 1912 Chalmers car. If he happens to be the fortunate one to have made the earliest sale of a 1912 car he will receive a handsome trophy which is offered by Chalmers Doings.

It is said that something like 2000 Chalmers salesmen are in the competition for the Dolores trophy. Reports of sales are coming from all parts of the United States and even from Canada, Mexico, Cuba and the Hawaiian Islands. According to the rules of the contest these early sales of 1912 cars must be bona fide. No mere promises made last January will go as sales. Only signed orders are considered.

Already a great many early sales have been reported. "I don't know if my entry will be early enough to win the trophy which is offered, but I understand that the contest judges will require proof of bona fide sale and I do not hope the earliest sale of this kind has been reported as yet."

"An interesting feature of this contest is that none of the contestants know what they are going to win. The trophy has not yet been picked out, but we have received the assurance of the company that the prize will be well worth winning."

WOMAN MOTORCYCLIST WINS.

Having successfully completed a trip by motorcycle from Philadelphia to Chicago, Miss Katherine Kelly is now wheeling her way back home, with the honor of having made the longest continuous motorcycle trip ever undertaken by a woman.

Miss Kelly made the journey on a waver of $1000 and she has won. The mad mad trip to the City Hall in Philadelphia, at noon Monday, June 19. She was accompanied by an expert motorcyclist who served as pilot and escort. During the long ride Miss Kelly had one accident—a slight one—and she as well as her machine, came through the severe test comfortably and soundly.

A MOTORCYCLE WEDDING.

Khaki-clad, and borne swiftly by a seven-horse power, twin cylinder motorcycle, Clyde E. Schwartz, of Hayward, Oakland, dashed into San Jose, transacted some mighty important business and departed soon as Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Schwartz.

No, it wasn't an elopement, it was just their way of getting married. The ceremony over, Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz "steamed" away for a motorcycle honeymoon, followed by the cheers of San Jose for the modern Legion and his bride.

Plans are being made for a motorcycle stadium at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Paul E. Kuttowski has started from Los Angeles to Indianapolis on his motorcycle.

RACING DRIVERS ARE NOT RECKLESS

As a Rule the Gasoline Heroes
Are More Considerate Than Amateurs.

Erroneous as it is, many people get the impression that racing pilots are reckless drivers at all times, even when not at the wheel of their space eating speed monsters. This is untrue to the gasoline heroes, for in the majority of cases they are more careful of their steeds, more considerate of the road rights of others and less willing to endanger human life, than the amateur driver who is inoculated with the speed moribund.

An instance of this was the driving of "Howard" Wilcox, the famous National pilot, holders of world's records, the man who dared to pilot his National 40 over the Florida sands faster than any stock car has ever traveled before.

"Howard" drove a duplicate of his world record national throughout the entire Indiana Four-State tour. While less experienced drivers littered the road with dead dogs and flattened fowls, Wilcox was ever ready with the brakes, and was not afraid to risk his own life in a battle with speed and death.

Wilcox was the last person to turn the big boosters trip into a race. Not until the sign course was reached did he let his car out, and then only after the rest of the tour had left the course.

Certainly, it would be a revelation to many owners to ride with a real race driver on a tour of this kind. It would teach them that consideration for the cars, in every day use, enables men like Atkinson, Wilcox and Metz to win races with their big powerful National motors.

Oakland Motor Club Holding Second Tour

The Oakland Motor Club will hold its second run since organizing today. Alvin Rock being the objective point. The starting time is set for 9:45 o'clock and the starting point at the junction of Broadway and Telegraph avenue.

Realizing that many prefer to travel otherwise than in a group, the committee in charge, which includes Dr. E. F. Carr, James Vance and E. B. Mason, have notified the members that basket lunch is the order of the day and 1 p. m. is the time for everyone to be on deck at the destination.

A good time is scheduled. Some discussion will be had as to the proposed tour of the Grand Canyon. The President, Marland, states that the Thursday night informals are still in effect and the crowd increase each week at the San Leandro clubhouse.

E. B. Baker made a new track record for motorcycles at the State fair grounds at Indianapolis when he covered five miles in 6:12.25.

Pathfinders for the coming tour of the famous Kansas "Short Grass Motorcycle Club," have reached Canon City, Colo.

Arden, South Dakota, has a flourishing motorcycle club.

Detective Oscar Martinson, of Minneapolis, knows how to use a motorcycle. The other day, failing to get the patrol wagon, he brought a prisoner in on the handle bars of his machine, riding three long miles. The prisoner said he enjoyed the ride.

Merkel Riders End Long Vacation Tour

One of the longest tours ever undertaken in this state on a motorcycle has just been completed by Frank and Mrs. Karslake. Riding tandem on a twin-cylinder Merkel motorcycle, they toured the Lake Tahoe and back again. They left this city two weeks ago today at 8 a. m., stopped at Stockton for lunch and at Auburn for the night.

From that city they continued on the following day, reaching Emigrant Gap about noon. Here they remained for the night. Trucks was the stopping place on the third night. Wednesday, the fourth day, they rode to Lake Tahoe. Thursday the return trip was undertaken at a leisurely pace, and Oakland was reached again Sunday afternoon.

This is the first trip on record undertaken in a similar manner, and the result of it demonstrates that similar tours are possible, with great comfort on motorcycles, and also that the motorcycle has been perfected to a degree which the public at large does not as yet appreciate.

SCHEDULE FIXED FOR TAHOE TOUR

Fast Running Time Order for Four-Day Trip; Many to Enter Cars.

With the final schedule fixed for the second annual Lake Tahoe endurance run and arrangements made for the issuing of entrance blanks the early part of this week, it is expected that a large number of cars will have signified their intentions of competing in the event within a very few days. There is a decided interest in the contest among local dealers, and while no official entries have been taken as yet, a number have already declared their intention of entering machines. Among these are the local American agency, who intends entering two or three cars; the Howard Automobile Co., which will probably be represented by both an Olds and a Buick; A. J. Smith, who will enter at least one Elmore; E. C. Collins, who may send both a Premier and a Carter car out after the high score, and E. Stewart, who will come in with a Crawford and a S. G. V. This is but a partial list of those who have shown interest in the event at this early date and consequently it is expected that a big percentage of the local ranks will sign the first day that entry blanks are available.

The schedule for the run is as follows: Saturday, August 26—Leave Oakland 8:00 a. m., arrive Stockton 11:30 a. m.; leave Stockton 1:00 p. m.; arrive Auburn 5:30 p. m.

Sunday, August 27—Leave Auburn 7:00 a. m., arrive Tahoe Tavern 1:00 p. m.

Monday, August 28—Leave Tahoe Tavern 8:00 a. m., arrive Colfax 1:00 p. m.; leave Colfax 2:00 p. m., arrive Sacramento 5:00 p. m.

Tuesday, August 29—Leave Sacramento 7:30 a. m., arrive Oakland 3:00 p. m.

On up trip all drivers must sign at Sacramento to show that they took the road through that city. On return all cars are to stop one hour at Livermore for lunch. No repairs will be allowed on cars after checking in at controls, this regulation being made to prevent repairs of such nature as should count against a machine's road score. The regulations also provide that all contestants shall draw numbers before starting, which shall determine the order in which they shall be checked out from controls, and that, should any car be late at the starting point, it forfeits its place to the next car in line and must wait until all the other cars are on the road before being checked out. A car will be penalized one point for the first five minutes by which it misses the time schedule at any control and an additional point for each minute beyond that.

The name of the winning car and also the name of the driver will be inscribed on a permanent tablet, prominently placed at Tahoe Tavern. The owner of the car will be presented with a parchment certificate as evidence of the machine's performance. Should two or more cars tie for high score, all cars so tying will be awarded in manner indicated.

Considerable interest is also being manifested in the private owners' division, which has been provided with regard for those who may wish to make the run for pleasure, but who care nothing about the contest feature. Entrants in this division are subjected to no rules whatever except in manner of leaving controls, in which case there must be no interference with the checking out of contestants.

MOTORCYCLES FOR BUSINESS USE

Serve in a Variety of Ways;
Popular for Catching Speeders.

"How do you do without a motorcycle?" Before many years have passed it is probable that this question will not be asked—for there will be few to whom it could be addressed. Just now there are a few who "do without," but not many, and converts are being made every day in the field of business.

The administration of a city's business often requires more speed than in any other—particularly in the police department. And today those cities who have not already one or more motorcycles in their police equipment are frankly classed as "way behind the times."

The motorcycle has come to be a necessity to police administration, just as it has in all other fields of activity where emergencies must be met every day and every hour.

Dayton, O., already has its "flying squad" of motorcycles, and has just added three more. Sioux City, Ia., has just decided to join the progressive movement and has ordered a high-power motorcycle. A new machine is to be purchased at Moline, Ill., and Mt. Clemens, Mich., has about decided to do likewise.

Atlanta, Ga., is now using motorcycles in its police department and just the other day a motorcycle officer not only arrested a man but brought his prisoner in on the machine as well. Salem, Oregon, is one of the recent converts to the motor cycle and has authorized the purchase of a machine.

Rural mail carriers in every nook and corner of the United States are rising to the opportunity of the motorcycle, which takes them over their routes in about half the time consumed by horses, and at about one-half the expense. Motorcycle mail carriers have just bobbed up at Hinkley, Minn., Battle Creek, Mich., as well as in scores of other towns and villages.

At Rockport, Ill., a telephone company has just furnished its manager for Spencer county a motorcycle to be used in inspecting the country exchanges.

A high compliment to the speed, safety and reliability of the motorcycle is contained in an order by a Chicago telephone company for 250 motorcycles to be used by the company's "trouble chasers."

MOTORCYCLE CLUB

HOLDING A RUN

Destination Is Known to Officers Only; Sports Are Planned.

The Oakland Motorcycle Club will hold, starting this morning, what will in all probability result in the largest and most successful run ever held in these parts. It is styled a "watermelon run." The captain and lieutenants of the club are the only ones who know the destination. The only information the riders have is that the round trip will be about fifty miles, this much advice being given so that the ever held in the country, exceeding even the one held by the Los Angeles Motorcycle Club, on which there were 400 riders.

Excelsior Rider on Transcontinental Tour

Crossing the continent seems to be a fever invading the ranks of both the automobile and motorcycle owners more than ever this season. In particular the motorcyclist has taken to this form of vacation with a zest that is surprising.

The latest of the motorbike riders to undertake the journey is Dean Alexander, who intends to start within the next day or two. No records are to be sought, the idea in mind being to take many side trips while en route and to stop off at the principal cities of interest.

Alexander and his Excelsior Twin, for this is his favorite machine, have figured prominently in many record and endurance trips and they have landed winners on each occasion.

TOURISTS TO BE FETED IN SOUTH

Premier Party Will Receive Splendid Reception From Los Angeles Owners.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—In whatever manner the remainder of the world is viewing the transcontinental tour by pleasure motorists, this city thoroughly appreciates the vast importance of the event, and already plans are under way for a reception that is expected to make the travelers forget any hardships they may have endured. Such a welcome is to be extended here as to attract the attention of the nation.

The first ocean-to-ocean tour for pleasure probably is of more importance to this city and other California points than to the remainder of the universe, and the hardy occupants of the ten Premier cars will be made to know that their efforts to open up a new transcontinental method of pleasure travel have been appreciated. Los Angeles is the western terminus of the tour, and the ocean-to-ocean caravan is expected here on Sunday, August 13, after it has visited San Francisco and intermediate California points. The tour will be disbanded here after several days of feting and entertainments of various kinds, and the autos in the great tour will be shipped east to the homes of the owners.

The Boy Scouts of this city and a brass band, together with mounted police and the mayor, will first greet the visitors at the city limits and will escort them to the city hall, where the message of the Boy Scouts in the tour, carried from the head of the organization in New York, will be delivered. The various messages from Eastern mayors will also be turned over to the mayor of Los Angeles at that time.

100,000 AT RECEPTION.

The reception proper, which is expected to outdo anything of the kind ever held anywhere in the country, will be staged at the city of Venice, the chief resort of Los Angeles, which makes New York's Coney Island look like a village in number of attractions. The president of the Venice Chamber of Commerce has appointed fifty of the prominent men of the city to act as a reception committee, which will include such men as Nat Goodwin, the actor; Abbot Kinney, the founder of Venice, the man that spent millions building the city; the architectural effect taken from his own dreams, and Ward McFadden, the owner of the ship Cabrillo.

A plank chute will be built from the cement walk into the Pacific ocean, where the wheels of the transcontinental cars will be dipped in the surf of the Pacific. There are from one thousand to five thousand motor cars at this point every Sunday and several times that number are expected on the day of the baptism. An open-air garage has just been built on the pier to accommodate three hundred additional cars, this addition being necessary to accommodate the many cars that come to this most popular beach in the West.

The ship hotel at Venice is situated at the left of the pier upon the water about one thousand feet from the shore and after the dipping of the wheels of the ocean-to-ocean autos in the Pacific ocean the cars will be arranged directly in front of the entrance of the ship hotel, and no other cars will be permitted on the pier.

The progress of the Premier transcontinental caravan is being followed closely by motorists in this city, and all will be in making the grand finale here all that the term implies.

Aviators already have to their credit among other daring and skillful deeds these achievements:

SWAM MILE IN SEA OF SHARKS

Policeman Tells Harrowing Tale of a Fishing Trip Off Long Island.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Policeman Alfred Miller, of the Bayonne department, went off duty at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. In the evening he turned up at his home with the following account of his experience in the few hours which had intervened:

He had gone out fishing in his 35-foot motorboat immediately after getting off duty and had cruised down the coast of Jersey until he was off Sea Bright.

He had noticed a turmoil in the water to the seaward of the place where he was fishing. The disturbance came nearer, until he could see that it was caused by a big school of porpoises. Then he saw that the porpoises were trying to get away from something, and a minute later it became evident that the something was a school of sharks. The hunters and their quarry came on until they surrounded Miller's boat, and the water about the boat was red with the blood of the porpoises.

The motorboat rocked as the fighting mass charged about it, and then, as several of the sharks and their victims seemed to hit the side of the boat at about the same time, it keeled over. Miller crawled upon the upturned bottom of the boat and got his shoes off. Before he could get further undressed the boat filled and sank, and he had to hustle to get out of the way of it as it went under. Miller then found himself in blood-

HOUSES SELL FOR TEN DOLLARS EACH

Forced Sale at New England Resort Sets New Low Water Mark.

NAHANT, Mass., Aug. 5.—Notwithstanding the demand for summer cottages at the popular resort, where Senator Lodge has a palatial place, three dwelling houses and a store were sold at auction yesterday for $31.50. Frank Kezlar, a Boston lawyer who bought them, said the lumber was worth $5000.

The buildings were situated on land chosen for the site of the new town hall. A sixteen-room house brought $1 a room, a twelve-room house $13 and a two-room dwelling $2. The store, which was a single-story building, was sold for 50 cents.

stained water a mile and a half from shore, in the midst of the massacre. He is a strong swimmer, and struck out for shore. He had to kick porpoises out of the way with his arms, so thickly were they herder in their flight. Then a good-sized shark came up to him and Miller kicked at the fish with all his might. The shark turned and grabbed a porpoise instead.

From then on it was a continual fight with sharks for the rest of the mile and a half swim. The fish, the policeman said, followed him, closing up and then dropping back again as the policeman jabbed at them with his hands and feet. He reached the shore, rather well exhausted but otherwise unhurt.

HANGS HIMSELF IN GYM STUNT

Rope Tightens About Reckless Youth's Neck and He Chokes to Death.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 5.—Fondness for gymnastics cost the life of George Tray of this city this morning, when in an effort to suspend himself by the head and chin on two ropes in the cellar of his home, he choked to death, one of the ropes slipping under the chin and binding the throat. He was discovered by his sister.

This morning George went to the cellar to continue his gymnastics, although warned by his sister not to try to hang from the ropes. Last Saturday he was discovered by his sister doing stunts on the ropes, and she cautioned him against it. This morning, after he had been in the cellar for a short time, she decided to investigate and found him dead.

BETS LIFE IN POKER GAME; PAYS FORFEIT

LAWRENCEBURG, Ind., August 5.—Although he had lost a fortune at the card table, Harry C. Wheeler jokingly staked his life on his next game of playing poker with John W. Corney, and lost. "What've you got?" asked Corney. Wheeler laid down his hand. He held two black jacks and a pair of black aces, while Corney held two black aces and two black fours. Wheeler's head dropped on his chest, and he rolled from the chair and died. Heart disease, superinduced by a "poker sweat," is blamed.

MONOGRAM OIL PUT UP IN NEW CANS

Designed to Meet Demand of Motorists; Is Dust Proof.

One of the most interesting articles to recently invade the local accessory field is the new touring package in which the Pacific Coast office of the New York Lubricating Oil Co. are putting up Monogram oil. The new can was designed with the purpose of meeting a demand, made by Monogram purchasers, for a can of convenient shape and size for touring, especially in those sections where difficulty is sometimes experienced in procuring such accessories as oil. The can is so shaped as to be easily strapped on the running board. Its nozzle is absolutely dust proof when closed, and at the same time of such size as to insure against clogging. The handle is of comfortable shape and size for the hand and so placed as to give the proper leverage for pouring. The San Francisco branch of the New York Lubricating Oil Co., reports that E. J. Day Co., Jones Auto Supply Co., and Studebaker Bros. are among the local dealers who have stocked up with the new packages. The oil, so encased, can be procured through the other local dealers, however.

Crowning Triumph of Automobile Perfection

The Car That Starts Itself

IN The Saturday Evening Post of June 24th, there appeared a remarkable automobile announcement. The story of "the car that bridged the gap between the $1,500 price and the $4,000 quality," has since been read and wondered at by millions. Thousands have responded. That an All-Chrome-Nickel Steel car of the highest character could be bought for less than $4,000 was astounding; that the costly equipment specified could be included was unbelievable—but there was more to come. It was stated that a later announcement would tell of still another startling innovation. Here is the final chapter of that great story: The New Everitt Four and Six Are Positively Self-Starting! No more tedious "cranking"; no more hard work and uncertainty; no more bruised knuckles and broken arms—for a touch on a button starts the new Everitt. Thus, in this marvelous car, is swept away the last element of brute strength, of doubt and of danger; for here, at last, is the car that starts itself!

"Touch a button and it starts!"

That is the final, compelling chapter of the marvelous 1912 Everitt story that has swept across the country like a flood; that has brought us thousands upon thousands of inquiries; that has almost buried our Sales Department under orders and requests for territory, and that is now the talk of the industry from Maine to California.

If you know automobiles at all; if you are in the least acquainted with motor car values, you know it is literally true that

There Never Was a Car Like This

Consider for yourself the unheard-of value offered in this matchless Six!

Its construction throughout of Chrome-Nickel-Steel, three times better than "good" automobile material—the one steel used in battleship armor—never before used except in a few of the finest $4,000 cars.

Its manufacture—complete in one factory—by automatic "jigs and fixtures," absolutely unvarying, and accurate to a fraction of a hair's breadth.

Its design and supervision by a world-famous engineer, and three automobile manufacturers of eleven years' experience.

Its every detail the result of long experiment and thousands of successful cars.

Its size, big and impressive, with long, graceful lines and sweeping curves.

Its power a whirlwind of energy furnished by a Six-Cylinder Motor of the latest type; forty-eight actual horsepower at instant command.

Its wheels and tires big, massive, easy-riding, with 25 per cent factor of safety, ensuring extraordinary tire economy; 36 by 4 inches in size; and Demountable Rims.

Its Equipment Complete, with Top, Windshield and Speedometer included.

Its price $1,850—moderate, even for a good "Four." And now the Self-Start—"Touch a button and it starts!"

Here is at once effected a complete change in motoring. The Self-Start removes an element of actual danger, and eliminates the last factor demanding brute strength.

That such a long been fully realized, yet famous have failed the problem. Our own experimental force has been working on this detail for years. Its announcement was not made until reliability had been proven beyond the shadow of a doubt.

This is no mere clap-net arrangement of springs and "cogs"; there is no hand pump to labor with; the principle is as certain and its operation as automatic as the air brakes on the "20th Century Limited." You press a button—and go!

Two-Thirds the New Everitts Already Sold

Except in size, the New Everitt "Four" is practically a duplicate of the "Six." The general type is similar; the same Chrome-Nickel-Steel is used throughout; the same generous equipment of Top, Windshield and Speedometer is included; and the same positive Self-Start is built into the car. Were there no "Six" in the new Everitt line, this magnificent "Four" at $1,500 would alone mark out the Everitt as the car of the year.

device had needed realized designers utterly to solve the problem. Our own experimental force has been working on this detail for years. Its announcement was not made until reliability had been proven beyond the shadow of a doubt.

But there is still another Everitt of unique value and desirability—the "30" at $1,250. This splendid fifteen-hundred-dollar car has won to the highest standard of efficiency, reliability and satisfaction-giving qualities during the past two years. Except for the new Everitt "Four" and "Six," there are few, if any, cars within five hundred dollars of its cost offer as much to the actual user. This year the car is better than ever, and full equipment, with Top and Windshield, is included at the new price of $1,250.

Get An Everitt if You Can

You begin to see now the wonderful values offered in the 1912 Everitt. Take any one of the three models—the Six, for instance. Consider what you are getting for $1,850—$4,000 quality; Chrome-Nickel-Steel construction; all the advantages of the Six-Cylinder type; Whirlwind power; Long Wheel Base; Big Wheels; Demountable Rims. Full Equipment—and a car that starts on a Push-Button! And the new "Four" and "Thirty" are but little less desirable.

Don't be content with a mere car, when you can have an Everitt! Don't tug and grine on a crank, when an Everitt starts at will! Don't take chances on a broken arm—there are hundreds every month when the Everitt's push-button starts the motor from the seat! Don't deny your wife and family the pleasure and convenience of driving, when ease and safety are certain in an Everitt!

Remember, these advantages are only to be had in Everitt cars. Many are completely covered by Everitt patents. You cannot get them elsewhere at any price.

And, if you want a car like this, you must order now. The Everitt factory production is limited. Good cars are always built swiftly. There will be only 3,600 Everitts for 1912, for cars like these cannot be built in quantity.

See the nearest Everitt Dealer to-day. He is now taking advance orders. He can only get a certain number of 1912 Everitts. Reserve yours before it is too late. You take no chances. This car carries the most liberal factory guarantee ever offered. Send the coupon for the details.

ACTION AND MOVEMENT OF WORLD OF MUSICIANS

Henri Gressitt Is on Visit
From Italy; French Opera Coming

DAVID ALBERTO COHN, the talented young Oakland pianist, now visiting here.

Henri Gressitt surprised his many friends here by his unexpected appearance in town this week. He has just returned from Italy and is directing the transcontinental tour of Puccini's latest opera, "The Girl of the Golden West." Later in the season the Savage company will sing the opera in English for a week at the New Court Theater.

Preparations are being made at Irida Park for the coming grand opera season which begins on Sunday, August 20, when the well known Lambari Company comes for six weeks. It will be the first time that the Lambari Company has played to popular prices, the Irida management insisting in the contract that no seats shall be over one dollar.

One of the prima donnas who will appear with the Lambari is Madame Regina Vicarno, who has been singing with the Aborn Opera Company in New York and other eastern cities.

PROSPECT OF OPERA.

There is talk of a three months' season by a French opera company in San Francisco during the coming fall. The appearance of the company depends upon whether a suitable down town theater can be secured. If so, some well known French artists will appear, among whom is Monsieur Affre, who has been leading tenor at the Grand Opera House in Paris. The operas included in the repertoire number some of the latest works of the modern French school as well as several Wagnerian operas and of the older Italian school.

Uda Waldorf, the young pianist of Berkeley who was accompanist for Von Wairlich, the Russian basso, expects to stay in Berkeley during the coming year, after which he plans to go abroad and summer.

SUCCEEDS DR. WOLLE.

The resignation of Dr. J. Fred Wolle has been received and Richard Scholz of the department of history has been appointed tentatively as his successor in the department of music, pending definite arrangements.

Professor Scholz will lecture on the history and the theoretical side of music, while Paul Steindorff will assume charge of the practical work. He will direct the university orchestra and assist with the university choruses.

A number of other names have been proposed for the department of music, among them such noted musicians as Arthur Foote, the composer of Boston.

Steindorff has been connected with the university musical organizations for more than three years. He has taken an active part in all of the university musical productions. Steindorff was for a number of years director of the Golden Gate Park band in San Francisco, and is well known on the coast in orchestral work and the choice of him has met with general approval.

ALBERTO VISITING PARENTS.

David Alberto, who in private life is David Cohn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Cohn and nephew of Abe Simon and Sol Simon, both well known here, is at present visiting in Oakland.

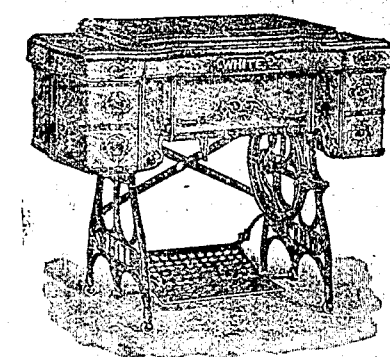

He is said by competent critics to be highly gifted and to play with delicacy and the beautiful singing tone which is so rare, together with remarkable power and firmness.

Alberto is a pupil of Leschetizky, of Vienna, with whom he studied two years. He is also a protege of Frank La Forge.

HOW GRACE BENSON BECAME FAMOUS FOR THE BEAUTY OF HER HANDS AND ARMS

Grace Benson, famous for the marvelous beauty of her hands and arms, in a recent interview, says: "If I could tell every woman about the prescription that has caused all this talk about my hands and arms they could have one of them make their hands and arms as beautiful as mine. I am glad to have the opportunity to give my receipt free to the world. It will help every woman to improve her personal appearance." When I asked her if she would allow me to publish the prescription, she quickly answered, "Certainly, only be glad to have you do it." Turning to a desk she wrote it on a slip of paper and handed it to me; here it is. "Go to any drug store, get an empty two-ounce bottle; also a one-ounce bottle of Kulus Compound. Pour the entire bottle of Kulus into the two-ounce bottle, add quart of water, and shake well. Use it four times a day, morning and evening." This prescription makes the skin transparent and removes all defects, such as freckles, tan, sun spots, roughness and ruddiness. It cures itching, and works a marvelous transformation. The only dollars are worth it can be applied to the neck with equally as startling results. It is absolutely harmless, and will positively not stimulate or produce a growth of hair.

Arraigns Visitors for Lack of Faith in De la Barra.

TEHUACAN, Puebla, Mexico, Aug. 5.—Francisco I. Madero has been assured by a committee from the capital that they would support him for the presidency and that all should do so. Madero supporters, disgruntled, because he had failed to save Emilio Vasquez Gomez and, because he appeared too friendly with General Barandera Reyes, both now candidates, had sent the committee to subject Madero to the direct test of questions.

The committee included a delegation from the palace and another representing the men who had fought in the revolution. This delegation was headed by General Candido Navarro.

"Do you recognize only the new party you have formed?" was the substance of the first question.

In effect Madero assured them that he did, explaining that there was no further need for club styling toward anti-revolutionist whose sphere was merely local.

REFUSES TO BIND SELF.

"Do you propose to bar General Reyes absolutely from all public service?" he was asked.

He refused to bind himself by any pledges.

The committee then wanted to know if it were true that Madero had brought about the dismissal of Minister Vasquez, and if so, would he bring about his restoration.

Madero assured them that he had not done so, but that he was in thorough accord with the president for having done so. He told them that Vasquez, during the days of the revolution, had done things of which he did not approve, but that because of friendship he overlooked them, adding that beyond all else, Vasquez, a president demanded such treatment as he had received. He told them President de la Barra had been placed in office by the revolution and that he should support him instead of criticizing him.

SCORES COMMITTEE.

Employing words that hurt, Madero arraigned the committee and those who sent them for their lack of faith in the president. To the delegation he said that he would not be commanded, he said they, as military men, had no right to meddle in politics.

The committee had come with the idea of bearing to the capital a report that would eliminate Madero as a dangerous political rival of Vasquez. They left declaring their intention of supporting him with increased vigor.

GOVERNOR VIEWS HARBOR PROGRESS

Commissioners Show Executive Condition of Various Improvements.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—Governor Hiram Johnson, accompanied by his family, Joseph Dwyer and George M. Hill, members of the State Board of Harbor Commissioners, made a tour of inspection. The chief executive visited the territory at the mouth of the bay, and also examined the new pier No. 54, which extends from Harrison street to the new pier, and the concrete dock of the American-Hawaiian company.

It was originally intended that the party should leave in the launch James N. Gillett to view the wharfage from the bay, but, press of business, prevented this.

At noon the Governor and the commissioners left the ferry building in an automobile and proceeded to the mail docks. Much work has been done at that vicinity recently, and the Governor and the commissioners viewed the details. The last piece of seawall which was constructed, joined the strips, and will be open for traffic. Much property was reclaimed by the State in the construction of the pier, and the contractors are now busy filling it in.

Within a week or ten days Governor Johnson and the commissioners will be called to the north, where they will be making a tour of inspection. The Governor's attention will be called to the harbor improvements, and it is also his intention to visit the Islands Creek section and view the work both from the bay and the land.

In order to prepare for the increased amount of shipping, the port improvements are contemplated by the State board and the Governor will probably urge that the work be taken up immediately.

COMING APPLE CROP LOOMS UP STRONG

WATSONVILLE, Aug. 5.—A less than bumper crop of Newtown Pippins is the local fruit outlook for the season of 1911 as it seems to loom up at present. Some orchardists estimate that the Newtown crop will exceed that of 1910, but at least 75 per cent, while others put the increase as low as 10 per cent. But it is safe to say that the Newtown Pippin crop will be increased this year at least one-fourth over last year and the Belle fleur crop will see a decrease of from 10 to 15 per cent.

GREAT LOG DRIVE TO START MONDAY

WENGLER, Aug. 5.—T. H. Benton's log drive of 4,500 logs will be started down the river from here next Monday morning. It will take about a month for the logs to make the trip to the Benton sawmill in Redding. Thirty men will be employed on the drive, the longest made in the State. Mr. Benton is making only one drive this season, instead of two, as heretofore. The sawmill in Redding will be started up about September 20.

MARQUIS WOULD STRANGLE RULE OF PEOPLE

(By ROBERT EMMETT)

DUBLIN, Aug. 5.—The Marquis of Londonderry, an Orangeman, and a Tory who is noted for his bigotry and opposition to Home Rule, recently came out with an appeal to the Tories of England, asking them to do their utmost to strangle popular government. Opening the appeal he said:

Loyalists in Ireland are beginning to wonder whether the lords, English, Scots, and Welsh have not forgotten them. Although Mr. Balfour has recently delivered three admirable speeches dealing with the Home Rule question, in which the proposition of the Unionist party was made, beyond all possibility of mistake, the Irish loyalists desire to be assured of the support of the electors of the three kingdoms, irrespective of party. We in Ulster do not make a great noise, because our religion and our liberty are threatened; are we therefore to be ignored by our allies in the larger islands? We speak to you as men to men, and we tell you plainly it is not our habit to deal in words or to go begging for sympathy and aid. But we ask you to believe that, nevertheless, we are in earnest about the matter of Home Rule. It is not much to ask.

His appeal ends thus: "I will tell you what we in Ulster think of the matter. We think that our duty lies to our children and to the king, and not to the sworn enemies of England and the politicians who keep separate a conscience for State affairs. To the loyalists in Ireland, who are in a matter that touches our homes, that is why we are in earnest."

EMIGRATION LESSONS.

The figures of Irish emigration for the first six months of the year show a reduction of 196, as compared with the corresponding period last year, the total number of emigrants being 1,212,000 in June, 1911, 2,182,000 in June, 1910, the number was 2,739, being a reduction of 557. Even the tide from Ulster showed a slight abatement—365 as against 102—but as will be seen, had the emigration this year come from the northern province. Four hundred and thirty-eight of the 1,212,000 passengers, bound for the United States had their passage paid for in America by relatives.

A riot occurred in Mungah street last Sunday in connection with the display of an English flag by a man named Long, keeper of a lodging house. A party of five men entered the premises to have Long remove the flag, several of which were displayed on the wall during the day, but he declined, and as he fled, was knocked down and kicked and the flag carried off by the intruders. A crowd collected and some stones were thrown at the police, some of whom were injured. The riot was quickly quelled, and the crowd which it is stated was large was dispersed quietly.

Several English flags were torn down and spit upon in other parts of the city of Liverpool. The members of the Ross District Council, a motion to appoint three lady members was lost. The motion had been on about a month ago and was defeated by a big majority, and at the last meeting, John Campbell brought it up, but it was not adopted at the first meeting of the new Council. One member said that he had petitioned the government at home, and that was enough.

Lord Iveagh's gift to the Royal Irish Society is a valuable one. It is the gift of a sort of Naboth's vineyard, which the University authorities have much the bit of land which was used for building purposes, will have a splendid memorial to two of Lord Iveagh's friends, the late Dr. Molloy and Father Healy of Bray.

tirpate and Indict Stanford's President.

The following resolution, introduced by L. L. Brown, was unanimously adopted by Appomattox Post, No. 50, G. A. R., at its regular meeting last night.

Whereas, At a recent meeting, David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford Jr. University in a speech from the platform, said that "Marching Through Georgia," one of our most patriotic and sentimental national songs, should be tabooed and prohibited from being sung in our public schools or at any public meeting where school children are assembled for the reason that it might excite ill feeling on the part of the people between the North and South and hinder the approach of the long-wished-for peace, now, therefore, be it Resolved, That the said David Starr Jordan be repudiated, execrated, extirpated and indicted for treason, and let him be transported to Macon, Ga., like his illustrious predecessor, C. L. Vandalingham.

HORSE WILL RULE SUPREME AT FAIR TRACY TO HOLD STREET CARNIVAL

State Show Will Provide for Every Specie of Equine Attraction.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 5.—The horse show at the State fair of 1911 will be of horse flavor. Autos will be run into the garage and be forgotten temporarily. Not once or twice, but every evening there will be a horse show, in a splendid new amphitheater 150 feet by 310 feet, a re-cherche spectacle event with all the latest Paris and Billings-gowns and toilettes, and at the same time a hot time in the old town for the hot polo. The best horses in the State of California, handled by experts who are fit successors to the caballeros of a century ago, will be shown, groomed to a finish, and put through all their fancy steps and evolutions, their matches and quadrilles, and every trick that horse sense and horse agility and grace may accomplish.

The band and California has no better or bigger band than the California State Band, will discourse harmonious music nightly, and those who have no eyes for horses may open their ears to the delightful strains of the violin and flute and the inspiring music of the cornet, trumpet and drum.

WILD WEST FEATURES.

The Wild West feature will be a cor-er. The fair management have scoured the cow country for the best riders and they will, it may be assured, bring their best and their worst horses, cowboys, Stanley, of this department, himself a lifelong cowboy, has a corps of his ablest and toughest men scouting the plains and mountains of Northern Nevada, for the notorious king of the wild horses and the untaught and unbridled Buckeye that has up to date scorned a master.

With the chief of the wild horses of America in the California corral, there will be no end of sport and plenty of hard work for the champion cowboys and rough riders.

The time-honored trotting events will never lose their interest in this country so long as the prince of quadrupeds lives. When the auto's last tire has busted, and the honk has subsided and died, the starter's flag will drop and the bell will sound for the finish of the good old horse trot. It is as distinctly American as baseball, and has the budge on the popular game for excitement. More purses and larger ones are hung up for the California State fair of 1911 than ever before, and this has attracted more and better horses than ever attended a racing meet on the coast, so that it will be amply demonstrated that horse racing is not on the decline. The mile track is being put into apple-ore and will be, if it is not already, the best in the State, giving a good prospect of lower records. In several events. Altogether the horse lover will have every assurance of a good time at the Sacramento fair from the opening day, August 26, to the close of the gates on September 2.

Here Is Positive Cure For All Foot Ailments

"Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocid in a basin of hot water, soak the feet in this for half fifteen minutes. (Less time will not bring results.) Massage the sore parts gently while in the water." This should be repeated for a number of nights until the cure is permanent. The effects are almost magical.

All soreness goes instantly and the feet feel so good that the whole nervous system is benefited. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. Bunions are reduced, and the inflammation drawn out. Sweaty, bad smelling feet and swollen, tender feet need but a few applications. Any drugist has Calocid in stock or will get it from his wholesale house. A twenty-five cent package is usually sufficient to cure the worst feet. Calocid is not a patent medicine. Formerly used only by doctors, but now is obtainable by the public in general, and is saving many an hour of torture for thousands.

WONDERFUL MAP OF STATE BEING PREPARED

Scale Will Show One Mile to Each Two Inches of Drawing.

WATER POSSIBILITIES SHOWN IN DETAIL

Survey Being Carried on by Quadrangles in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Steady progress is being made in the construction of the great topographical map of California of the United States geological survey of the state. This huge map will be when completed a work of which both the federal government and California may well be proud. It will be made up of a large number of sheets, uniform in size, each representing a rectangular area called a quadrangle. Already 170 quadrangles have been surveyed, most of them in great detail, and an atlas sheet for each has been engraved and printed by the survey. These quadrangles include areas ranging from the vast flat reaches of the Sacramento valley to the glacier-laden peaks of the high Sierra.

WONDERFUL MAP WORK.

Perhaps the most comprehensive and detailed topographical mapping in the world has been that of the broad Sacramento valley, comprising an area of more than 3,000,000 acres. This has already been completely surveyed by the topographers of the United States geological survey in co-operation with the state of California, the survey and the state each paying half the cost. This mapping has been done on a scale of two inches to one mile with a five-foot contour interval, each map showing an area of 7 1/2 minutes square. The survey covers all land possible of irrigation between Red Bluff on the north and Suisun Bay and Stockton on the south.

Surveys of the same class are now being pushed southward under a similar co-operative agreement between the state and the geological survey. The present field season's plans include the mapping of the area near Stockton and farther south in the San Joaquin valley. The maps will be on the same scale and contour interval as the Sacramento valley empire of California an exact geographic basis for engineering development of any class—irrigation, drainage, road or bridge construction—in fact, any work requiring accurate determination of levels.

IRRIGATION POSSIBILITIES SHOWN.

The possibilities lying in the reclamation of this extensive California valley are sufficiently stupendous to awaken the interest of the most ambitious engineer. The Sacramento valley drains a vast mountain region and carries water sufficient to irrigate an estimated area of 12,000,000 or 13,000,000 acres—not only all of its own immensely fertile valley, but likewise the agriculturally almost barren lands of the Sacramento valley. The harnessing of the Sacramento river is doubtless one of the great engineering problems of the country and millions of dollars have already been spent in largely futile attempts to control this rampant monster in time of flood, but there is no lack of engineers who believe the task a feasible one and point to the ample opportunities for storing in reservoirs in the mountains the enormous excess of water, most of which under present conditions is lost uselessly to the sea, but every few years carries destruction in its wake to the extent of millions of dollars.

DETAILS OF YEAR'S WORK.

This year's field work of the geological survey will include the completion of the survey of nine following quadrangles: The vast part of California so much of them as the funds available and the length of the field season will permit.

Elbert Quadrangle—Latitude 37 degrees 30 minutes to 38 degrees 10 minutes, longitude 118 degrees 10 minutes to 119 degrees 10 minutes. This area lies partly within the Inyo National Forest and contains the source of Owens river, which furnishes the water supply for the Los Angeles, through the long aqueduct now being constructed.

Prest Valley Quadrangle—Latitude 38 degrees 30 minutes to 39 degrees 10 minutes, longitude 120 degrees 30 minutes to 121 degrees 30 minutes. This area lies within the Monterey National Forest, adjoining the Colunga oil fields. Within the last two or three years a railroad has been built into this region from the main coast line of the Southern Pacific.

Weaverville Quadrangle—Latitude 40

WOMEN BALK AT DOING JURY DUTY

Suffragists Willing to Vote, But Say Men Should Fill Panels.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 5.—Ten women drawn for jury duty at the coming term of the Spokane county superior court declare they will not serve unless compelled to do so by law. Mrs. Sarah Witherspoon, living at 1523 Ninth avenue, the first woman drawn for the venire, voiced the sentiments of her sisters in saying that while women should use their franchise in voting for good government, she believes jury duty is a man's work. "I voted because I am a taxpayer," she added, "and because I had the right to vote."

Mrs. Flora P. Atchison, 808 Shannon avenue, said: "There are certain cases where it is all right for a woman to serve on a jury, but they are scattered. I will not serve if called. My home is the place for me. I am not an advocate of the equal suffrage cause, although I think that women will be able to accomplish much good with their votes." Mrs. E. G. Hubbard, 2116 North Madison street, told her story in a few words: "I prefer to stay at home, for I think that is the woman's place. Women jurors on a divorce case. Oh my! No!"

WILL TRY OUT DRUGS ON BOSTON BULLFROGS

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 5.—The State Pure Food and Dairy Commission has just received four dozen bullfrogs from Boston. It must not be understood that a mistake was made and that the "Hub" city sent frogs instead of baked beans. Frogs were ordered for the purpose of making experiments on the strength of certain drugs and chemicals dispensed from the city drug stores. Just what a Boston frog should know more about the strength of drugs and chemicals than a Texas frog is not made quite clear, but it is taken for granted that Pure Food Commissioner E. Abbott knows his business when he prefers to experiment with the Boston variety of bullfrog. Some wag, in noticing the fact that the frogs had been ordered, ventured the suggestion that the pure food commission meant to order the Boston variety of bullfrog for the purpose of making experiments on the strength of certain drugs and chemicals dispensed from the city drug stores. # REAL ESTATE EXPERIENCES BOOM

OAKLANDERS PROVE HOME BUILDERS

Sales Made on Every Tract Within Boundaries of the City.

Newcomers, Charmed With Climate and Prosperity, to Remain Here.

The real estate business, for the past week, has been of the most encouraging character. As a consequence, there is a great deal of satisfaction experienced by the local dealers. While there are thousands of people absent from their homes during the months of June, July and August, seeking pleasure in the mountains and along the shore, at the same time there was left behind a sufficient amount of money for the purchase of realty to satisfy the local dealers in that commodity.

This is one of the best signs that there is among the people a desire to secure homes for themselves and thus become independent of the landowner and landlord. There is scarcely a tract of land now on the market on which, during the past week, there was not a lot sold. Many of the lots were disposed of on time, but in not a few instances the sale took place for cash. Where the money was paid down there was, of course, a liberal discount allowed, but as a general thing, the dealers were pleased to see an instance of the reason that, in the end, they profit more by such a deal because, as a usual thing, one good purchaser who is thrifty enough to save money to provide a home for himself usually is an inspiration to friends to do likewise and as a consequence successive sales in the same tract follow the purchase by a man who is an exemplar of thrift to associates.

HOMES FOR NEWCOMERS.

One of the dealers in this city who has been modest in reporting the volume of his sales, informed the representative of THE TRIBUNE that during the past week he had made four sales of property all of which were for home-builders, three of whom were people who had recently become residents of this city after having spent the greater part of their lives in Eastern and Southern parts of the country. What was somewhat more grateful in the matter of the sales to the dealer was the fact that the purchasers were possessed of means and had elected to make their homes here after having thoroughly considered the climate and the future possibilities of several of the leading cities of the Pacific coast.

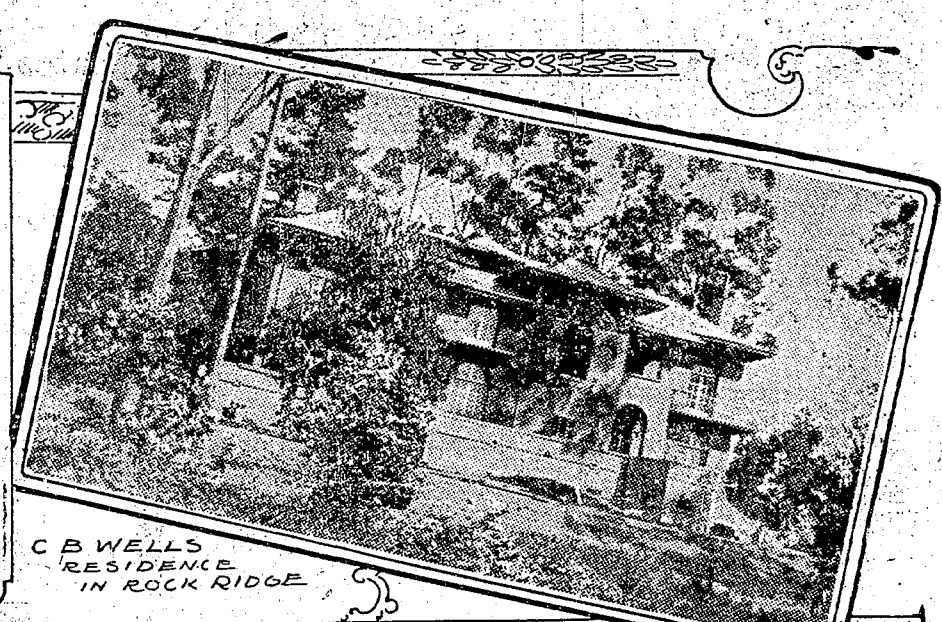

Inquiry among the larger realty dealers elicited the information that they, too, had been unusually busy, considering the fact that this is the vacation time of hundreds of people who have money to spend for the purchase of realty. They had not alone made sales of many pieces of realty but at the same time had entered into negotiations with representatives of large firms, who desired to secure locations here for mercantile and manufacturing establishments.

There is little wonder that the men who deal in real property are cheerful over the present condition of the market for the reason that there is no part of the city to which a stranger may go that he does not see improvements in progress. In the heart of the city there are towering business structures ascending toward the heavens and, on the point of occupancy. Prominent among these are the Capwell building at the northeast corner of Clay and Fourteenth streets, which is to be one of the handsomest business structures on the Pacific coast, and the Hotel Oakland, which is the marvel of every visitor and the delight of every public-spirited citizen of Oakland.

There is not a resident of Oakland who has watched the latter structure majestically rising from the ground who is not delighted with the manner in which it realizes his fondest hopes and imaginings. This feeling is all the more acute, if resident has visited the large hotels in the southern part of the State which were designed for the purpose of attracting the tourist from abroad as well as from the eastern part of the country.

HOME OF J. C. BULLOCK. ROCK RIDGE

C. B. WELLS RESIDENCE IN ROCK RIDGE

HOTEL OAKLAND HEADS.

When he compares the Hotel Oakland with the larger and more noted hosteleries of the southern part of the state, he has no hesitancy in saying that there is no one of them, either in architecture, beauty, richness and completeness, that can be compared with it. He unhesitatingly declares the Hotel Oakland belongs to a class of its own and congratulates the public-spirited citizens who have been instrumental in making its construction possible. He knows that as soon as it is open to the public it will spring into favor, not alone with the traveling man and merchant, but also with the tourist and will, at the same time, become the place of abode of people of wealth and leisure who can not withstand the intensity of the heat of summer and the cold of winter in the eastern part of the country.

The building is now closed in and artisans are at work completing the interior. This latter feature will be pushed with the practical and systematic methods of the management, the desire being to enable the best kind of work to be done with the view of securing a beauty of permanence of a lasting character.

BONDS FIND FAVOR.

The management is now disposing of 2500 bonds at a par value of $100 each for the purpose of furnishing the new hostelry. It is gratifying to know that the bonds are being bought with patriotic avidity on the part of the people of this city. The purchasers have seen in the manner in which the enterprise has been conducted up to the present time, the head of men experienced in the business and financial world and are thus impelled to invest in the project, not alone because they are devoted to Oakland, but because there is a certainty that, from the time of the opening of the doors of this palatial hostelry there will be a handsome return for every dollar which has been invested in the enterprise.

J. P. Edoff, the financial agent of the company, says he is gratified with the manner in which the people of the city are rushing to become holders of the bonds and that there is no doubt that Hotel Oakland will be considered as attractive within as it is without to the people of the country.

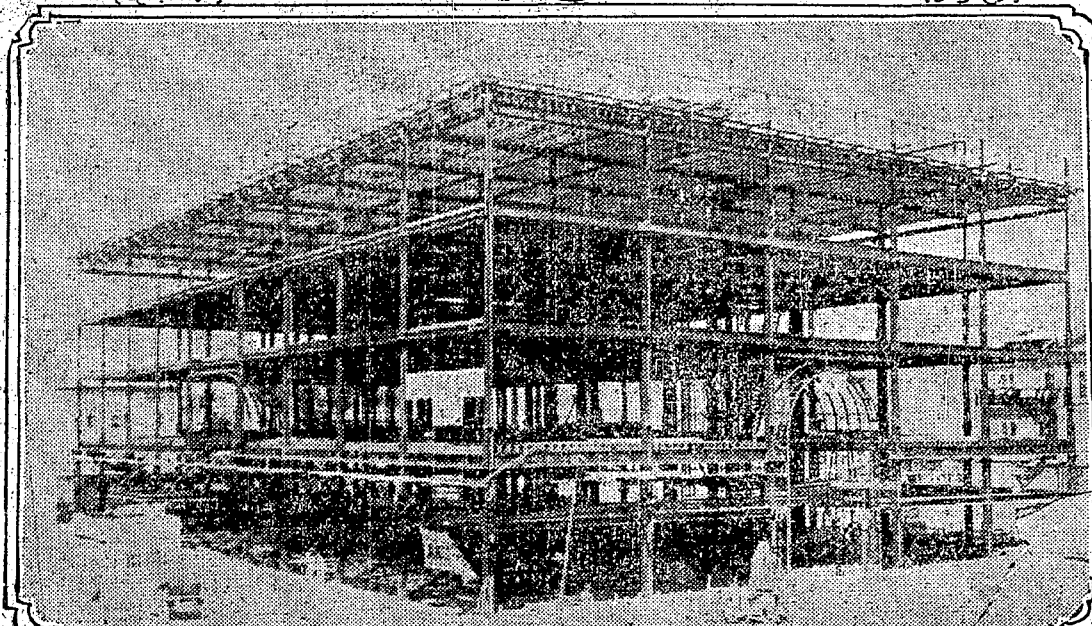

THE TRIBUNE, from time to time has referred to the improvements which are being made by the local street railway companies, and, as a consequence, there is little that is new to be said on that subject, save that those improvements are nearer completion today than they were a week ago. Their present state of incompleteness attracts the attention of the stranger and impels him to inquire why this street or that is not put in proper condition, but when the inquirer is informed that the thoroughfare is undergoing complete rehabilitation he wonders at the marvelous amount of work of this kind alone which is in progress in this city.

BARRETT IMPRESSED.

One of the most noted of the recent visitors to this city was John Barrett,

FORMER DINGEE HOME AT NINTH AND MADISON STS. SOLD TO W. S. WITHERS OF SAN FRANCISCO

CAPWELL NEW BUILDING

the director-general of the Pan-American Union with headquarters at Washington. He was shown the work in which this city is engaged on the western and southern water-fronts in the building of wharves and quay walls and marvelled at the energy and foresight of the administration and the liberality of the people. Mr. Barrett is a man who has traveled all over the world. He has seen what other cities and countries have done for the purpose of increasing their business and their commerce by means of furnishing accommodations for the ships of other nations and he declared that Oakland was doing the very thing in the way of building those walls and quays which would eventually make her in all probability the greatest city on the Pacific Coast. While there is general liveliness in all parts of the city and outlying districts in the matter of locating business places, there is special activity along the new line of the Southern Pacific. This is true of the sections which are soon to be served by that company's electric service as it is in Oakland, on the streets over which the trains are to run from the Alameda mole to Sixteenth street, spot. A number of available pieces of property have been changed hands and will eventually be used for business purposes in the vicinity of the street intersections where are to be located the proposed stations. This is true in a special manner of the vicinity of Twentieth street and Broadway where is understood liberal figures have been offered for available lots but without the tender being accepted.

KNIGHTS WILL HAVE OUTING.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—The first family outing and bay ride of San Francisco Council No. 615, K. C., will be held Sunday, August 20. The number to be taken on this trip is limited to 250. The steamer Arrow will leave Clay street wharf at 9 a. m. Sunday, August 20, and proceed to Glen Cove, near Vallejo, where the day will be spent. Returning, leave Glen Cove at 5 p. m.

REAL ESTATE MEN ENJOY BANQUET

Sales Force of Wickham Havens, Incorporated, Make Merry at Inn.

The entire sales force of the real estate firm of Wickham Havens, Incorporated, enjoyed a banquet at the Key Route Inn last Wednesday evening. Twenty-five were present, including the officials of the corporation. For two months past, the office has been holding a prize contest, and the banquet marked the close. After a bountiful dinner Sales Manager Edgar A. Jones awarded seven valuable prizes to the salesmen, as follows: Richard Oates, W. H. Moore, A. McFarland, William Leimert, H. W. Jewett, L. J. Wetzel and E. H. Duncan.

After awarding the prizes, speeches were made and plans for future developments were discussed. A musical entertainment followed, completing an enjoyable evening. Every man was enthusiastic about the business outlook, and a period of great growth and prosperity for Oakland was predicted. Wickham Havens, Incorporated, report that they are planning very extensive developments in the Piedmont district for the near future.

808 INSTRUMENTS RECORDED IN WEEK

Increase Shown Over Number of Papers Filed at Same Period Last Year.

During the week ending Thursday last there were filed in the office of County Recorder Bacon, 808 instruments. This showing indicates an increase in the number on several of the days of that week as compared with the filings of the same week of last year.

The sheets in the county recorder's office are an index to a certain degree, to the volume of business done by the real estate dealers in this city, for the reason that most of the instrument filed show transactions in which they take part, especially in the matter of filing deeds. There are times when the number of documents filed in that office in this county exceed those recorded on the other side of the bay. Hereafter, there will be a weekly reference in these columns to the relative standing of the two counties in this respect. The filings for the past week in the recorder's office in this county are as follows:

|-----------------|-----|
| Friday, July 28 | 146 |
| Saturday        | 82  |
| Monday          | 138 |
| Tuesday         | 179 |
| Wednesday       | 151 |
| Thursday        | 131 |
| Total           | 868 |

If you anchored your money the way you do a boat, it would drag anchor and get away just the same.

OLD DUBLIN ROAD TO BE IMPROVED

With Foothill Boulevard It Will Be Part of Highway System.

The action of the Board of Supervisors in awarding the contract for boulevarding of what, for many years, has been known as the Dublin canyon road, has been commended all through the county as also on the other side of the bay, where there was a cause of pain and regret to the farmer and rancher who were compelled to resort to it for the purpose of getting their products to market.

The improvement is to be along the lines of that of the Foothill boulevard, which, for the last five or six years, has been considered one of the finest roads in the country. Both this road and the new one through Dublin canyon will eventually be connected with the state highway system which is proposed to be built by the state under the $18,000,000 bond issue which has been favored by the people.

RUGGED ROAD.

There has been a road through Dublin canyon for many years and though it has been liberally patronized, at the same time it has been such that it offered but the rudest accommodations to seekers of pleasure, even with powerful automobiles and was a cause of pain and regret to the farmer and rancher who were compelled to resort to it for the purpose of getting their products to market.

There were several objections to it, one of which was its steep grades, which made it oppressive on an animal whose driver desired to make good time over the highway. It was a cause of vexation to the farmer with a heavy load because progress was both slow and his horses were exhausted with the effort necessary to haul an ordinary load to a point of delivery. In some places the grade was at least 13 per cent.

Under the new order of things, however, there will be a great reduction of the grades, to the degree that there will be no part of the thoroughfare where there will be a heavier grade than 8 per cent. This will be a remarkable reduction when one takes into consideration the present ruggedness of the thoroughfare and the annoyance it has occasioned these many years.

Another feature of the improvement will be the giving to the thoroughfare an even width. At the present time, the road has varying widths, which have been adapted to the natural formation of the surface, but under the new arrangement the thoroughfare will have a uniform breadth of twenty-five feet.

DRAINAGE SYSTEM.

Heretofore, there has been no drainage save that which was made possible by the contour of the land, but, hereafter, the road will be guttered after the manner of that of the Foothill boulevard, and have a similar curb. The roadway will be macadamized with a crown in the middle and as a consequence, in stormy weather, the rain can be carried away by the gutters just the same as on a city street.

In this manner, the road can be kept in a good condition at all seasons of the year, both for purposes of business and pleasure. The scenery in Dublin canyon is considered as picturesque as any in the state of California, and has been an attraction to auto parties for years, regardless of the fact that the road which rendered it accessible was little more than that of a primitive character.

The new macadamizing, curbing, and guttering will begin about a mile and a half northwesterly from Hayward and continue to Bulmer Hill, a distance of about five and a quarter miles. In a general way it will follow the old line, passing the ranches of Mendelhall, Mendon, Lavin, Rasmussen, Larsen, Sousa, Jensen, Craven, Fraga, Cowling, Tackler, Ferrell Davila, Davina, Phillips, Duarte, Jones, Costa, and others.

The improvement is to cost $105,000. The contract calls for the completion of the work in 105 days, but there is no doubt that the supervisors will be compelled to grant an extension of time, for the reason that there will be a great deal of filling to do and some time must be allowed for the fills to settle before the pavement can be laid so as to prevent the possibility of the sagging of the same.

This improvement is bound to work to the advantage of this city as well of the interior of the county, for the reason that it will bring both the city and the country districts together with the result there will be a greater exchange of the commodities peculiar to each, which has heretofore been more or less restricted by the natural barrier which is now about to be overcome.

GRAYSON HOME IS INCLUDED IN SALE

W. S. Withers of San Francisco Acquires Old Oakland Property.

The Geo. W. Grayson property at the southwest corner of Ninth and Madison streets, comprising 125 feet on Ninth street by 120 feet on Madison, has been sold by E. L. Spence, one of the most enterprising local real estate brokers. The sale, while marking the passing of another of the old homes in that locality, at the same time shows an activity in securing valuable large corners especially desirable for apartment house locations.

"This sale of the Grayson property," said Mr. Spence, "which has just been effected by A. A. Sawyer of my office to W. S. Withers of San Francisco, is of two-fold interest. It represents the change taking place in the former bonton residential section and the entry into Oakland of another speculator and investor, Mr. Withers, the purchaser. Mr. Withers has told me that if he had a million dollars to invest, Oakland would be the field of his operations."

"This is the third old home on Madison street that has recently gone into other hands for modern improvements. I sold the Hook residence at the corner of Tenth and Madison a few months ago to local people. Following that, the Bromwell place at Ninth and Madison streets was sold to Geo. E. Tumah, who has built and sold an apartment house on the corner lot and is now building another on the inside lot. This is strictly an ideal apartment house locality, facing Madison street, the Madison Park Apartments of Mr. MacGregor at Ninth and Oak streets being the pioneer and largest."

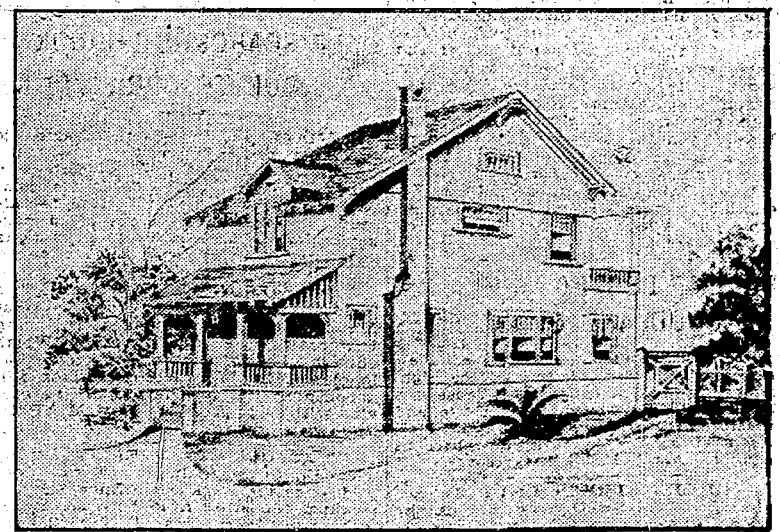

The house just sold by Mr. Spence was built originally at a cost of $35,000 by Ex-Mayor Spaulding in the center of the block bounded by Eighth, Ninth, Madison and Jackson streets, Spaulding owning the entire block at that time. The house was afterward bought and occupied by Gen. Dodge and after his death was occupied by Wm. J. Dingee, who married the widow of Gen. Dodge. Dingee sold the house to Geo. W. Grayson, who spent between $8000 and $10,000 fitting up the interior in magnificent style.

Mr. Withers, the present buyer, has under contemplation the erection of modern apartments upon the premises.

NO, HE DIDN'T KNOW THE GUN WAS LOADED

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 5.—His desire to have a startling photograph taken resulted in the probably fatal injury of Lawrence Tucker, 21, of this city, when he was shot by James Smith, both of Jackson, Ky., while playing with drawn revolvers. The explosion was completed, the man pulled the trigger of his gun in fun. Smith fired with a bullet through his head. Smith, a 21-year-old man, was arrested and charged with the murder of Tucker. Tucker was a 21-year-old man, a native of Jackson, Ky., who had come to Huntington to work for a local merchant. He was a well-known and popular young man in the community. The shooting took place in a field near the town. Smith, who was also a young man, was a friend of Tucker. The two were playing with their revolvers, which they had brought with them from home. Smith fired first, and the bullet struck Tucker in the head. Tucker fell to the ground and died shortly thereafter. Smith was arrested immediately after the shooting. He is being held in the local jail pending further investigation. The case is expected to go to trial in the near future.

CHAMBER MOVES TO NEW QUARTERS

Theater to Be Installed in Building When Improvements Are Made.

The Oakland Chamber of Commerce has changed its place of abode from the northwest corner of Twelfth and Franklin streets to the southeast corner of Twelfth and Harrison streets, immediately opposite the palace hotel. It is now in its new home. Here, to be a tenant. Now it owes allegiance to no person or corporation save itself and the city of Oakland. The present home, however, while of a substantial character, is but a temporary one because it is of a character that is not in keeping with the intention of the organization to supplant it with an enduring and imposing building, the beauty and accommodations of which will appeal to the stranger and the visiting business man from all parts of the country.

THEATER FOLLOWS.
The movement on the part of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce was in response to a demand for progress of a kind which speaks well for the advancement of the city. The former quarters of the organization were desired for a theater and not that the chamber of Commerce has gotten out of the way, the work of transforming the building at the northwest corner of Twelfth and Franklin streets into a theater will begin. The location is one of the best in the city for an enterprise of the kind because it was at Twelfth street that the theater entertainment was longest furnished for the people of this city. That, however, was before Oakland attained metropolitan proportions for the reason that that section was centrally located. It may be said that it is no less centrally located at the present time but Oakland has greatly increased in population that it is able to support a number of places of amusement far removed from what was once the amusement center of the city.

DISTINCTIVE FEATURE.
The theater which is to take the place of the Chamber of Commerce quarters will be distinctively different in its features of entertainment from those of any other houses of amusement in this city. There is a liberal amount of capital and a great deal of experience behind the project and there is a strong appreciation among the people for the amusement which their new candidate for public favor proposes to give.
This theatrical venture, however, is not the only one now under way in this city because, a short distance north of the Albany block at the northeast corner of Broadway and Sixteenth streets, a new building is being put up, a structure which has been leased for a number of years by the Pathe Brothers for the production, in a magnificent manner, of their moving pictures. This firm is one of the pioneers in the production of pictures of this kind and its work is rated high in the profession.

DUAL PURPOSE.
At the same time the new theater will not be strictly devoted to the presentation of pictures for the reason that there will be a liberal stage supplied for the presentation of the best features of the vaudeville stage. The structure will be sixty-three feet in height and fronted with a number of business places on Broadway for the occupancy of which a number of would-be tenants have already made application. The entrance to the theater will be through a lobby which, it is understood, is to be in itself a work of art.
The new theater will be appreciated by business men for the reason that it will go a great way in filling up a valuable piece of vacant property which has heretofore been unprofitably standing. It will look ahead to a big advertising chance which was an eyesore to everybody, not excepting the owner of the property.

ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN WILL BE BROADENED

The Oakland Real Estate Association, at the weekly meeting in its rooms, Oakland Bank of Savings building, has decided upon a broader and more determined campaign for the advertising of the city's adopted plan for the purpose of the organization. The "get-together" idea was taken. A committee was appointed to arrange for a banquet, at which the legitimate boosting of Oakland will be the theme.
The meeting of the association was the largest and most enthusiastic held in months. The satisfactory state of the summer realty market in Oakland was discussed, as was also the matter of adopting a uniform schedule of commissions, as is used in other cities of the coast.
It was resolved to form a boosters' association and co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce, the City Council, the transportation companies, and corporations dealing in public utilities for the enlightening of the country as a city of opportunity, and the attractions of climate and other conditions which make it a desirable place of residence.

OAKLAND TO BE BOOSTED IN BOOK

United Properties Company Prepares Illustrated Volume Exploiting City.

The United Properties Company, of which the Oakland Traction Company of this city is one of the subsidiary corporations, has in course of preparation a book descriptive of Oakland and the other near-by municipalities, which will be the finest publication of the kind which has been issued in this section. The book is being prepared by the United Properties Company, the manufacturer of the highest style of the engraver's art.

CAPABLE SUPERVISION.
The new book is being prepared under the supervision of W. R. Alberger, president of the United Properties Company, who is determined that there is nothing that can be said about the possibilities of Oakland, as a place of business, that will not be said in the publication.
The importance of a work of this kind can not be overestimated. It will show to the world what Oakland is at the present time. It will show what Oakland is doing and how to increase her whatness on the southern and western waterfronts, to enable her to accommodate the shipping and the commercial business which are sure to follow the opening of the Panama canal. It will show the company that the United Properties Company is doing in the building of wharves, also, for the purpose of attracting ships and vessels of the various foreign steamship lines to this city. It will also illustrate the business center of the city and show the magnificent structures which have, within the last ten years, sprung up on the various thoroughfares, the unrivaled beauty of the streets, drives, boulevards, parks, private residences, the manufacturing districts, the commerce of the harbor, the railway terminals, the unexcelled street railway accommodations and, in fact, everything that has tended to make Oakland already a great city, which is sure to increase her importance in the future among the great cities of the country.

OFFICE AND LIBRARY.
This book will be worthy a place in the library of every home in this section for the reason that it will inform many people who do not, even at this time, appreciate the possibilities of this city from every point of view, but it will be especially valuable as a means of conveying to people at a distance the benefits which the residents of this vicinity enjoy and of the commercial supremacy which is within the grasp of this municipality.
Alberger declares that this work is intended for general circulation. It will find its way into every hotel, railroad office, bank, chamber of commerce and large mercantile establishment in the country, and will be furnished free of cost to any applicant who desires to avail himself of the information which it will contain. It will be furnished even to the number of five to people who can send it to a number of countries in other parts of the country, and the postage will be paid on the same by the company. The public will be duly informed through the columns of THE TRIBUNE when the publication will be ready for distribution.

E. A. HERON IN BERKELEY DEAL

Much Valuable Property Taken in by Oakland Traction Official.

BERKELEY, Aug. 5.—There is much interest among Berkeley real estate dealers as to the intentions of President E. A. Heron of Oakland Traction in purchasing property fronting on University and Shattuck avenues, for a consideration of $65,000. Heron denies that the company intends to erect a Key Route station at that corner.
Two valuable pieces of property, involving a purchase price of $100,000, have been sold to Heron by the Mason-McDuffie company of this city. The most important piece of land is that located on Shattuck avenue extending in the form of an L to University avenue. The second parcel lies in the most exclusive section of the Northbrae district, where a new Key Route station will be located.

ADJOINS STATION.
Thirty-five feet of the frontage of Heron's property on Shattuck avenue adjoins the present site of the small Key Route waiting station. It extends back seventy-five feet and connects with the rear end of a fifty-foot frontage on University avenue. The University avenue opening could be used for the accommodation of University avenue car lines and the Shattuck avenue section for the accommodation of Key Route commuters.
The fact that President Heron has purchased for $35,000, property in Northbrae, where a new station is to be erected, gives additional weight to the rumors that the company is making use of the city lot for the same purpose.
Local business men who have been following the movements of the traction company in this city think that there is a possibility that local people will be provided, in the near future, with a handsome new depot by the Oakland Traction company.

MARKET BETTER.
Local brokers report a strengthening of the market, although the activity in trade is not pronounced. The fall season, with the reopening of schools and the university, will accelerate the rental business and sales.
Home seekers are settling in Berkeley daily and there is a steady sale of residence lots. Building permits have been issued during the week as follows:
Two-story, 8-room dwelling, Claremont boulevard, near Garber street, for J. P. Massie; $6367.
Two-story, 12-room dwelling, Piedmont avenue and Stuart street, for Perry Evans; $6000.
Two-story 5-room cottage, McGee street and Oregon street; $5000.
Two-story 2-room addition, Twilight way and Bowditch, for Chas. Perry; $275.
One-story bungalow dwelling, Ninth street, near Addison, for E. B. Newell; $1400.
Two-story nine-room dwelling, Canyon road near University heights, for George Stratton; $6200.
Two-story, 8-room dwelling, Hawthorne terrace, near Euclid avenue, for Stuart Daggett; $4400.
Two-story, 8-room dwelling, El Camino rear, for C. H. Williamson; $5600.
Two-story, 8-room dwelling, Marin street near the circle, for E. B. Roach; $4000.

DOG IS BURIED IN BIG WHITE CASKET

Carried to Resting Place Beneath Cherry Tree in White Hearse.

BUFFALO, Aug. 5.—An Irish setter dog was buried here in a casket of white brocade satin, and the hearse which carried it to the railroad station was also white and was drawn by white horses. The dog was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cronin, a childless couple of 255 Virginia street, and was destroyed the day before at a veterinary hospital.
The dog had been brought up carefully from puppyhood by Mrs. Cronin and had for years been shown every attention that a pampered child could wish. At the death of the dog an expensive coffin suitable for a child of 12 was ordered and the embalmers were placed in it with his head resting on a satin pillow trimmed with lace. Its collar was decorated with pink ribbon and the casket bore silver handles.
The animal was buried on a farm outside the city under a wild cherry tree in a grave lined with evergreens. The coffin was covered with roses and carnations. The granite shaft that is to be placed over the dog will bear these lines: "That loving heart, that patient soul, had they indeed no longer span to run their course, to reach their goal, to read their homily to man."
The dog during life slept on a feather bed and drank two bottles of ale every night.

METROPOLIS HAS TWO EXTREMES

Congested Areas in New York Have Best and Worst Habitations

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—"New York has the worst tenements in the world and also the best."
Dr. Charles Pranan, head of a bureau of the French government which has charge of the housing of workers, who is in this country to represent his government at a convention of co-operative savings and loan associations, thus characterized conditions in this city yesterday, after making an automobile tour of tenement and flat house districts under the auspices of the Tenement House department.
Dr. Pranan, whose department, known as the Bureau of Assurance and Social Protection, is a division of the Ministry of Labor, went first yesterday to Thompson street, where he saw some old rookeries; then to the southern part of Washington street. After a tour of the east side he was taken to see the "new law houses" and the model houses being built by Mrs. Vanderbilt in the region of the upper Seventies and Avenue H. He also saw the Beilnord and several Broadway apartment houses.
RENTS TOO HIGH.
"We have some bad tenements in Paris," he said at the Waldorf later, but we have no such dark hallways as we have in New York. I find that families living in these tenements are obliged to pay about a third of their income in rent. In Paris the workman pays only about a quarter of his income for rent. Your new law houses are splendid, but they are also very dear—too dear for the French workman. I find that in these houses the workman must pay about $5 per room monthly. That is too much of the feeling of the houses are the finest in the world."
Dr. Pranan says that the old New York apartment house bugaboo of "overcrowding" with many children is giving trouble in Paris.
"The doorkeeper or manager there, like your janitor here, is a tyrant," said he. "In Paris one takes an apartment for three months. If a man with more than three children gets into one of those houses the manager puts him out at the end of the three months. So severe has this condition become that a society is being organized in Paris to build tenements for the man with three children or more."
WOULDN'T ADMIT INSPECTORS.
"I should like to see in Paris, as here, a Tenement House Department with authority to enforce such drastic regulations as you have. We have attempted something of the sort, but the Frenchman would not allow an inspector to go into his house once a month, or indeed at any time. We have too much of the feeling of liberty. Consequently we have no fire escapes from many of our tenements since no one has the authority to require them."
Dr. Pranan is much interested in your system of public work. Playgrounds for children are new to me. In spite of the shame that such a wealthy city as New York should house some of her poorer citizens as they are housed, I feel there is hope for the city since it has in its parks such good breathing spots."

Dr. Pranan goes from here to Philadelphia, Washington and other cities, attending on August 2 the national convention of the Co-operative Savings and Loan Associations at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

CIVILIANS CAN BE ARMY LEUTENANTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—More than 200 vacancies open to civilian candidates will exist in the grade of second lieutenant in the army, as closely as the million are able to estimate at present, affording to young men desirous of entering on a military career. The war department is on a hunt for college graduates who have the training to pass the competitive examination, which is a severe one and which covers mental as well as physical requirements.
At present sixty-nine candidates from civil life have been designated with a view to their appointment as second lieutenants in the coast artillery corps, 108 have been authorized to take the examination for appointment as second lieutenants in the mobile army, which includes the infantry, cavalry and field artillery.
THIRTEEN FROM THE RANKS.
Before any of those may be appointed, however, preference will be shown to candidates from the enlisted force, grad-

SLASHES THROAT OF YOUNG GIRL

Infatuated New Yorker Attempts to Kill Woman and Himself.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—For two years Louis Tenenridt had been begging Maria Mustaralli, a pretty black-eyed girl of sixteen, to marry him, at last when she said she could not be his wife because she was too young he decided to kill her and himself.
Since Tenenridt met the girl he has haunted her home, No. 453 West Twenty-sixth street. He came from his residence, No. 359 Second street, to her early every evening to visit her. He and the girl were acknowledged by her parents to be engaged.
"But you must wait two years," the girl would say every evening. He gave her an engagement ring and she was proud of it, but she would not change her decision not to marry until she was eighteen.

PLEADS FOR MARRIAGE.

When Tenenridt and the girl returned from a walk last night, Mrs. Mustaralli, the only member of her family at home, Tenenridt again began pleading for an early marriage. "You must wait two years," she laughed.
"I'd rather be dead and have you dead than wait two years," Tenenridt cried. "You'll decide to marry me now or else both of us are going to die."
Frightened, the girl sprang to her feet and started for the hall door. Tenenridt seized her and then he drew a razor across her throat. As she made for the apartments of Mrs. Lizzie McKee, across the hall, Tenenridt locked himself in the parlor. The small brother, John, had run screaming to the street.

Policeman Fisher came from the West Twentieth street station and he found Mustaralli in a serious condition. He was taken to an ambulance from the York Hospital and then tried to get into a room where Tenenridt was. He could not beat down the door, so he got in by the fire escape. On the floor of the parlor lay Tenenridt, unconscious and gashed in many places.

Police officers from the West Twentieth street station and the fire department were on duty. They found Mustaralli in a serious condition. He was taken to an ambulance from the York Hospital and then tried to get into a room where Tenenridt was. He could not beat down the door, so he got in by the fire escape. On the floor of the parlor lay Tenenridt, unconscious and gashed in many places.
Candidates from the naval academy and the honor graduates from educational institutions where army officers are on duty as professors of tactics.
So far there have been thirteen candidates from the ranks. They are being examined before a board in Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Nine graduates from the naval academy who desire to be transferred to the army and who are incapacitated for sea service on account of chronic seasickness in most cases, but who are eligible to appointment for army commissions, have been selected. The honor graduates of special classes in technical training and experience.

BURGLARS ACTIVE,

Homes and Stores Yield Jewelry and Money as Plunder.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—Burglars were active in different parts of the city during the past twenty-four hours and four cases have been reported to the police.

Miss T. Book of 220 Thirtieth street complained that her home had been thoroughly ransacked and jewelry to the amount of $115 taken.

The home of George Tom, 536 Franklin street, was entered and property to the amount of $18 taken. A Thompson of 1049 Sutter street, a tailor, reports the theft of cloth and valuables to the amount of $260, and Charles Clements of 95 Market street notified the Harbor station that sacks and rope being used in a building in course of construction and valued at $25 were taken away during the night.

CEREAL MARKET SHOWS WEAKNESS

Both Corn and Wheat Make Declines Under Heavy Selling Orders.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—The wheat market began weak before much of the grain changed hands, and reasons for the earlier decline when they became more generally known brought in additional selling orders, and at one time the decline looked as if it might assume considerable proportions. The weakness was off, however, at least, it did not rest at its lowest point of development, and at the close the net losses for the day were about 5c. Corn lost half cent in September and 1 cent in December and May. The decline in oats was only nominal and in provisions was slight. Close: Wheat, August, 80½c; September, 82½c; December, 85½c; May, 91½c. Corn—September, 41½c; December, 43½c; May, 44½c. Oats—September, 42½c; December, 44½c; May, 47½c.

Yacht With 40-Mile-an-Hour Speed Causes Commuters Much Humiliation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Within a few weeks a particularly long, narrow yacht with four large stacks, indicating unusual speed, has been upsetting all records of the harbor. The "Sovereign" as she is called, does 35 miles an hour any time, and it is believed can better 40 when pushed.

For many years the Sandy Hook boats daily carry thousands of commuters from the island to New York. To catch these boats the boat trains must cross the draw bridge at the entrance to the Shrewsbury River which must be thrown open for the "Sovereign." Since the racing yacht makes the trip from New York in less time than the train plus the boat, it often happens that a large number of impatient commuters are delayed while the draw is being opened, and closed for the "Sovereign." There seems nothing to be done about it and the commuters are about to urge a new law to prevent the boat from humiliating them in this way.

5000 WILL ATTEND
BIG IRRIGATION
CONGRESS

Chicago Preparing for Big Throngs From All Countries.

MANY CITIES ANXIOUS FOR NEXT GATHERING

World Renowned Experts Are Included in List of Speakers.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 5.—Five thousand accredited delegates from all parts of the United States, in addition to a large foreign representation, will attend the nineteenth annual sessions of the National Irrigation Congress in Chicago, December 5 to 9, according to R. Insinger, manager of the Northwestern and Pacific Hypotheekbank, who has just returned from a tour of the middle western states and Chicago, where he presided at several meetings of the national board of governors, of which he is chairman. He added:

"Chicago offers exceptional opportunities for western delegates and others to meet people who do not seem to realize that irrigation, today, is an established mode of agriculture and that it is being practiced successfully and profitably in many states west of the Missouri river. To put it mildly, it is up to the communities of the western country to send large delegations to the congress."

CANDIDATES FOR GATHERING.

"Among the candidates for the 1912 sessions probably will be Atlantic City, Rochester, N. Y., Buffalo, St. Paul and Los Angeles. The southern states also are manifesting deep interest in the convention, as they expect to make a strong bid for a convention in the south to take place in January, 1912."

"The delegates will be well taken care of during their stay in Chicago. This pleasant duty is in the hands of a committee of representative business and professional men, headed by Frank E. Scott, president of the Frank E. Scott Transfer company."

"The committee on entertainment, of which John C. Shaffer, president of the Chicago Evening Post company, is chairman, has been active and the arrangements for entertaining are, as a result, upon a large scale. Besides the many places of interest in Chicago, there will be a season of grand opera before, during and after the sessions. The world's foremost artists will be in the casts."

DELEGATES FROM OTHER NATIONS.

"The committee on foreign representation, of which Dr. W. A. Evans, formerly health commissioner of Chicago, is the chairman, is giving every assistance to Dr. E. McQueen Gray of Albuquerque, N. M., and it is expected that many of the nations of the world will be represented by delegates from abroad. Western Canada also will send a representative delegation to the congress."

"I had several meetings with Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, which is conceded to be the largest and most important organization of its kind in the world, and I am more than gratified with the interest its officers and members are taking in the coming congress."

"The convention committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce is doing splendid work under the direction of its vice-chairman, Mr. Reiss. The congress will have placed at its disposal such auditoriums as Orchestra hall, for general meetings; Hubbard hall, in the Fine Arts Museum, for illustrated lectures on irrigation, drainage and kindred subjects, and the Auditorium theater for the meeting, at which President Taft will address the delegates."

COURT REFUSES TO
FOR ROAD

Directors of San Joaquin Valley Electric Company to Remain.

REFUTE STATEMENTS OF THE DEFENDANTS

Doyle Refutes Statement That Rival Had Instituted Action.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—Superior Judge Sturtevant refused to make an order today to appoint a receiver for the San Joaquin Valley Electric railroad pending the suit of John J. Doyle, a stockholder, to oust the directors of that company. The court likewise denied Doyle's request to restrain Morris L. Brackett from acting as manager until a final determination had been made.

The case opened today with affidavits from Doyle, Byron A. Pearce and others, refuting the statement of the defendant directors that the suit was instigated by the rival Tidewater and Southern railroad of Stockton. One of these statements was sworn to by Walter Garlach of Stockton, who claimed that he received money from the Tidewater company with which to purchase two shares of stock in the San Joaquin Valley Electric which were in turn transferred to Doyle.

The stock cost $20 and constitutes all of Doyle's holdings, it is alleged.

DENIES "DUMMY."

In their replies today, Pearce denies that Doyle ever acted as a "dummy" for his railway, while Doyle says he got his information from public rumor, and brought suit on the advice of Charles S. Peery, a San Francisco attorney, with whom he talked the matter over.

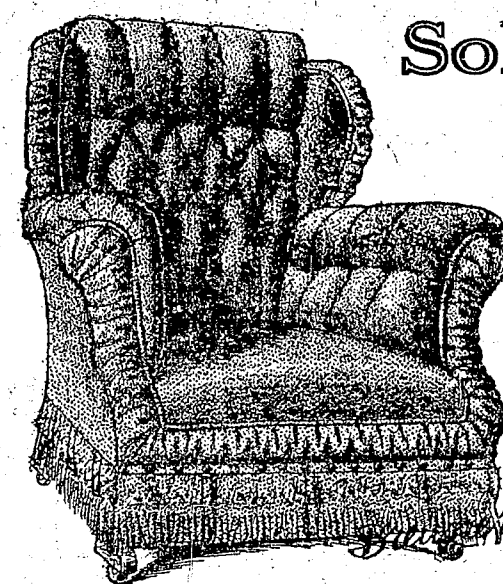

D. Soldi, a laborer, made an affidavit for Doyle in which he said that he was relieved from duty on the track and put to work for some days in Brackett's private grounds, receiving of check in payment, signed by the San Joaquin Valley railroad.

The trial of the main issues will continue next week.

PROVES NATURAL GAS

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 5.—That the so-called "superheated steam" which was being mixed with artificial gas at the plant of the East Ohio Gas Company when it was raised by city officials last Tuesday night, was nothing more than natural gas, was the report made to Director of Public Service Lea by City

Lea, who led the raiders, who charges the gas company with absolute fraud, and says he will demand that it give rebates, not only to the city, but to private consumers. The price of the artificial gas is 80 cents a thousand while the natural gas costs but 30 cents.
